CHINESE SUBS GET N-TIPPED MISSILES

WASHINGTON (UPI)—China has installed launchers for nuclear-tipped missiles on two of its largest submarines, informed sources said today.

The sources said the U.S. Navy has concrete evidence that three launching tubes capable of hurling missiles 380 miles have been built into each of the subs. The submarines are now nearing completion at Dairen in southern Manchuria.

The range of the missiles is approximate that of a nuclear warhead the Chinese claimed to have successfully tested Oct. 27, 1966.

LEADERS DISCOURAGED

Police Block Viet Protest

NEW YORK (AP) — Masses of shouting anti-war demonstrators were frustrated by police today in their second attempt to disrupt operations at the U.S. military induction centre in lower Manhattan. There were about 200 arrests.

In Philadelphia, police arrested 70 demonstrators trying to block the entrance of the induction centre there. The 70 seeking to block the doorway were part of a crowd of about 700, police said. Lawrence Elle, head of the Philadelphia Anti-draft Union which organized the rally, said it was designed to "show strong anti-war and anti-draft sentiment."

In New York, discouraged demonstration leaders were divided on whether to try again Thursday, as planned. Today's protest was marked by scattered fights between marchers and pedestrians before the demonstration broke up in mid-morning.

As the group gathered in Battery Park before dawn, reporters spotted about 300 green-buttoned plainclothes policemen. As the march began, several took off their buttons and mingled with the demonstrators.

WIRE BRIEFS

Rail Slowdown Ends

LONDON (AP) — A two-day slowdown that tied up much of southern England's rail traffic ended early today when the union accepted a peace formula proposed by Prime Minister Wilson.

Students Strike

HONG KONG (AP) — Some 20,000 Chinese students from 33 Hong Kong schools began a protest strike today charging the colony's British government with "great crimes against our compatriot Chinese students."

New Unrest in China

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet news agency Tass today reported major new unrest in China, with troops in action in Fukien province in the southeast and in Shanghai.

Suspect Arrested

Cong Toll Set at 121

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist terrorists exacting apparent vengeance for refusal of mountain tribesmen to furnish them Viet Cong recruits, ravaged the refugee hamlet of Dak Son, killing 121 persons, most of them women and children, U.S. spokesmen reported today.

Disease on Rise

LONDON (Reuters)—The infection rate was reported on the rise again today in the worst foot-and-mouth epidemic in recorded British history.

Youth, 20, Sets Self In Flames

Police said Kenneth D'Elia, 20, of Flushing, Queens, offered no explanation for his act.

Witnesses said they saw D'Elia climb a five-foot fence, run to an adjacent lawn, pour gasoline over himself from a two-gallon metal container and strike a match.

It's $7 Million Worth of Trouble Claims Strachan

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan today blasted the 'Bi and Bi' commission's report urging French language rights as "$7 million worth of trouble" for Canada.

Premier Bennett refused to comment on the commission's first report this morning and Attorney-General Robert Bonner declined comment until he has a chance to read the full report.

But Mr. Strachan declared himself opposed to the principal recommendation of the commission that bilingualism be an official policy wherever either English or French minorities compose at least 10 per cent of the population.

"I think it's $7 million worth of trouble for Canada," Mr. Strachan said of the commission.

'TWO NATIONS'

"It will give semi-official endorsation to the idea that Canada should be composed of two equal nations.

"And this will carry the fragmentation of our federal society into the provincial and local level."

Mr. Strachan said he was opposed to French being used as the language of instruction in any B.C. school because it would boomerang as a discriminatory process in the long run.

"A pupil who graduates from such a school would naturally find himself short in English and it would be difficult for these students to fit into an English-speaking society."

He said French-speaking school graduates would not be able to compete for jobs in an English-speaking environment "and we will then hear the cry of discrimination on the provincial level," he said.

AGAINST DIVISION

Asked if he was opposed to bilingualism per se, Mr. Strachan replied:

"I'm against the acceptance of any permanent fragmentation of the Canadian society and I don't think we should take any steps that would tend to crystal-

NEW YORK BABY DIES IN HEART TRANSPLANT

NEW YORK (Reuters) — A baby who received a transplanted heart from a dead infant today has died, the doctor who performed the operation announced.

The baby survived for several hours, but then his heart stopped, Dr. Adrian Kantrowitz told a press conference.

"We consider this procedure was a failure," he said.

Dr. Kantrowitz said the child, born in Maimonides Medical Centre in Brooklyn, had a lesion which blocked the entrance to the heart's left ventricle.

The defect was not repairable by any open-heart technique.

MAILLARDVILLE THROWS BIG PITCH ON DEC. 12

COQUITLAM (CP) — Coquitlam School Board will be asked at its Dec. 12 meeting to use French as a language of instruction in primary grades.

The proposal will be made by the French-Canadian Federation of B.C., secretary-general Romeo Paquette said Monday.

The federation is taking the initiative because of a recent comment by Premier Bennett, said Mr. Paqutte.

"Mr. Bennett said French language instruction in the public school system could be considered where there was a concentration of French-speaking people in the community and if the district school board made such a request," he said.

Mr. Paquette estimated that there were 8,000 French-speaking people within the school district, most living in the suburb of Maillardville.

GOOD START: MP

PM Promises Quick Action

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP)—The first report of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism has won general acceptance here despite some fears that events may supersede implementation of its recommendations.

However, Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons in tabling the report Tuesday the government already has established machinery to give it "serious and urgent appraisal."

He said the government "fully endorses" the principle of English and French linguistic and cultural equality expressed in the report.

Mr. Pearson promised federal action as quickly as possible on matters within its jurisdiction.

Only three of the 14 recommendations fall within the exclusive jurisdiction of Ottawa, two more are constitutional and require prior discussion with the provinces, and three others would require joint federal-provincial action.

Six are primarily provincial, Mr. Pearson noted.

He said he will suggest that matters in the report be discussed at the federal-provincial Bill of Rights Conference planned for early 1968.

PC CHIEF APPROVES

In the Commons, Opposition Leader Stanfield said that regardless of jurisdiction, recommendations in the report "clearly relate to problems which are of concern to the country as a whole."

The former Nova Scotia premier said that a few years ago the recommendations might have been considered rather startling. But the fact that people had been pressing for the first commission report indicated the extent to which public opinion had changed.

Roger Regimbal (PC—Argenteuil - Deux Montagnes) said there is "danger that events may outstrip the report" but nevertheless it was a good starting point.

Some Conservatives grumbled that the commission had taken four years to produce proposals that provincial premiers had basically agreed to in four days last week at the Confederation for Tomorrow conference in Toronto.

Quebec Road Link To Latins?

(Special to The Times)

MONTEVIDEO—The possibility that Quebec may establish links with South American countries has been raised here today by Fernand J. Lafontaine, minister of the Quebec roads department, who is currently attending as observer the tenth Pan American Roads convention.

He made this statement in a speech he had been invited to deliver before the delegates to the convention. He also took this opportunity to present a basic documentation on works carried out by Quebec engineers in the field of road signalling.

Mr. Lafontaine's statement about the establishing of links between the province of Quebec on the one hand and South American countries, the United States and their continental organizations on the other hand was most warmly welcomed.

Partial Formula For the Others

OTTAWA (CP)—A plea to English Canada to give its French-speaking minority the same language rights Quebec has extended to its English-speaking minority for 100 years was made Tuesday by the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

Holding up what it called the "Quebec model," it said Ontario and New Brunswick should move to declare themselves officially bilingual provinces, recognizing both the English and French languages in their legislatures, public service, schools and courts.

Other provinces should follow suit when the French-speaking element of their populations reaches 10 per cent.

The report, about 100,000 words long, is printed in both English and French.

"The impossibilty of living a full life in French outside Quebec, and even in certain parts of Quebec, is certainly one cause of the present crisis in Canada," the royal commission warned in a 260-page report, first of 10 to come out of its four-year, $7,000,000 study.

Three years ago the commission said in a preliminary report that the gulf between English and French Canada was deeper than most people realized.

"The crisis is very much still with us," commission co-chairman Davidson Dunton told a press conference after release of the report.

Andre Laurendeau, the other co-chairman, said more and more Canadians are coming to recognize the seriousness of the situation.

PM Endorses Linguistic Equality

Prime Minister Pearson, tabling the report in the Commons, said the federal government fully endorses its principle of linguistic and cultural equality in all parts of Canada. It would be suggested as an item for discussion at the federal-provincial constitutional conference here in January.

One of the report's major proposals is for the establishment of "bilingual districts" anywhere that the official-language minority makes up 10 per cent or more of the population. These would have schools and government services in the minority language.

It identifies 54 such districts from the 1961 census, 43 of them in Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick. There also were four in Nova Scotia, four in Manitoba and one each in Prince Edward Island, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The 10-member royal commission also made these recommendations:

- Acceptance by all provinces of both languages in legislature debates and the provision of appropriate services in French for French-speaking minorities.
- Recognition of the right of Canadian parents to have their children educated in English or French, implementation depending on concentration of the minority population.
- Declaration that English and French are the official languages of Parliament and of federal courts and administrative offices.
- Amendment of provincial legislation to remove obstacles to the use of both French and English by local governments.
- Enactment of a federal official languages act to ensure respect for the status of English and French.
- Similar legislation by officially bilingual provinces.
- Establishment of a completely bilingual capital area involving both Ottawa and Hull, Quebec.
- An new section of the British North America Act guaranteeing minority education rights.

The royal commission stressed that "living in French must

FOR B.C. IT WOULD BE A GESTURE OF GOODWILL

Special to The Times

OTTAWA — No no no — or non non non for the benefit of Maillardville.

There would be no bid to make French mandatory for every man, woman and child in B.C.

Street signs would not be changed to read Rue Granville.

It would not be necessary to develop a taste for snails instead of salmon.

In total, the recommendations of the bilingualism and biculturalism commission would not fan a Gallic breeze blowing from the Kootenays to Vancouver Island.

The commission came out with its recommendations Tuesday for officially declaring English and French as the official languages, and other moves.

The recommendations pose no threat to B.C. way-of-life, jobs, or rights of any citizens, but they might make the quality of life a little richer, and a little more secure in terms of unity.

This point is hammered home again and again in the commissioners' report—an involved, penetrating volume of some 260 pages.

But there is a fear in some official quarters that the recommendations will produce

'REALISTIC, APPLICABLE'

MONTREAL (CP) — Claude Ryan, publisher of Le Devoir, says the royal commission report on bilingualism and biculturalism appears to be "realistic, supple and applicable."

"For the first time in a century of their common history, Canadians of both languages are offered by the Laurendeau-Dunton commission a program of equality based on precise definitions," he wrote in a front page editorial in today's edition of Le Devoir.

"The status of equality proposed . . . has existed in Quebec for a long time. The report is therefore aimed at the federal government, at the governments of other provinces and at English-speaking Canadians in general. . . ."

Maxwell Cohen, dean of the law faculty at McGill University, said in an interview the report will require a "fundamental change in the English-speaking population as a whole."

Michel Brunet, director of the history department at the University of Montreal, said the report was 40 years too late.

"If this program had been drawn up and implemented around 1920, I'm convinced it would have accomplished something."

Richard Lord, vice-president of the English-language section of the Quebec Liberal Federation, said French-Canadians should be able to feel at home all over Canada, but this cannot be legislated.

"It's a matter of education. Attitudes in Canada have to change. This process has already started and perhaps the report will help."

CHILDREN OF ASIA FUND

Day Nurseries: Heavenly Havens

By KATHRINE THOMAS

Many women of Hong Kong spend their lives laboring piteously to gain meagre rations to keep their families alive.

Without such help as the Unitarian Service Committee's free day nurseries in which they can place their youngest children, they would be unable to cope.

Tan Kah Kin, one of the boys in the nursery, is four years old. His father died of a heart attack in 1964; his mother is almost completely deaf and there are six other children.

The eldest works as a wrapper in a bakery earning about $25 per month, not enough to feed such a large family. The mother is only able to join together plastic branches for Christmas decorations. It takes her two days to assemble one box for which she is paid 25 cents.

When Dr. Hitschmanova, director of the USC, visited this family, she found the smallest child tied with a rope to the railing of the only bed while his mother worked on her greenery, which may adorn Christmas tables in Victoria—half a world away.

GRATEFUL

The mother told Dr. Hitschmanova through an interpreter how grateful she was that the day nursery had accepted one of her little ones without pay; he was getting such good care and such excellent food three times a day.

Could the USC possilby take the next smallest one as well?

"It was impossible," says Dr. Hitschmanova.

"How difficult it is to explain that there is not a single vacancy, that the waiting list is growing each day, with more than 100 names listed as the most desperate cases in the neighborhood.

"She understood, but told me that her children were constantly hungry and showed us a dish of leftovers—cold vegetables and a little boiled rice—which neighbors had dropped in the night before. She would heat them up at noon—as the first food of the day."

Dr. Hitschmanova also visited the 88-year-old grandmother of another boy in the nursery. She found her sitting in the lower half of the doubledecker bunk playing with the little boy and his three sisters.

Altogether 20 persons, 12 adults and eight children, live in a tiny, dark, airless flat without the slightest privacy. The father died of cancer; the mother works as a cleaning woman.

NEVER FORGET

"But never shall I forget the beautiful tenderness of the old woman drawing the little ones close to her to give them the warmth and protection they needed, while their

be made possible in every part of Canada where there are enough French-speaking people."

On the question of having Ontario and New Brunswick declare themselves bilingual provinces, the report noted that Ontario has 425,000 of the 853,000 French-speaking Canadians who live outside of Quebec and New Brunswick has 210,530 who make up 35 per cent of its population.

These two provinces and Quebec account for 95 per cent of French-speaking Canadians.

To become officially bilingual a provice should legalize the use of both English and French in legislature debates, print all laws, regulations and legislative records in both languages, provide equal public school systems for both communities and adopt both languages in the courts.

Ontario recently announced an intention to provide French high schools.

The report criticized the "English cast of life" in Ottawa, saying nowhere else in Canada is there such a concentration of French-Canadians with so few language rights.

The French language was scarcely recognized in provincial and municipal offices.

City of Ottawa Unco-operative

This was a major obstacle to the recruitment of able French-Canadians by the federal civil service. The answer was the development of a "truly bilingual" capital area embracing Ottawa and Hull, across the Ottawa River.

A research report attached to the main document said Ottawa's board of control was the only public body in Canada that refused to co-operate with the royal commission.

The report suggests that if French-language rights are not guaranteed in English Canada, Quebec might question its constitutionally bilingual character.

Under the BNA Act, the constitution, minority language rights are guaranteed only in that province.

The royal commission is expected to produce reports on education and the status of French in the work field in about six months. Others, to be out by the end of 1968, will deal with the capital in detail, Parliament, the federal cabinet, the Supreme Court of Canada, ethnic groups, the arts, mass media and other topics.

Two of the 10 commissioners wrote individual statements as riders to Tuesday's report.

Rev. Clement Cormier, 57, former president of the University of Moncton, said the commission was too rigid in its definition of "official bilingualism."

J. B. Rudnyckyj, 57, of Winnipeg, suggested some form of constitutional recognition be granted to "regional languages" other than English or French. He mentioned German, Italian and Ukrainian.

Apartheid Controversy At Hospital

CAPE TOWN (AP) — Groote Schuur Hospital, where doctors last Sunday announced the first successful transplant of a human heart, is in the midst of a controversy over one of its staff.

The South African government placed Dr. Raymond Hoffenberg under "ban," meaning his activities are restricted. The government takes such action under security laws and rarely gives an explanation.

It has given none in the case of Dr. Hoffenberg, a research scientist who works at Groote Schuur Hospital and is a professor at Cape Town University.

Refusal to explain the ban, or to try Dr. Hoffenberg in court where he could defend himself, "is steadily producing a situation in South Africa comparable to that in Germany before the last war," a group of protesting doctors said.

While the government does not explain its actions in these cases, many of those put under restrictions are opponents of the policy of apartheid, or racial segregation. More than 675 persons of various races have been banned or restricted.

Recently Prime Minister John Vorster told the "liberal press" that if it thinks that by writing about people who are deported or restricted it will prevent the government from taking action against these people, it is "making a great mistake."

Hard Liquor Up 35 Cents; Beer 5 Cents

The B.C. government boosted liquor prices as of today by more than double the estimated impact of last week's federal tax increase.

A cabinet order added:

Thirty-five cents to each standard bottle of all kinds of "hard" liquor and 20 cents to each "mickey" size; Five cents to each standard bottle of all wines, domestic and imported, except for champagne which went up 15 cents;

40c A GALLON

Oversixe bottles of wine were boosted 10 cents for 40 ounces, 20 cents for half-gallons and 40 cents for gallons;

Domestic beer and ale went up five cents for a dozen pints but imported beer and ale was raised 10 cents; draught beer went up $1 a barrel.

Liqueurs were raised 35 cents for a standard bottle.

Federal officials last week estimated that the 10 per cent increase in the federal tax would add only 15 cents to a bottle of liquor.

'TOO BUSY'

Liquor board czar Col. Donald McGugan, who wired the new prices to LCB stores Tuesday night, refused to confirm the increases to a reporter this morning and would not discuss the basis for the raises.

Efforts to obtain an explanation for the size of the increases brought a response from Attorney-General Robert Bonner's office that he was "too busy" to answer phone calls.

The cabinet order was signed by Premier Bennett who last month appealed to all private businessmen to hold the line on their prices in order to help fight inflation.

Mr. Bennett also said that devaluation of the British pound would bring about a 15 per cent price cut at LCB stores for liquor imported from the United Kingdom.

POCKET DIFFERENCE

But today's price boosts did not exempt any imported liquor and it appears the government will pocket the devaluation difference in five lines of rum, six lines of gin, five lines of beer and ale and three lines of sherry and port that are imported from the U.K.

The price increase on U.K. beer and ale, in fact, was double that put on domestic brands.

There was no distinction made in the price increases for 50 lines of Scotch either, although the Scotch Whisky Association announced it was offsetting only approximately 11 per cent of the more than 14 per cent devaluation.

a reaction in French-speaking Canada of too-little too-late, and too-much too-soon in English-speaking parts.

CO-OPERATION

However, they will make little direct impact on B.C.

As commission co-chairman A. Davidson Dunton pointed out, support of them would be more of a gesture of goodwill and desire to co-operate with Canada's French-speaking people—who form about one-third of the total population.

The theme was that of Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson at the Confederation of Tomorrow conference in Toronto last week, who emphasized that his province does not want to impose its language on other Canadians.

But it does want its language rights ensured across Canada.

Under the British North America Act, minority language rights are guaranteed only in Quebec—and there the English have it in writing.

The first recommendation in the report is that "English and French be formally declared the official languages of the Parliament of Canada, of the federal courts, of the federal government, and of the federal administration."

IN WRITING

The federal government endorses the principle of linguistic and cultural equality, as Prime Minister Pearson repeated Tuesday night, and both languages prevail on Parliament Hill.

But the French desire is to have it in writing, in the constitution.

The commission stated that the 1867 constitution recognized French and English in the federal field—"however it has become evident to us that this recognition was incomplete in many respects, and often disputed where the French language was concerned."

But this doesn't mean, by any standard, that the average Victoria postman has to parlez-vous.

The report states:

"The administration in Ottawa must be able to communicate adequately with the public in both languages.

"All government publications, as well as forms and notices, must be simultaneously available in either language.

"Federal government offices and crown corporations across the country must be able to deal with people in either French of English.

"For example, in the immigration and customs offices at all ports of entry, in important transportation terminals, on Canadian National's trains, and on Air Canada's airplanes —2everywhere, even in the completely unilingual sections of the country, where there is contact with the travelling public—services should be available in both languages as a matter of course."

MAIN OFFICES

This does not mean every little government office in B.C. must be staffed with bilingual personnel—but in the main centres the aim is to have someone who could handle French.

"These changes can be made without forcing a single citizen, Francophone or Anglophone, to learn the other official language, for the most part these changes will cost little," the report added.

But there would be costs that would not come up in a unilingual system. At Toronto, Premier John Robarts said Canada's bilingualism made it distinctive, and he felt sure Canadians would be prepared to pay the cost of keeping the country together.

The report also called on all provinces to accept official bilingualism in their jurisdictions, but in B.C. — with about 50,000 citizens with a French mother tongue — there isn't likely much chance of this coming up in the ligislature in Victoria.

BILINGUAL DISTRICTS

Again the report stated that such practice will vary according to the number of people speaking French in an area and the practicalities.

The report also suggested "bilingual districts" based on a Finnish bilingual system.

This means in areas in a non-bilingual province where there are about 10 per cent of the people speaking the minority tongue, that a bilingual district be set up. This, primarily, would offer education in the public system, and some French in public services.

The report recommends that Ottawa and the province concerned define the exact limits of each bilingual district.

It lists 54 census divisions as meeting the criterion — but none in Newfoundland or B.C.

"In the provinces with no bilingual districts — a bureau of translation and some educational services might suffice in these provinces," the report states. And it is in the education field that the commission's recommendations would be most felt in B.C. — although still only slightly.

The commissioners suggested: "We recommend that the right of Canadian parents to have their children educated in the official language of their choice be recognized in the education systems."

. . . PM

NDP Leader Douglas welcomed the report as "an important contribution to a fundamental problem" and said he was impressed by the unanimous opinion of the commissioners.

Events had vindicated the commission's 1965 warning in a preliminary report that a crisis existed in Canada.

Mr. Douglas said the 1968 constitutional conference should look as well at a redistribution of powers over such matters as housing, manpower, pollution and farm products marketing.

PM GRASPS—CAOUETTE

Creditiste Leader Caouette said that even Canada's French-language prime ministers didn't show as much understanding of French-Canadians as Prime Minister Pearson.

Mr. Caouette also praised provincial efforts to establish bilingual educational systems.

A. B. Patterson, acting Social Credit leader, said any attempt to pressure the provinces into accepting the report "could have very serious and unfortunate results."

Outside the Commons, Forestry Minister Sauve said the report will do a lot to demonstrate that there is a desire to improve relations.

Gilles Gregoire (Ind.—Lapointe) said that it was "a gesture of good faith" that meant nothing. Quebec probably would be independent before the recommendations were dealt with by Ottawa, he said.

Suddenly I Lost My Memory!

A noted publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique for acquiring a powerful memory which can pay you real dividends in both business and social advancement and works like magic to give you added poise, necessary self-confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by remembering accurately everything they see, hear, or read. Whether in business, at social functions or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can dominate each situation by your ability to remember.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in remembering anything you choose to remember, the publishers have printed full details of their self-training method in a new booklet, "Adventures in Memory," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. Heart Man May Go Home In Three Weeks—Doctor

(Times News Services)

CAPE TOWN — Louis Washkansky will be home in three weeks if his progress with a transplanted heart continues at its present rate, the surgeon who made the history-making heart graft said today.

Professor Chris Barnard, who led a team of surgeons that gave the South African businessman a young woman's heart Sunday, told a press conference Washkansky would be better off at home.

"Hospitals are where germs are and the chances of infection would consequently be greater," he said.

Washkansky continued to gain strength as doctors said he entered a crucial seven-day period in which his body would accept or reject the transplanted heart.

Barnard was in a cheerful mood at the press conference and showed a high degree of optimism that Washkansky would live.

He said an electro-cardiagraph reading on the new heart was satisfactory and the patient was feeling well.

There was no sign so far that his body tissues would reject the heart transferred from 25-year-old Denise Darvall in an historic five-hour operation at Groote Schuur Hospital after the young woman was fatally injured in an auto accident.

But a team of doctors and nurses was in constant attendance around his infection-free oxygen tent for the first tell-tale signs of rejection—which would mean death for the 55-year-old wholesale grocer.

He continued to improve today, started telling jokes and told a nurse, "I am a new Frankenstein."

His general condition is satisfactory and all signs show improvement, a hospital bulletin said.

Despite Washkansky's cheerfulness and signs of progress, heart specialists warned that he was entering a crucial period.

If previous transplants were any guide, said Dr. Marius Barnard, then Washkansky's has reached the stage where his body might try to reject the transplanted heart.

This period starts three to 10 days after a transplant operation said Barnard, younger brother of the leader of the team of 30 specialists who operated Sunday.

His condition is monitored minute by minute and efforts by the body to reject the heart would likely appear first on an electro-cardiagraph device.

Washkansky Tuesday took solid food for the first time, after two days of fluids dripped into his veins.

'Personal Reasons'

HAVANA (Reuters) — Richard Howard Pearce, a United States Army major with access to secret U.S. information who defected to Cuba in May, said Tuesday he left his country "for strictly personal reasons, not for political reasons."

Pearce, who has decorations for service in Vietnam, arrived at Havana's Cuidad Libertad Airport May 21 in a Cessna 150 plane, with his five-year-old son Richard, who was legally in the custody of his divorced wife. The child's custody was said to be the reason for his defection.

Pearce talked Tuesday for the first time since his arrival with two western reporters in a well-furnished house, given to him and his son by the Cuban government in the posh Havana suburb of Miramar.

Pearce, courteous and relaxed, said: "My reasons for leaving my country were and continue to be strictly personal."

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

The deep low pressure centre off the Charlottes will move slowly northeastward towards the Alaska panhandle. Strong winds associated with it will continue to pound the B.C. coast. Wind speeds as high as 73 mph were reported on the north coast this morning and 45 in the south. The rain has now spread to most areas of the coast and snow was expected throughout the interior this afternoon.

Behind the storm strong southwesterly winds will continue to give cloudy skies and showers to the coast and a few snow flurries to the interior. However, partial clearing is expected on the lower mainland and in the interior late Thursday.

HALT ARMS SALE

'Cut Out This Bloody Trade'

OTTAWA (CP)—NDP member Grace MacInnis called on the government Tuesday night to halt Canadian arms shipments to United States and leave students free to protest the war in Vietnam.

"I think the government should act now to cut out this bloody trade—and I use the word 'bloody' advisely—which is blasting the very life out of the people of Vietnam," the member for Vancouver-Kingsway told the Commons.

She read a Canadian Press report quoting Transport Minister Hellyer as telling a student group in Toronto Nov. 3 to "be careful not to become too great moralists" over the Vietnam war.

The report quoted Mr. Hellyer as saying to one student questioner that part of his university educations was being paid for by the sale of Canadian goods, including arms, to the U.S.

Mr. Hellyer later replied that the report had taken a single sentence out of a long and reasoned reply and that "there was no real relationship whatever between what appeared in the newspaper and the gist of my reply."

He said he had cautioned the questioner as part of his answer that "it was very difficult to know where to draw the line with respect to these complex matters when all the world is slightly inconsistent and all parties are slightly inconsistent, and people have great difficulty in sorting out in their minds the position of the demarcation line between what is right and what is wrong, and when, between black and white, there are many shades."

Mrs. MacInnis said in her earlier statement that arms sales to the U.S. should be halted to leave students with clean hands and clean minds.

"If sales of arms to the U.S. are indeed helping to pay for their education we should act in such a way as to leave the students free to protest about this thing which concerns each one of us . . ."

DIVORCE BILL IN SECOND READING

'Product of Social Pressure'

By HENRY HEALD

OTTAWA (CP)—The first major revision in Canada's divorce laws to come before Parliament in nearly a century was described by Justice Minister Trudeau in the Commons Tuesday as "the product of a social pressure that has been building up over the years."

The bill, the product of two years of study by a joint Senate-Commons committee, embodies the principle of marriage breakdown, but spells it out with specific grounds that can be assessed in regular court procedure.

Mr. Trudeau, introducing second reading stage, said the government must study the effects of the bill on marriage. An important aspect would be the continuing consultation with the provinces.

The bill broadens the grounds for divorce from the sole ground of adultery to include bigamy, physical or mental cruelty, sodomy, bestiality, rape and homosexuality.

Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax) congratulated the minister for "not falling into the trap" of accepting unconditional marraige breakdown as grounds for divorce.

He said the last attempt to reform Canadian divorce law was a Senate bill more than a quarter-century ago which had been allowed to die in the Commons.

He said in some instances churches had been prepared to go farther with divorce reform than the bill proposes.

The provincial supreme courts or superior courts were chosen to deal with divorce as they were the ones dealing with basic human rights. Provincial rules of evidence would apply and differing rules of divorce and child support were taken into consideration.

Mr. Trudeau said there was no attempt to change the Quebec Civic Code position on legal separation and people in that province could still apply to the civil courts for a separation if they prefer.

Both Mr. Trudeau and the prime minister said there would not be a free vote on the bill itself.

"This is a government bill and should be treated as such," Mr. Pearson said in reply to a question earlier in the day.

Alcide Simard (Creditiste—Lac St. Jean) argued that marriage is a divine institution and only the death of a spouse could break it.

Mr. Trudeau interjected that the Canadian Catholic Conference had come out in favor of the current bill to overhaul divorce law, and added that members of the conference are "pretty good Christians."

Debate on the divorce bill will be set aside for a few days as the Commons turns today to the debate on Finance Minister Sharp's budget presented last Thursday.

NAIL REMOVED FROM HEART IN S. AFRICA

JOHANNESBURG UPI) — South African doctors removed a nail nearly three inches long from a man's heart Monday in a 90-minute operation which doctors said probably saved his life.

Medical sources said the nail was possibly the largest object ever successfully removed from a human heart.

The man was identified as D. S. Brough, 39, of Johannesburg. He was struck in the chest by the nail while working with a pneumatic drill. He collapsed and was taken to a clinic, but appeared normal at first examination.

Doctors said today that only after an X-ray was the nail spotted. Both ends of the nail were protruding. Doctors said as long as the nail did not move, Brough would be in no danger, but even a slight shift could bring on a fatal hemorrhage.

Carmichael Gets French Visa

PARIS (Reuters) — French authorities today decided to allow Black Power leader Stokely Carmichael into France after holding him overnight at Orly Airport, official sources said.

The sources said Carmichael was granted a three-month visa which could be extended later if he asked.

Carmichael was stopped at immigration when he flew in from Stockholm Tuesday night and an interior ministry spokesman said authorities decided his presence in France was undesirable.

Airport sources said police earlier refused to put Carmichael on a flight to Algiers when he told them he did not have enough money to pay the fare.

RETURN SON TO PRIEST ASKS WORRIED FATHER

VERSAILLES, France (Reuters)—The father of a frail seven-year-old boy missing since noon Monday has called on the kidnapper to hand his son to a priest as police tried to reconstruct the crime.

"I agree to give the kidnapper the ransom they want," defence ministry official Jacques Maillard said. "I will do anything they want of me. All I ask is that they give me back may son."

Haggard after a sleepless night, he said he fears the fog and cold might damage the health of his son.

For More Liberal Divorce

CANADA'S NEW DIVORCE bill has been warmly welcomed both within Parliament and outside. The conditions under which Canadians have been able to petition for divorce — basically, proof of a spouse's adultery—are retained but new provisions are added. Among the latter is proof of a breakdown in the marriage. This, however, is restricted to certain circumstances which narrow the application of the general term.

Among them is imprisonment of a spouse for a certain period of time; gross addiction to alcohol or narcotics with little hope of rehabilitation; refusal to consummate the marriage or inability to do so because of illness or disability for at least one year; separation because of desertion for at least five years and other separation of not less than three years.

The bill falls short of a recognition that some marriages become intolerable simply because of the irreconcilable incompatibility of the partners. But there is provision for divorce on the grounds of physical or mental cruelty, and of specified forms of sexual irregularity not previously listed.

The government has taken particular pains to avoid introducing any grounds which might lead to dissolution of a marriage for reasons that could be considered frivolous. It has also written into the bill provisions designed to effect reconciliation between estranged couples wherever possible, and it has shown prime concern for the welfare of children who are the product of such marriages.

Given the expected assent, the bill will establish law in matrimonial matters greatly superior to that which has been in effect. In this respect, the government is catching up to informed popular thought on divorce—and for this everyone should be grateful.

The advance has been made politically possible by the changing views of Quebec which are much altered from what they were a decade ago. In particular, the Roman Catholic Church has become more permissive in this respect, taking the position that while divorce cannot be condoned for members of its faith, the Church will not try to impose sanctions on other persons.

The new legislation will do much to relieve the courts of the problem of collusion, whereby manufactured evidence was used to support divorce claims on the grounds of adultery. Respect for the law should be correspondingly enhanced. And substitution of the Exchequer Court to handle Quebec and Newfoundland divorce cases will rid Parliament of its present inappropriate duty.

The new legislation, although still falling short of the more liberal treatment proposed by some members of Parliament, is an improvement in every respect.

In the Fine Print

THE PROPOSED GENEROSITY of the rich industrial countries toward the under-developed nations is spelled out magnificently in a communique from a meeting of the Organization for Economic Co-Operation and Development, of which Canada is a member. But the recipients of OECD largesse would do well to read the fine print before they start rejoicing.

As amplified by the United States Under-Secretary of State, Mr. Eugene Rostow, the communique says that the OECD nations will undertake to "eliminate the danger of dividing the world into north-south economic blocs." The basic negotiating position of the wealthy nations in the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development next year will be a general, non-reciprocal cut in tariffs on imports of manufactured and semi-manufactured products from the developing countries.

Then comes the fine print. The 21 OECD countries retain the right to cut off imports if they endanger domestic production. This can be done either by removing the tariff preferences or by imposing import quotas. In other words, the under-developed nations will be allowed to compete in the wealthy countries with their manufactured and semi-manufactured goods — not raw materials, of course—so long as they remain non-competitive.

Mr. Rostow hailed the agreement as the "next step in international trade after the Kennedy Round" which, as the less advanced nations complained, was tailored almost exclusively for the big industrial producers. But it is difficult to see how the under-developed countries will benefit greatly if any OECD country can arbitrarily cut off imports when they prove economically or politically embarrassing.

One has only to recall the great surge of protectionist sentiment in the United States recently — a sentiment which has always been and remains strong in Canada — to see how precarious the situation could be. What under-developed country could, or would, raise the necessary capital for industrial production for export when the market could be cut off by the stroke of a pen?

It Used to Be a Sporting Game

ROWDINESS AND VANDALISM have apparently reached the proportions of riot among some spectators of professional soccer in Britain and in other parts of the world. As a result, a number of fans and players have been fined for violence.

It may be unrealistic to criticize such developments as the antithesis of sportsmanship, since professional soccer is a business quite as much as a game to those who play for pay, and to many spectators an entertainment rather than a sport.

Even apart from the spirit of sport, such behavior cannot be condoned. In what other business, other than athletic contests, is violence acceptable, or what other audience feels itself entitled to go on a rampage following a performance?

The situation in Britain, where strict disciplinary action is being taken, is not a local phenomenon with purely local repercussions. England, in recent years, has regained soccer supremacy. It sets the example. Among young teams in other parts of the world, that example cannot be allowed to establish excuse for mob action, particularly among amateurs where the game is still regarded as sport.

A Louder Hello for Dolly

It is difficult, writes one enthusiastic reviewer of the new all-Negro version of the long-running musical hit, "to say whether this show is made for her or she makes it her own." If Pearl Bailey is the acknowledged gem of the production, the success of the show in its present form rests on the material and the performers, all of whom give it a verve, vigor and professionalism meriting the reception, the reviewer adds.

These are cheering words to a world that hears so frequently of the continuing struggle by the Negro to gain recognition and rights in the United States. The success of this "Hello Dolly" apparently does not rest on the exotic appeal of an all-black cast. The show rides the crest of popularity because its substance and cast are so good. The company just happens to be Negro.

FROM NEW DELHI — By CHARLES BARTLETT

Faulty Blocks in Containment's Wall

THE containment of Chinese Communism in Asia is an exasperatingly difficult concept to grasp because none of the pieces of the wall fit neatly together. Some of the most thoughtful men in the Johnson administration, particularly Robert McNamara, consider the security of India to be the crucial justification for the involvement of Vietnam.

Bartlett

They regard the 500 million Indians, who outnumber the combined populations of Africa and South America, as the key to Asia and they fear that if the Vietcong make their penetration stick, the subcontinent will crumble inevitably into Communist hands. Similarly if India falls of its own weight, the sacrifices in Vietnam will have been useless.

But the Indians are the first to reject this link between their fate and the war in Southeast Asia. Prime Minister Gandhi constantly risks her tenuous relationship with President Johnson to declare her distaste for the war. Young Indians assail the American visitor with complaints that the United States is intervening in a civil war.

It is difficult to understand why the Indians fail to see the interrelationship. Their generals frequently argue that Washington should give more weight to the allocation of military aid to the length of the Sino-Indian frontier. They already have an incipient guerrilla problem of their own in Assam, a state dangerously vulnerable to Chinese penetration.

Attack Risk via Burma

Moreover the Indians are increasingly apprehensive that the Chinese will launch an invasion of neighboring Burma, the softest sector of the Asian underbelly. The Indians warn that if this happens, concern for their own security will oblige them to go to war. And while they insist their army can handle the Chinese ground forces, they concede they will need air support from a friend, presumably the United States.

The Indians are reluctant to ask Washington for a flat commitment to respond with airpower in these circumstances. They suspect they will be turned down and it is hardly consistent to seek a pledge of air support in Burma while they criticize the deployment of American aircraft in Vietnam.

The Thais share a long border with Burma and Thailand would be equally menaced if Burma were invaded. But top Thai officials show no alarm at Burma's vulnerability. They seem in fact somewhat pleased that the homeland of Secretary-General U Thant, who has annoyed them by diagnosing South Vietnam's problem as an internal uprising, should be troubled by the same symptoms.

The Thais do not behave like a nation expecting to fight a major land war. Their defence expenditures total only three per cent of their national income and they have filled only 80,000 of 120,000 billets authorized for the army. Since they have explicit commitments from Washington, they will rely heavily on U.S. help if an invasion of Burma develops.

The picture is further complicated by Prince Sihanouk of Cambodia, who views the North Vietnamese as a more immediate threat than the Chinese. He is counting on the American presence in Asia to deter China but he heartily opposes the effort in Vietnam because he believes that it will serve ultimately to discourage America's attention to Asia and inflame the aggressive spirit of the North Vietnamese.

The Indonesians discount the American role in Vietnam as even a partial cause of their success in routing Communism at home. In fact Vice-President Humphrey found it necessary two weeks ago to reassure the ruling generals that the Johnson administration does not consider their victory a by-product of the stand in Vietnam. They were angry at Washington's instinct to take part of the credit.

It is easy to forgive these nations for being obsessed with their own problems. They have all freshly emerged from colonialism or worse and they find it hard to subordinate their self-concerns to a continental strategy.

They have learned how to count on the United States before they learned how to share the give-and-take of an alliance. Their uncomfortable awareness that the American people are impatient with them is the best hope that they will quickly learn to think in larger and more realistic terms.

FROM STOCKHOLM — By ROLAND HUNTFORD

Pressure on Scandinavia

FRENCH President Charles de Gaulle's rejection of the British application to join the Common Market has at least pleased the General's new friends in Eastern Europe in their campaign against the European Economic Community. The Soviet Union and her allies have been telling the Scandinavian countries that their interests do not lie in following Britain into the Common Market. On the very day of the General's press conference, in fact, Poland was trying to scare off Sweden. In Warsaw Tage Erlander, the prime minister, was told by the secretary general of the Polish Communist Party, Wladyslaw Gomulka, that membership would jeopardize Swedish neutrality, and that if Sweden wanted to remain neutral she could not enter the Common Market.

This was diplomatic blackmail. The Swedes, who economically need to enter EEC, nevertheless fear the danger to their neutrality. Although they never say so, either officially or privately, they leave the impression that they are not so much concerned about the possible effects of the Treaty of Rome on their foreign policy, as about the suspicions of the Soviet Union. When Britain made her recent application to Brussels the Swedes followed with a tame request for discussions on a form of membership which would leave their neutrality intact.

Clearly their hope was that the Russian suspicions could be assuaged. But Gomulka's statement will have disabused them. At least the General's veto of Britain has given them a breathing space, during which they will be spared the necessity of making any decisions.

The Poles have been running Moscow's errands in this matter. Adam Rapacki, the Polish foreign minister, had hinted to the Danes during a recent visit to Copenhagen that the EEC by its external tariffs only served to consolidate the division of Europe. Denmark would benefit more by building up trade with the East, said Rapacki.

If Sweden needs the EEC market, then Denmark is virtually dependent on it. In consequence the Danes have been much more enthusiastic about membership and more disappointed over General de Gaulle's veto. Sweden is concerned with placing industrial exports which, in a pinch, could be sold elsewhere, but Denmark depends on the West German provinces across her border to absorb her agricultural products, for which alternative markets are extremely hard to find.

This explains why Denmark has tied her application to that of Great Britain. When the British made their application in Brussels, the Danes tabled theirs the same day. Now, following Britain, the Danes say that they refuse to take "no" for an answer.

Danish Difficulty

Denmark, unlike Sweden, is not neutral but a member of NATO, which proves the principal line of pressure used by the Russians in the Baltic on the Swedes and the Finns. Nevertheless, the Danes face sufficient economic difficulties to encourage Eastern European blandishments.

Rapacki's line in Copenhagen was but the continuation of a long series of hints put out by the Russians and the Poles. They suggested that Denmark would find ready markets in the East for ships and farm products that were becoming harder to place either at home or in Western European countries. As French resistance to Britain's Common Market membership and the admission of small countries became more apparent, so has the Russian and Polish campaign mounted in Denmark and Sweden.

Looking Back

From the Times, Dec. 6, 1907.

Bituminous coal fields which promise to rival those of the Crow's Nest Pass district in size and importance have been discovered on Bear River, in the northern part of the Cariboo district, according to J. Wendle.

They are situated ten miles from the Grant Canyon of the Fraser River and are located on the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, and 100 miles northwest of Barkerville.

They represent the first coal lands ever discovered in northern Cariboo, and will be of great economic importance.

Think as Canadians

Speaking as a former trade unionist and as a member of the New Democratic Party, it seems to me I would not be acting as a responsible member of parliament, at a time when our economy is being endangered by lockouts, strikes and disagreements on interpretation, were I not to say that now is the time to tell everyone in Canada individually and collectively that we have to think more as Canadians and less as individual groups expressing their selfish interest.

Saanich Action

In rebuttal of criticisms of the Saanich Action Committee we present the following statement of policy:

The Saanich Action Committee has no political motivation. The committee neither sponsors nor supports political candidates.

The committee is currently examining through sub-committees public transportation, sewage disposal, garbage disposal, and also the co-ordination of all-candidate meetings for the current election.

We are encouraging fast action by Saanich Council in these areas and have already shown our willingness to assist the council in arousing public interest by publishing photographs of the resident rat population at the Hartland Road garbage dump.—R. B. H. Ralfs, President, 5024 Echo Drive.

Excellent

May I congratulate the cast of "Who's Afraid of Virgina Woolf" at the Langham Court Theatre, on an excellent performance? No matter what the "experts" say, none could have done better! Not even Taylor and Burton. Of course they had the poorer medium. Plays dealing in psychadalia (my own coined word) demand Live theatre.

I'm sure Helen Smith would make an excellent "Kate" in "The Taming of the Shrew."—(Miss) J. Sweet, 435 Michigan.

North Saanich Election

Councillor Davis, in his stand on the amalgamation issue, correctly sensed the majority view and can seek re-election to the North Saanich council on his record. This week he, and candidates Nash, Lake and Taylor, offered us a platform without tears or fears—sensible zoning, local-level control of our future, tax base reform and an end to closed council sessions.

These men are not afraid to be specific. Their platform affects us all—such definite, distinctly formulated aims will have a favorable effect on the welfare of the whole community.—J. Burt-Smith, 10642 Madrona Drive; Miss E. M. Ewens, 671 Downey; A. W. Denley, 559 Downey; J. B. Denley, 559 Downey; R. H. Payne, 10974 Madrona.

A Play on Pride?

I think the idea of the recent City March and the purpose of the march was admirable. This does not, however, excuse the lack of thought and sense of the organizers. They played on the pride and stubbornness of the very young; as a result, many of these young marchers must have suffered for a week and some may even have a permanent injury. I am sure that many of the parents will agree with me.

I believe that the same result would have been achieved if the organizers had all persons 16 and under entered in teams of six. In this way, each member of the relay team could have been sponsored and the distance achieved by that team used as the individual achievement.—Alex Gray, 517 Comerford St.

Tribute From Calgary

May a Calgarian proffer hearty congratulations on the splendid showing made by Victorians in the "Miles for Millions" march. Good friends of mine in your fair city have generously sent me cuttings from "The Times" and it seems quite evident that, on the basis of population, you have outstripped us.

Further, as in Calgary, not by any means the least heart-warming aspect of the hike has been the tremendous response from the much-maligned "teen-agers"—once the chips were down.—Lawrence Tyrrell, 527 - 32nd St. W., Calgary.

By What Authority

With reference to a report in the Times of November 16, stating that representatives of about 30 unions joined the picket line at McCarter Shingle and Snake Ltd. to show solidarity with 17 striking employees (with the approval of the Victoria Labour Council), it is also stated that a meeting of unions will be held shortly to discuss inter alia "the impact of automation on the industry in general." A commonsense and very obvious answer to that is that automation is intended to reduce costs with resulting benefits to both capital and labor.

Just when and from what source did labor obtain the authority to question anyone, or group, as to how they would use their capital?

Automation has been developing for a number of years for the obvious reason that the less manufactured goods cost the larger the market for them, with greater benefit to the country as a whole through enabling it to meet competition in foreign markets. In making it difficult for this advantage to proceed labor is simply cutting its own throat.

The writer, through early personal experience, is entirely in favor of labor unions as a protection for the working man from exploitation, but during the last 50 years, particularly the last 20, during a period of prosperity in Canada, unions in this country, largely under foreign leadership, have carried their demands for higher wages to the point that threatens exports necessary to maintain a sound balance of trade.

Granted that we are alongside a large and prosperous neighbor, therefore influenced to a great extent by their economy, there is no excuse for endeavoring to "keep up with the Jones."

If this country is to remain independently Canadian it is high time that labor in its own interests assisted in keeping prices down instead of being satellites to a great extent of another country whose interest is naturally to eliminate competition as much as possible by assisting to raise the cost of goods produced by others, where they have the influence to do so.—Observer.

FUTURE OF CONFEDERATION

Toronto and Montreal: 'A Toll of Two Cities'

By MAXWELL COHEN

(This is the first of two articles by Prof. Cohen, dean of the school of law at McGill University, on the impact of the recent meeting of the Estates General of Quebec and the Confederation of Tomorrow premiers' conference.)

The Estates General in Montreal and the Robarts Conference in Toronto together have drawn dramatically some of the outlines of the federal future and the price that will have to be paid for it—a kind of toll of two cities.

But while Montreal and Toronto were the principal forums for these recent "markings," two other cities made felt their presence — Ottawa, of course, and Paris, out-of-course.

No decisions could be made, or principles evolved, that did not remember the primary and consenting constitutional role of the federal government. But no assessment of the Quebec, French-speaking mood could be fashioned that did not remember, too, how powerful was the Paris eminence whose grey provocations colored the Canadian debate, lending distant, if little, enchantment to the future view.

All Involved

Montreal and Toronto, Ottawa and Paris, now are all sharing directly and indirectly in the emerging forms being shaped to reconstruct a politically viable Canada. What, therefore, have these two conferences demonstrated despite the necessary silence of Ottawa and the unnecessary intervention of Paris?

It is clear now that Mr. Pearson was entirely correct to have withstood the temptation of participating directly in these essentially interprovincial proceedings. They could not have had the particular quality of candor among "unequal" equals that marked the argument.

Equally, the Estates General in Montreal were wise to have invited French-Canadians from other provinces but no English-Canadians from Quebec — thus providing a family forum where the brutal truths of domestic frustration, and the manufactured myths of real or fancied "injustices" could be discussed without inhibition.

Enthusiasm

The Estates General demonstrated beyond debate that whether organized by the St. John Baptiste Society with its old and new nationalists, or packed with semi-separatist delegates from Quebec pledged to "independentiste" resolutions in advance, there was yet enough enthusiasm for the Levesque brand of "sovereignty" to make clear that a new power-base was emerging for those who were determined to alter Confederation, and fundamentally.

It is not easy to judge the extent to which the voting arithmetic of the Conference would reflect Quebec in any possible referendum or election. It is evident, however, that the spectrum of political choices, moving ever farther away from the present federal system, now has broadened to embrace persons and policies from Bourgault to Levesque, from "particular status" to outright independence.

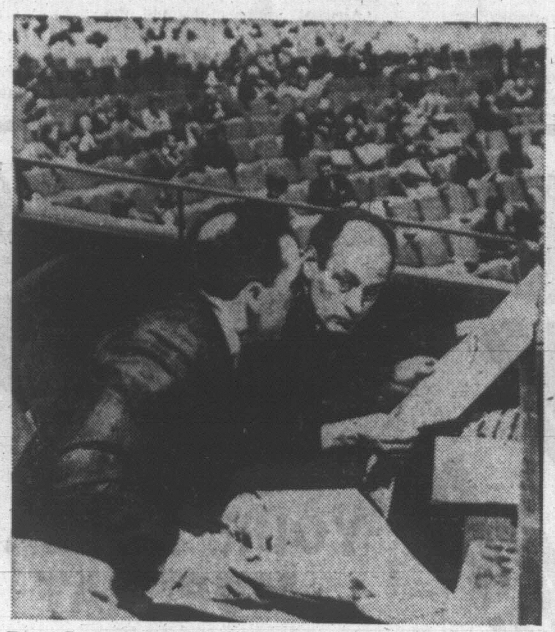
This means that some successful and attuned leader, such as Rene Levesque, might find, in the mood and sampling provided by the Estates General, an outline of his own political prospects. And even if it is arguable that the Estates General was substantially biased in the manner under which delegates were selected and resolutions drafted and adopted, it is nevertheless equally true that the whole effort evoked a response from press and province more enthusiastic than even moderates such as Claude Ryan had believed possible only a few days before.

Doctrinal Notes

Indeed, it is possible that for the moment the voting arithmetic is less significant than the tone of the doctrinal notes struck, reverberating through all the parties, through all the positions now being evolved within Quebec.

For it must be remembered that the central debate continues to be within the French-speaking family of Quebec, with French-Canadians outside the province linked to the dialogue but not really involved seriously as debaters.

At the same time, the English-speaking minority of Quebec, a vigorous, if fearful, one-fifth of the province, continues to be almost completely ignored, deliberately by the separatists and unconsciously by almost all others; while Ottawa and the provinces are more remote antagonists with whom no dialogue but only final negotiations are possible or desirable.



Rene Levesque (above right) confers with one of his organizers during the Estates General of Quebec meeting in Montreal last week. Will the "independentiste" enthusiasm shown by the delegates provide a power base for the former Liberal who broke from his party on the issue of sovereignty?

If the non-Quebec Canadian often was appalled at the "independentiste" tone of the Estates General, it was because the francophone mood now is increasingly toward self-assertion as a Quebec majority and not accommodation as a Canadian minority. Hence the psychology of French-Canadians in Ontario or Manitoba or even in New Brunswick, essentially an accommodation attitude, increasingly becomes out of touch, and possibly out of sympathy, with the aggressive assertiveness of these Quebec francophones whose political dynamics are now energized by a majority and exclusivist psychology.

'Sovereignty'

Finally, the Montreal conference resolutions tell their own story of a determined rejection of any political solution short of an autonomy that is for all practical purposes the "sovereignty" of an associate state with little left to a central government in the main cultural, economic, industrial, agricultural, and social spheres.

Certainly the resolution on the status of the French language represents a radical attempt to confine the English language in Quebec to use and transmission only within the limited life of English educational institutions and only as a secondary instrument of general and commercial communication.

Although the Estates General made efforts to assert Quebec's interest in the preservation of language and school rights for French-Canadians throughout Canada, the main preoccupation was with an insistence on shaping Quebec itself. That shape would be essentially "independent," barely tolerant of "the English-speaking fact" in the Province, and not willing to permit the needs of French-Canadians elsewhere in Canada to limit the drive for self-determination in Quebec.

Mr. Robarts could not have foreseen that the Estates General would sound so uncomfortably indifferent to his search for unity or that General de Gaulle would have given his remote blessing to their call for self-determination. Yet it was, in some respects, singularly fortuitous that the two conferences should have been so linked together by time.

Mr. Daniel Johnson thus came to Toronto forewarned in two directions. At his rear were the recent resolutions and his own party extremists. It took courage to be prepared to talk about Quebec's needs and demands and the future of Confederation with the knowledge that if he were not daring enough he would be caught by his more demanding antagonists in Quebec, and if he were too extreme he would meet with cold comfort from fellow premiers and prime ministers, most of whom were essentially unprepared for the driving reality that is the New Quebec.

Indeed, it is now clear that the kind of demands put forward by the Estates General were of a magnitude for which Mr. Bennett (or Mr. Bonner, Mr. Manning, Mr. Thatcher, and Mr. Smallwood were entirely unready.

Obtuseness

Altogether apart from Mr. Manning's blunt, not to say gauche, equating of French-Canadians in Alberta, their language and school rights, with all other ethnic minorities — and Mr. Bonner's and Mr. Smallwood's insistence that economic well-being was the real issue rather than the nature of Confederation — there was a lack of feeling, an obtuseness on their part in those first two days of the Conference that could only have come either from bad briefing or plain indifference.

Indeed, it is arguable that after the last six years of explosive evidence reverberating from inside Quebec and from Quebec-Ottawa relations, from the hearings before the B and B Commission and from its first report, from the politics of Rene Levesque, and from the reception given to General de Gaulle, it should have been impossible for any English-speaking leader not to be aware of the profound crisis of "soul" engaging Quebec and expressing itself in constitutional, symbolic, and other demands.

Who's Afraid of Iron Mountain?

("Report from Iron Mountain on the Possibility and Desirability of Peace," introduction material by Leonard C. Lewis, Dial Press).

The trouble with think tanks is much the same as with fish tanks. The vision from the inside out, fishes will tell you, is blurred to the point of utter distortion.

The fishy Study Group, pontificating on the "possibility and desirability of peace" in the nuclear caves of Iron Mountain, thus failed to see the possibility and desirability of a golden mountain in a great society at peace.

Frankly, I am not as shocked by the conclusion of the recently published Iron Mountain Report as its anonymous authors insist we should be.

They met, in the event you have missed this strange document published both as a book and as an article in Esquire magazine, "in an underground nuclear hideout built into a mountain and used by hundreds of large American corporations" for storage and substitute corporate headquarters in case of an attack.

War Needed

They concluded, in brief, that an outbreak of lasting peace and bona fide world disarmament, even if it could be attained, "would almost certainly not be in the best interests of a stable society." and that our present war system should therefore be maintained even under the threat of peace.

This does not shock me because, after all, my generation is by now uncomfortably accustomed to a state of almost perpetual war and we all fear the unknown.

It must be acknowledged that it is extremely difficult to convert a poison gas factory into deodorant plant, what with costly retraining and the likely need for a different labor union and different marketing techniques. Without organized violence and a nuclear armament race, furthermore, TV plays would be even more insipid (a point, incidentally, the Iron Mountaineers have completely overlooked).

What is more, monuments to heroes of peace and labor, as Soviet sculptors have proven, are even more pompous than monuments to war heroes. And peace literature has yet to produce a Hemingway. Besides, that whole report must be a hoax.

What does shock me is the statement that a serious attempt — an attempt that would go significantly beyond our present efforts to improve our housing, urban development, health, education, welfare and transportation is not, as conventional wisdom assumes, too expensive.

Peace Too Cheap

"As an economic substitute for war," says the report, "it is inadequate because it would be far too cheap."

Now, come you anonymous hoaxers, if that's what you are! Where is your imagination? You seem just as barren of any joie de vivre, of any sense for real quality of life, as the authentic and all too well known tank divers, task force members and their computers.

You claim there were no holds barred in your peace game brainstorming. Yet, at the very first little hold, you are already barred and mentally blocked by the usual, bureaucratic "cost-benefit" syndrome!

The fault, quite obviously, lies with the composition of the 15-man study group. The Iron Mountain team consisted of the usual array of sociologists, economists, educators and scientists with a business man thrown in for down-to-earth anchorage. But there was no architect!

Louis Kahn, for instance, one of our most famous architects, recently told a building committee, which wanted a $5,000,000 cultural centre, that he could not have a real inspiration for anything under $35,000,000.

Up With Costs

Philip Johnson seems to insist that even toilet seats be made of selected and hand-carved Italian travertine. And the architects of a new Washington government building managed to design quite humdrum three-room office suites for $720,000 a piece. If any of them had been let into Iron Mountain, we could have jacked up the cost right there.

Instead, the study group quite obviously fed only the present "decent, safe and sanitary" housing standards into their computers. It never thought beyond dreary human filing cabinet apartments and suburban homes to permit itself visions of real communities, neighborhoods and new cities where children have ample playgrounds and day care centers; where teenagers find fun things to do; where mother can walk to do her shopping and father can get away for a glass of beer without mobilizing the power of 250 horses; where people can sit amidst greenery and flowers and enjoy fountains and sculptures and some public beauty and amenity.

And why couldn't we add pneumatic tubes, connecting every dwelling with the post office so we could get our mail a little faster and our poor postmen would not have to be bitten by dogs.

Garbage Program

Admittedly, this is no challenge to military-industrial research. So, how about a crash program on garbage disposal? We could begin with having chutes in every dwelling where you dump your wastes. They would be sucked through a metropolitan area-wide sewer system into an atomic disposal plant that would leave no trace or odor and, for all I care, convert the stuff into a new kind of vinyl. That would be one for the Rand Corporation.

The Hudson Institute could take it from there and extend the disposal system to industrial wastes, junk cars and soil, air and water pollution.

If the military technicians were to really put their system analysis to bear on the river and lakes pollution problem, they could surely come up with the hardware to purify every one, well enough so we could drink out of them. And they could do it within six years after P (for peace) Day.

We'd also want public transportation, but not the strap-hanging kind. After all, if we'd really want to spend money to keep the new industrial state humming and the affluent society affluent, we are entitled to be picked up at the nearest street corner by some free public conveyance, equipped with a smiling stewardess who would bring us coffee, tea or milk and the morning paper to our reserved lounge chair. The vehicle would soon hook on to a tunneled high speed train to rush us right to the office or golf course.

As we get ready for P-Day, there is also bound to be even more talk about building huge dymaxion domes over our cities to cut down on air pollution and heating and air conditioning bills. But the objective, remember, is not to save, but to spend. And with the expected advances in ecology we might even discover that natural air and the elements are good for people.

All this is, of course, just a beginning.

Literary Hoax Stirred Panic in White House

By LAURENCE STERN

WASHINGTON—The mystery of "Iron Mountain," one of Washington's most titillating literary guessing games in many an autumn book list, has finally been solved.

The author of this work, which has spread a trail of snickers and befuddlement through this gullible capital, is none other than Leonard C. Lewin, New York journalist. He wrote the introduction, he admits, but denies that he wrote the entire book. However, some of his closest friends have tattled on him.

Even though the mystery is dispelled, some of the public and private brouhaha generated by this delightful satirical work is worth the retelling.

For example, six weeks ago—as the event can be best fixed in time—galley proofs of the report found their way into the office of Walt W. Rostow, presidential special assistant for national security affairs. The White House had received tense queries from within the government about the origins of the document which propounded unspeakable, if not unthinkable, heterodoxies on the large issues of war and peace.

The gravity of the problem facing the President's national security advisers cannot be exaggerated. Here was a report that presumably had been chartered at the highest government level. It purported to represent the views of the nation's 15 most eminent scholars. And of course the entire enterprise was of such transcending importance that it was anonymous. Here were some of the conclusions:

"... Lasting peace, while not theoretically impossible, is probably unattainable; even if it could be achieved it would almost certainly not be in the best interest of a stable society to achieve it.

"... War has provided both ancient and modern societies with a dependable system for stabilizing and controlling national economies."

"... The permanent possibility of war is the foundation for stable government; it supplies the basis for general acceptance of political authority."

And so on.

The White House, through Rostow's staff, conducted an inquiry into the authenticity of the report. The national security advisers concluded, gratefully we might suspect, that it was a spurious work. Word was quietly passed within the White House and to those concerned sectors of the executive branch. Washington, once again, breathed more easily.

●

Nonetheless Iron Mountain became the subject of excited press speculation. It was acclaimed in the Wall Street Journal as an outstanding sample of the new genre of pseudonymous literature, a form of writing that flowers in times of political adversity—or even exile—for the pseudonymous author.

The Iron Mountain Security Corp. issued a press release denying that its New York State vaults were ever used by any such group as were described in the report.

The only claim of substance for the report's authenticity was made last Sunday in Book World magazine by the eminent psychometrist, Herschel McLandress, who confines the truth of his private identity—John Kenneth Galbraith, economist—to a tiny circle of relatives and friends in Cambridge, Mass. Clearly, though, what McLandress would avow Galbraith would, perforce, deny.

●

The plain fact is that if Lewin had not written the report with tongue in cheek then someone else would have belabored it into existence in traditional think-tank style—perhaps Herman Kahn, the ponderosa of unthinkable thoughts about nuclear war and peace. Kahn is director of the Hudson Institute, which lies in the environs of Iron Mountain.

Lewin's bogus report is such a rich spoof of the prose of the doomsday philosophers that the temptation to quote is irresistible. Here is the report on one alternative to warfare:

"Another possible surrogate for the control of potential enemies of society is the reintroduction, in some form consistent with modern technology and political processes, of slavery." In the same vein the Iron Mountain peace planners suggest the development of "blood games"—large scale human sacrifices designed to contain anti-social aggressive impulses.

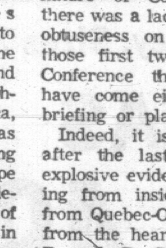
A Tide, Taken at the Flood, That Leads on to Misfortune

By ARTHUR STOTT

On our section of waterfront we are caught once more in an old battle—man against the sea. High tides, coinciding with gales from various quarters of the south, are piling in white water that smashes our shore installations, tears at banks and sends great logs plunging into our bulwarks.



Stott

Because some of us have never learned the futility of the effort, we arm ourselves with pike poles and try to fend off the in-rushing battering rams—at least for a time while daylight lasts. Then we resign ourselves to the inevitable as dusk falls, knowing that in the dark accidents are more likely and it is easier to repair a smashed slip than a fractured leg.

In the night we listen to the whistle of the gusts, the howl of the gale, the shotgun-pellet rattle of driven rain on the windows, and we hope. The storm is insensate. What it strikes it can destroy. But it lacks plan, lacks malice. Man's work can survive by luck, though not often by design.

The laboriously built platforms just above normal high tide are seldom constructed to meet the force of water lashed by a big storm. That is a force that pyramids beyond a layman's understanding. A wave four times higher than another does not strike with four times the impact. It can, depending on the speed at which it travels and its amplitude, deliver a blow 1,000 times as strong.

With that driving force carrying logs of a ton or two end-on, something usually gives.

We who have lived on the shore scarcely need the mathematics to convince us. But there are flukes in nature's behavior even in high water and high wind. We look for the flukes.

If the gale becomes our enemy it does not blind us to the grandeur of its fury—the piling grey-green water with crests whipped from the top of charging waves, the lace-like smother of white where off-shore reefs trip the in-surging combers, the maelstrom of wood whirled in its progress, and the impertinence of ducks, in the lee of a small foreland riding in flotilla and casual disinterest.

Nor does it halt a boy, his familiar beach transformed by storm, from essaying new feats of daring as he scrambles over rocks bared by a receding wave, clambers up steep banks, drenched by spindrift, and stands exultant above the sweep of water.

★ ★ ★

We watched such a youngster the other morning as he scaled natural barriers around the shoreline, his hat pinned up like an Anzac soldier, his cowboy's jeans tucked into high and heavy lace-up rubber boots, and his plastic rifle that doesn't shoot, held aloft. This was the counterpart of another boy I remember years ago. We followed his progress to a small cove where logs were jammed, saw him start to run a timber and, inevitably, we laughed when it shifted and he went in.

The youngster hauled himself out, clutching the plastic rifle, his hat still on his head. He gave me a big-toothed grin when I asked him how the water was.

"Not bad when you get out," he told me, with rueful cheer. And off he went home to change, but not without trying another challenging, wave-swept rock. Little to him the mathematics of force in storm water—and not much to me, either, since its power was overwhelming.

Come a fine, calm day, I'll be back down there, replacing the installations which I'll expect to go out in the next gale at high tide.

CHECK THESE TIME SAVING TELEPHONE TIPS

and make your Christmas happier

There is great joy in exchanging Christmas Greetings by telephone. So much so, in fact, that thousands and thousands of Canadians do so each year. As a result, telephone facilities become crowded with traffic and you may encounter delays in completing your calls, especially on Christmas Day.

You can avoid these delays. Just follow the telephone tips below:

FIRST Make a list now of those persons in distant places to whom you plan to place Christmas greetings calls this year. Jot down the area code and telephone number for each one. You can get these — without charge — through your operator, or by following instructions in your telephone directory for reaching out-of-province information directly.

Do this now so you won't have to fight heavy holiday traffic just to get your numbers. By being prepared, you'll save time with your Christmas calls, whether you dial them directly or assist the operator by giving her the number you want to reach.

SECOND Don't wait until Christmas Day itself, when circuits across Canada will be overloaded, to place all your calls. Spread them over the holiday season. Your family and friends will enjoy your calls just as much, and you'll be more certain of getting through without delay.

REMEMBER The low, night-time and holiday long-distance rates are in effect from 6 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 23, through to 4:30 a.m., Tuesday, Dec. 26.

And have a Happy Christmas.

REEVE LEE:

Financial Bind To Block Sewers

Central Saanich Reeve Gordon Lee said Tuesday there's no chance of any municipality in the capital region being able to finance a sewer scheme for at least a year or two.

The reeve, speaking at an all-candidates meeting at Brentwood, said the "chaotic condition of the bond and financial markets now make it impossible for municipalities to proceed with any major projects, such as sewage.

"This adverse condition to public borrowing is expected to remain with us for some time to come," he stated. "It could be one year, two years or even longer."

Central Saanich has on the books a $1,500,000 sewage referendum expected to be put to ratepayers early next year.

Saanich is considering an extension of its sewage system while the unorganized districts of Colwood, Langford and Metchosin have shown interest in installing a service for urban areas.

AFFECTS ALL

While the reeve in his address was specifically referring to the financing of the Central Saanich sewage scheme, he said after the meeting the problem of financing applied to all municipalities.

The problem, he said, has left municipalities in an impossible situation, unless there was assistance from senior governments.

"By assistance, I mean, the provision of the necessary funds by senior governments at a relatively low rate of interest for a period of not less than 30 years," he said.

He said so far both senior governments have given considerable attention, but only "lip service" to the necessity of combatting soil and air pollution.

He would ask council support next year to make strong representations to the senior governments to provide financial assistance for the Central Saanich sewage scheme, he said.

But when questioned on the possibility of obtaining assistance from senior governments, the reeve was pessimistic.

"Even senior governments are having difficulty borrowing money," he said. "But I think they should do something to help us or put up or shut up with existing soil pollution problems."

Pending solution of the financial problem, council candidate Ted Clayards, a staff officer of the Command Maritime Forces Pacific, suggested a benefit-cost sewage economic study for both study for both Central Saanich Central Saanich and the Greater Victoria area.

He pointed out the Greater Victoria sewer study was based on how much sewage can society get rid of for a certain fixed amount of money.

"What we really need to know is what pollution is costing society," he said. "Benefit-cost economic studies are now conducted for all major projects in other parts of the country."

"The trend today is to find the social costs as well," he added.

He said the University of Victoria had experts capable of conducting such a study.

Spring Worth $10,500

An Emily Carr painting entitled Spring was bought for $10,500 at Lund's auction rooms Tuesday.

City artist Brian Travers-Smith made the successful bid on behalf of "a private citizen in Victoria who wishes to remain anonymous at this time."

He said he acquired the painting on behalf of a client of his firm, Canada Trust. Bidding opened at $5,000 and Mr. Travers-Smith fought off keen competition from outside dealers.

Auctioneer Wilfred Lund sold the same painting in 1964 for $2,100.

Second highest price of the evening was $5,000 paid by a dealer for a Lawren Harris work entitled Upper Humber River.

Other Group of Seven works were a painting by J. E. H. McDonald which brought $1,900, one by A. Y. Jackson sold for $1,400.

★ ★ ★

Mr. Lund said the most active bidding came from six or seven dealers and a private collector from Vancouver. Tuesday night's total was $50,000 for just under 200 paintings.

"The sale had something for everyone and it covered a wide variety of artistic taste."

Majority of the sales were below $100.

Mr. Lund said his staff had been collecting material for the sale over the past six months and mail bids were received from as far away as Montreal.

It took almost three hours to dispose of the entire collection, with the longest bidding on the more inexpensive paintings.

Four-Flight Service to Vancouver Planned

City-based Victoria Flying Services plans four-flight daily service to and from Vancouver at $12 single and $16 return, operator William Sylvester told the air committee of the Canadian Transport Commission hearing Tuesday.

The run would include "request stops" at five Gulf Island points en route.

But a rival for the licence, Airwest Airlines, said the proposal was uneconomical because of the type of aircraft scheduled for use.

Mr. Sylvester said he would use a six or seven-passenger Beaver. The 40-minute ramp to ramp runs would be scheduled at 8 and 10 a.m. and 1 and 3 p.m. from Victoria with returns from Vancouver at 9 and 11 a.m. and 2 and 4 p.m.

Mr. Sylvester said he has planned the schedule on the basis of a 50 per cent pay load factor.

Airwest Airlines claimed the service would not be profitable even with a 65 per cent payload factor because of the cost of operating the Beaver aircraft.

It was also claimed Victoria Flying Services could not guarantee to keep to its schedule because of possible time lost in pickups from the Gulf Islands.

If the plane was to stop at all five Gulf Island Points to pick up passengers, it would spend five minutes at each point and thus add 25 minutes to the run.

Education Quality Dropping—Chemist

A District 63 school board candidate said Tuesday he is concerned with the quality of education in public schools.

Lannie King Yee, a chemist for the department of national defence, said the quality of education had dropped considerably in the past few years.

"My main purpose for seeking election on the board is to explore this matter fully," he said. "It is a subject which interests me and should be of concern to all parents."

He said he would like to see more electroninc visual aids used in schools.

He said the school board should explore the use of new construction materials which are now being used on buildings in other parts of the world.

"In my opinion costs could be reduced by at least 25 per cent if this was done," he said.

125 ATTEND

He was speaking at a Central Saanich all-candidates meeting in Brentwood Hall. About 125 attended, including six candidates seeking election on three vacant council seats.

Trustee Vernon Beaumont, an electrical engineer, urged ratepayers to support the $554,800 school building referendum.

He said the building program must go on if the quality of education is to be improved.

Council candidate Harold Andrew said a proposed new subdivision bylaw being completed is "absolutely necessary" for the proper development of the municipality.

He was supported by Coun. Philip Benn, postmaster at the Brentwood post office, who is seeking re-election.

"If we are going to lose our green pastures, let's make sure that our subdivisions are attractive," he said.

FIRM ZONING

William (Ted) E. Clayards, a newcomer to municipal politics, supported firm zoning policies to preserve the rural atmosphere of the municipality.

He also advocated a long-range plan for extending recreational facilities.

"Let us plan our recreational projects on a priority basis," he stated.

Albert K. Hemstreet, who was defeated last year after serving six years on council, sought election on his past record.

Coun. Charles W. Mollard, retired businessman, said he would continue to do his best to make central Saanich a better place to live in.

CONTROL POLLUTION

If elected, Peter Lazarz, 34, fur farmer and businessman, said he will submit to council a bylaw for regulating the installation and maintenance of plumbing and septic tanks in the municipality.

"This will aid to control future pollution from faulty installations," he said.

He also advocated a planned septic tank clean-out program to reduce pollution in the more populated areas.

"This can be done by municipal or tendered contract service and made available to those who have a sewerage problem at a minimum rate," he stated.

Schools Should Be Bilingual

OTTAWA (CP)—The right of parents to have their children educated in either English or French should be recognized in all educational systems, written into provincial law, and incorporated in the constitution, says the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

"Education is the front line of defence for the language and hence for the cultural existence of a people," it says in its report issued Tuesday night.

It recommends an amendment to Section 93, which deals with education, of the British North America Act to guarantee official recognition of both languages across Canada.

Suggests Guide

But the commission recommends the following amendment, in the form of an additional paragraph, as a guide:

"Every province shall establish and maintain elementary and secondary schools in which English is the sole or main language of instruction, and elementary and secondary schools in which French is the sole or main language of instruction, in bilingual districts and other appropriate areas under conditions to be determined by provincial law; but nothing in this section shall be deemed to prohibit schools in which English and French have equal importance as languages of instruction, or schools in which instruction may be given in some other language."

Section 93 has protected the educational rights of religious minorities but has failed to protect language rights, the report says.

One result has been "grave inequalities" in opportunities for French-speaking minorities to have an education in their mother tongue.

Linguistic equality was enshrined in Quebec's education system but not firmly guaranteed for the country as a whole.

"We recommend that the right of Canadian parents to have their children educated in the official language of their choice be recognized in the educational systems, the degree of implementation to depend on the concentration of the minority population."

The commission says this is basic to the more specific recommendations it will make in a later report devoted to education.

However, it does sketch now a proposed system.

It suggests that Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick, as "officially bilingual provinces," should agree jointly on norms for minority education.

Recognition

"In Ontario and New Brunswick, it is a matter of officially recognizing what now is unofficial practice, of adopting standard procedures for establishing these schools throughout the province."

Elsewhere, minority educational facilities under provincial jurisdiction would centre in the "bilingual districts" the report suggests should be established.

The commission "foresees a role" for Ottawa in helping meet provincial costs for such equivalent systems to provide teachers, texts, supervision, curriculums and so on.

This could be "a new dimension in the role of the federal government as the only political institution shared by all Canadians."

For scattered groups outside bilingual districts, the report suggests "a formal procedure by which a minority can assert its right to such a school." This would get around rejection by school boards of such applications.

It says provincial departments of education should formally state requirements and procedures for setting up minority-language schools for such groups.

Weekly Classes

For scattered minority families, a few separate classes weekly of instruction in the mother tongue might be provided. Boarding schools or television teaching also might be useful.

It was essential for cities to provide French-language educational facilities "for Francophones, who, without assurance that they can preserve their children's language, may rightly be reluctant to leave Quebec."

The cities would have a major role to play in the network of bilingual centres envisaged by the commission "to give the actual image of the dual nature of Canadian society."

It says the cost of administration "will be compensated for by the provision of facilities which will help attract and retain French-speaking citizens who might otherwise never come."

Another effect would be to stimulate and encourage English-speaking citizens interested in the French language and culture. It says this interest became evident during its hearings. Also evident was the fact that it was often frustrated by lack of facilities.

It notes as well that students in minority-language schools, both in Quebec and elsewhere, "need to acquire an adequate command of the language of the majority."

Partnership

Equal partnership for the French-speaking required a change of policy "from offering a minimum of education in their mother tongue to offering a maximum."

The report notes that even in the earliest days of British rule in Canada, English and French communities developed separate schools in their own languages.

The BNA Act in 1867 assigned control of education to the provinces but protected religious rights in education.

However, this didn't guarantee English and French as languages of instruction as things turned out. Now, a century later, there appeared to be an increasing tendency across Canada for French-speaking communities to separate the question of language from religious objectives.

The commission said it feels it is essential to promote establishment of French-language schools "independently of religious considerations."

Except in British Columbia and P.E.I., where there are no denominational schools, all provinces have recognized in varying degrees the principle of separate publicly-supported schools based on religion.

Where the language of instruction was concerned, provincial legislation was "often surprisingly inconclusive."

Neither French nor English was given special legal status in the legislation of the Atlantic Provinces, Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia.

The schools acts of the three Prairie provinces were exceptional in declaring English to be the official language of instruction.

Manitoba this year had amended its law to allow French as a language of instruction for up to half the school day, and Saskatchewan had done the same to a lesser extent.

In practice, Quebec had respected "an unwritten tradition that associated language rights with religious rights." In other provinces, things were different.

"Such opportunities as do exist have been achieved by the vigorous and persistent efforts of the French-speaking minority."

Ottawa Payroll Jumps

OTTAWA (CP) — The civil service payrooll for the first 11 months of the 1966-67 fiscal year, including payments to armed forces personnel, reached $1,933,000,000, up 13.2 per cent from the equivalent period in the previous year, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Monday. Total civilian employment was 365,800 by the end of February, 1967, DBS said in an advance report on a detailed study of federal government employment to be released early next year. The fiscal year ends March 31.

Woman Fined $75 For Shoplifting

Myrtle Knadle of 1910 Munn was fined $75 in central court Tuesday after she pleaded guilty to shoplifting.

Mrs. Knadle, a mother of seven, placed $30 worth of groceries in a shopping bag at the Shop-Easy Colwood Plaza Store and walked out without paying Oct. 21.

When stopped by two store employees, she produced a receipt for about $2 worth of groceries she had paid for.

NO GREAT SACRIFICES, SAYS B-B REPORT

'Triumph of Logic Over Emotion'

By PETER NEWMAN

OTTAWA — Ten sober men have written a sober report on the legal imperatives of recognizing the bilingual realities of this complicated confederation of ours.

The first volume of the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism is a triumph of logic over emotion. Its 14 recommendations represent the absolute rock-bottom minimum demands that French-Canadians must be granted, and fast.

Newman

If English-Canada rejects or even questions the commission's mild and eminently sensible conclusions, there'll be very little reason to believe that Canada can move very far into its second century.

The beauty of the commission's proposals is that neither French nor English-Canadians are being asked to make any great sacrifices—collectively or individually—for the sake of national unity.

To implement fully all of the commission's proposals, Quebec will only have to maintain and codify the rights it already grants its English-speaking minority.

For the English-speaking majority of the country, implementation of the commission's findings will require little more than making official what is already being done in most of the provinces affected. This will correct, in law, the injustices of the past and guard against narrow-mindedness in the future.

What the commission is demanding, in effect, is that French-speaking Canadians outside Quebec be granted the same rights now enjoyed by English-speaking Canadians in Quebec. If there's any drawback about all of this rationality and fair dealing, it's that Quebec's aspirations seem to have moved far beyond the stage where such retroactive justice will have much meaningful impact in deflecting the momentum of the province's growing separatist elements.

The unstated underlying message of the commission's volume—as of its preliminary report—is that it's English-Canada, not Quebec, which is holding back the formation of an individualistic bicultural society on the northern side of the 49th Parallel. The onus is now clearly on the nine provinces outside Quebec and on the federal government to move, and move quickly, toward the suggested legislative changes. The enlightened attitude of most premiers at last week's Confederation of Tomorrow conference and the support for the commission's recommendations already voiced by all of the party leaders in the Commons are a good omen.

The next step will be for federal-provincial agreement on the proposed constitutional changes to be taken up at the bill of rights conference next month.

The provinces — particularly Ontario and New Brunswick —will then have to pass their own relevant laws.

Although there are bound to be misinterpretations of what the commission is recommending, what it is most definitely not suggesting is that English Canadians rush off to their nearest Berlitz parlors to learn French. It notes that only 12 per cent of Canadians are now fully bilingual, and proposed nothing to increase that figure.

What it does recommend is that those Canadians who do speak Frecnh (and live outside Quebec) be given the chance of preserving their culture by being allowed to carry out their dealings with governments at all three levels in their own language.

"A bilingual country or province," the report notes, "is not a country or province where all the inhabitants must necessarily speak two languages; rather it is a country or province in which the principal public and private institutions must provide services in two languages to citizens, the vast majority of whom may very well be unilingual in either of the two languages."

This means nothing more than that Canadians of either French or English origin can expect to deal with officials in their own language. It is surely ridiculous, for example that at Sydney, N.S., there has not been a single French-speaking customs officer, even though it is the chief mainland port of entry for the island of St. Pierre and Miquelon, frequently visited by Quebec residents.

The current volume strengthens the stand of Daniel Johnson against the Estates General resolutions which, in effect, disenfranchised French-Canadians outside Quebec. The commission now takes the same view of Canada that the Quebec premier expressed in Toronto last week, when he called for an end to Quebec's "ghetto complex."

●

But the basic dilemma of how differently Canada's two societies view federalism remains to be solved. For English-Canadians, confederation is a process of bringing the various parts of the country together—its provinces and cultural groups—to form a Canadian nation.

Most French-Canadians view the process of federalism from the point of view of establishing defined rights, privileges and responsibilities for each of the nation's socities.

ONLY female member of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism is Gertrude M. Laing of Ottawa.

'TOO MUCH ENGLISH'

Truly Bilingual National Capital

OTTAWA (CP)—The "English cast of life" in Ottawa should be replaced by a truly bilingual national capital area in which both English and French Canada can feel at home, the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism urged Tuesday.

"Nowhere else in Canada is there a comparable concentration of Francophones who have so few language rights," its first report said.

In Ottawa "the French language is scarcely recognized officially in the provincial and municipal administrations."

A research report appended to the main document said Ottawa's civic board of control was the only public body in Canada that refused to co-operate with the royal commission.

TO STUDY AREA

Prime Minister Pearson announced Monday he has asked Ontario and Quebec to join the federal government in a study of "a truly national capital area, extending on both sides of the Ottawa River."

The royal commission report said the capital should demonstrate vividly that Canada is a country of two official languages and cultures.

One of the main obstacles to recruiting able French-Canadians for the federal civil service was "the present 'English' cast of life in Ottawa."

The royal commission suggested that the capital area consist of Ottawa, Eastview, Nepean Township, Gloucester Township and Rockcliffe Park on the Ontario side, and the communities of Hull, Gatineau, Pointe-Gatineau, Aylmer, Lucerne, Deschenes, Templeton and Templeton West on the Quebec side.

It called on the Ontario, Quebec and federal governments to develop a capital having these standards:

—English and French languages should have full equality of status throughout the area.

—All services should be available at all levels of public administration in the two languages.

—Use of both English and French should be permitted in the deliberations of all local government bodies; all bylaws and regulations should be recorded and printed in the two languages, and all important public documents and all administrative services should be available in both languages.

—All courts should permit pleadings in the two languages and lower courts should be equipped to function in both.

—Publicly-supported education should be as available in French as in English and should be of the same quality.

These People Wrote Report

OTTAWA (CP)—The royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism was officicially oppointed on July 19, 1963.

After an intensive round of public hearings across the country, it brought out an 85,000-word preliminary report, Feb. 25, 1965, saying a deeper gulf than most people realized divided French-speaking and English-speaking Canadians.

The first volume of its final report, issued Tuesday, dealt in about 100,000 words with Canada's official languages. The commission promised at least nine more reports on a wide range of subjects.

So far, the commission has cost $7,000,000.

There has been one change in the makeup of the commission since 1963,. Jean Marchand, now federal manpower minister, left Sept. 21, 1965, to enter politics. He was succeeded by Paul Lacoste, one of the original co-secretaries.

All 10 commissioners are bilingual.

Davidson Dunton, 55, president of Carleton University in Ottawa and formerly head of the CBC.

Other commissioners:

Rev. Clement Cormier, 57, an Acadian leader and former president of the French-language University of Moncton.

Paul Lacoste, 43, professor of law and philosophy at the University of Montreal and free-lance broadcaster.

Mrs. Stanley Laing, 62, British-born Calgary housewife and private French teacher, active in education and welfare organizations.

Jaroslav Rudnyckyj, 57, Ukrainian-born writer and chairman of the department of Slavic studies at the University of Manitoba at Winnipeg.

Paul Wyczynski, 46, Polish-born associate professor of literature at the University of Ottawa, author of four books on French-Canadian culture and literature.

'Other Languages Must Be Recognized'

OTTAWA (CP)—The first report of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism is unanimous, but two of the 10 commissioners express reservations on particular aspects of it.

Separate statements by Rev. Clement Cormier, former president of the University of Moncton, and J. B. Rudnyckyj, head of the department of Slavic studies at the University of Manitoba, are printed at the back of the report.

Father Cormier finds the commission's definition of official bilingualism too rigid. Mr. Rudnyckyj makes a case for constitutional recognition of regional languages, particularly German, Italian and Ukrainian.

In arriving at its definition, the commission says:

"... we shall call 'official' only the most firm and unequivocal provisions concerning language—that is, provisions promulgated by political authority and confirmed by statute.

"Thus, in our view, a language will be official only to the extent that it has received such legal protection.

"Official bilingualism—that is, the recognition of English and French as official languages—evolves from the sum of rights expressly guaranteed to English and French by laws protecting their use."

In a footnote, to which Father Cormier takes particular exception, the commission says its report applies the term officially bilingual to provinces only when the sum of language rights corresponds to those in its recommended constitutional amendment. At present, only Quebec province passes that test.

Father Cormier says the phrase ought to apply to any province accepting the language recommendations of the commission's first report.

"Census figures will help in determining the extent of services to be offered in the two languages," he says. "But the 'official' quality of the minority's language will derive essentially from an act of recognition by the political authority rather than from proportions or numbers abstracted from the census."

In the other statement, Mr. Rudnyckyj, a Ukrainian-born linguist, says the position of the regional languages in Canada is not adequately dealt with in the commission's suggested constitutional amendment.

RESTRICTIVE VIEW

He says quite a few Canadians of English and French origin believe that only the two official languages should be privileged to have constitutional recognition.

Recognition of the other ethnic languages in the country was vital, in his opinion, for their retention and further development, and reduction of discriminatory attitudes towards them.

Mr. Rudnyckyj proposes the addition of a further subsection to the constitutional amendment recommended by the commission, to provide that:

"... any language other than English and French used by 10 per cent or more of the population of an appropriate administrative district of a province or territory shall have the status of a regional language; the legislation of the provisions for regional languages shall be vested in the governments concerned."

The commission, on the other hand, is less specific, saying only that nothing in its recommended constitutional amendment "shall be taken to diminish or restrict the use, as established by present or future law or practice, of any other language in Canada."

In a later report, the commission plans to deal at length with the other ethnic groups and their contribution to Canada's cultural enrichment.

"... there is an objective need to recognize some extra privileges for the languages of ethnic groups in regions where there is a concentration of speakers of a particular mother tongue," Mr. Rudnyckyj says.

"I believe that the following languages are spoken by enough people to be considered: Eskimo-Indian in the Northwest Territories and Yukon, German and Ukrainian in the Prairie Provinces, Italian in the metropolitan areas of Toronto and Montreal.

CITE PRIVILEGES

These should be recognized as regional languages of Canada with the following provisions:

—Preference in education—as subjects or media of instruction at the elementary, high school and university levels, the latter to include establishment of federally-supported non-denominational regional universities.

—Preferred use in press, radio, television.

'Striking Resemblance Between Two'

OTTAWA (CP) — Some parts of the report of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism bear a striking resemblance to statements made by Premier Daniel Johnson of Quebec at the Confederation of Tomorrow conference in Toronto last week.

For instance, Mr. Johnson said: "We want to live in French in all parts of Canada."

The report: "Living in French must be made possible in every parts of Canada where there are enough French-speaking people."

Mr. Johnson said Quebec is asking for the same rights in other provinces that it gives its English-speaking minority.

The report: "At the moment Quebec is the only province in which the official-language minority receives full recognition. No matter what the historical or economic justification for this situation may be, it appears more and more of an anomaly.

"' This flagrant inequality must be corrected as soon as possible if we are really to achieve equal partnership."

Rodgers 'Critical'

GLENDALE, Calif. (UPI)—Folk singer Jimmie Rodgers remained in critical condition today, his condition unchanged since he underwent a 4½-hour operation Tuesday night to remove a blood clot on the brain.

Seven Regions Show Remarkable Vitality Retaining Language

OTTAWA (CP) — Seven regions outside Quebec where people of French origin form significant elements in the population come in for special analysis in the first report of the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism.

Three of the regions are in Ontario, two in Nova Scotia and one each in New Brunswick and Manitoba.

Together they account for 604,300 persons of French origin, 71 per cent of the French reported by the 1961 census to be resident outside of Quebec.

The royal commission found they have displayed a "remarkable vitality" in retaining the French language. Those living on the Ontario side of the Quebec border were up to 96 per cent French-speaking. But in the Windsor area, under the influence of the United States border area, retention of the French tongue was only 49 per cent.

The seven regions, in order of their French population:

● Northern and eastern New Brunswick where 208,000 of the 336,000 residents, or three of every five, are of French origin. They make up 80 per cent of the population in Gloucester, Kent and Madawaska counties and significant percentages in Northumberland, Restigouche, Victoria and Westmorland counties.

Loss of the French language in this region is almost negligible. Only 9,000 persons, or about four per cent, had become assimilated to English.

● Ontario's six counties along the Ottawa and St. Lawrence Rivers, comprising Carleton, Glengarry, Prescott, Renfrew, Russell and Stormont. Of a total population of 568,000 there are 186,000 of French origin, 155,000 of them still using the French language.

Density of the French-speaking community ranges from six per cent of the Renfrew population to 77 per cent in Russell and 83 per cent in Prescott. Retention of the French language is 84 per cent in the region.

● Northeastern Ontario where those of French origin count for 180,000 of the 494,000 residents of Algoma, Cochrane, Nipissing, Sudbury and Timiskaming districts. Those still speaking French number 151,000 and their proportion of the population ranges from 12 per cent in Algoma to 46 per cent in Cochrane and 27 in Timiskaming.

Regionally, 84 per cent have clung to their language. In Algoma retention has been 62 per cent.

● Digby and Yarmouth counties in Nova Scotia with 19,800 persons of French origin in a population of 43,600. The French language is retained by 15,000, or 76 per cent.

● Inverness and Richmond counties on Cape Breton Island where 11,600 of the 30,100 persons are of French origin and 9,800, or 84 per cent, still have French as their mother tongue.

● Essex and Kent counties at the southwestern tip of Ontario, an area with a total population of 348,000 in 1961. There are 65,000 persons of French origin but only 32,400 of these retain the language, one-third of them living in the auto centre of Windsor.

● Southeastern Manitoba, counting 54,200 of French origin with language-retention running as high as 76 per cent. Although they make up only six per cent of the region, those still speaking French are in highly-concentrated groups, with 13,400 in St. Boniface, comprising 36 per cent of its population, and another 27,900 in neighboring Winnipeg.

INDEPENDENCE WITHIN 4 YEARS

OTTAWA (CP) — Separatist MP Gilles Gregoire said Tuesday night Quebec will be independent by the time the federal government gets around to dealing with the recommendations of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

"That's nothing," he said in an interview, when asked about the royal commission's report released a few hours earlier.

"It's too late. This is a show of good faith, that's all, but in practice. ..."

The member for Lapointe, who sits as an independent, said the government would pass the report to a committee which would produce a white paper.

The white paper would be discussed by Parliament and sent to a Commons committee, which would produce recommendations on which a justice department committee would draft legislation. The legislation then would have to go through Parliament for approval.

"It will take about four years," Mr. Gregoire said. "By then, Quebec will be independent."

Share Trading Clamp Tightened

By AB KENT
Business Editor

A clamp on trading shares of Silverknife Mines Ltd. was reinforced this week by the provincial securities commission after some dealers continued to handle orders beyond a Vancouver Stock Exchange suspension.

Superintendent William Irwin ordered the exchange to stop trading Silverknife shares in the fourth week of November, pending examination of geological information about northern B.C. property once known as the Silver Tip claims.

The company had issued an interim statement as a result of a consulting engineer's report giving high mineral values, and projecting substantial operating profits. The statement had been passed by the securities commission.

Over-the-counter trading in Silverknife — which is carried by the Vancouver Stock Exchange unlisted section — and in Rodstrom Yellowknife Mines, which owns control of Silverknife, took a run upward for several days.

Some dealers respected the stock exchange suspension, but others continued to trade in the shares of Silverknife between themselves, resulting in the restraining order on Monday.

Mr. Irwin said a decision on Silverknife may be forthcoming in a day or two, but he pointed out the inquiry involves sifting through many technical documents.

To assist in obtaining a quick assessment the commission has engaged an independent firm to do some of the investigation.

Some further explanation is needed as a result of remarks Tuesday about a change in the application of 5 per cent sales tax to heavy equipment rentals for 30 days or more.

The provincial consumer taxation division has said the alteration brings B.C. into line with the practice in other provinces, while construction people and those in the equipment rental business protest "double taxation" which they say results.

It is possible that the government will collect more money as a result of the change, the tax people say.

But it is not correct to say that there will be double taxation, according to a tax spokesman.

Beginning last Friday, on new rental contracts, the 5 per cent tax is charged to the person renting the equipment, and the supplier merely collects it by adding it to the bill. No sales tax will be charged on pieces of equipment bought for rental purposes.

The charge of double taxation arises from the possibility that a machine on which tax has been paid at purchase and is on long-term lease may become idle with the expiration of contract, then re-leased under the new terms.

The equipment renting business could then argue that it must, according to the revised procedure, charge 5 per cent sales tax on a machine for which that tax had been paid at purchase.

To ameliorate such a situation, the tax division will consider a further adjustment, depending on the amount still owing on the original price and other factors.

It is pointed out that existing long-term contracts would not be affected by the new ruling; only new agreements entered into after Dec. 1.

It may be seen that where a machine has earned—through rentals—more money than it cost to buy originally, the government will gain more in tax under the new plan.

How the investment business works is being learned by groups of Greater Victoria high school students through a series of visits to a major brokerage firm.

The benefits are twofold, according to Richardson Securities of Canada local manager Bert Kennedy: students learn something about an important but often misunderstood area of business, and the firm may develop interest in students who are potential investment men.

The last groups who went to Richardson's board room on Douglas Street were from Mount Douglas High; the next will be from Oak Bay High.

Meanwhile, classes have an opportunity to see a documentary film on Toronto Stock Exchange, made available to the schools.

Youngsters get a briefing on general procedure in the investment business and see the special facilities that go with it, such as the stock quotation services, the news wire, the telex communications, the research aids, the sales, accounting and administration departments.

Mr. Kennedy says the opportunities are good. Where else can a young man with a general arts education start at about $5,000 a year and expect to double his income in three or four years?

White Pass Railway, Dynasty Sign Pact

The Vancouver-based White Pass and Yukon Corp. — a pioneer of the container system of shipping — has signed an agreement to haul 30,000 a tons a month of lead-zinc concentrates for Dynasty Explorations Ltd.

The contract is between White Pass and Dynasty's 40 per cent-owned affiliate, Anvil Mining Corp. of Los Angeles, and covers an initial period of eight years, starting in 1969.

From the mining operation in Ross River area, trucks will haul concentrates 230 miles to Whitehorse. From there, the White Pass rail line will transport materials the remaining 110 miles for loading aboard ship at Skagway, Alaska.

Thirty to 40 trucks will carry the concentrates for hauling by rail at a rate of 1,100 tons per day.

White Pass is expected to spend $10 million providing new trucks, railway equipment, repair and maintenance facilities and new staff. A $4 million bulk storage depot is part of the plan.

There is a possibility that future development will persuade White Pass to extend its railway from Whitehorse to a rail head near the mine.

Steel Companies Drop Merger Plans

WHEELING, W. Va. (AP)—Three steel companies have scrapped their plans to merge.

No explanation for the action was given by Interlake Steel Corp., Pittsburgh Steel Co. and Wheeling Steel Corp.

However, Wheeling and Pittsburgh said the decision does not change the relationship between them.

Changes Approved

VANCOUVER (CP)—Plans to enlarge the capitalization and and amend the articles of Western Exploration Co. Ltd., have been approved by a shareholders meeting.

The company was changed from a specially limited company to a limited company.

Capitalization was changed from 4,000,000 shares with a par value of 50 cents each to 15,000,000 shares of no par value.

The maximum price at which the shares can be issued was raised from 50 cents to $1. There are currently 2,675,240 shares outstanding and issued.

U.S. Steel Price Hikes Continue to Grow

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The latest round of U.S. steel price increases, put in effect in the face of government opposition, grew in scope today when the U.S. Steel Corp. raised its price of galvanized and aluminum-coated steel sheet $5 a ton.

It was the second line of products on which U.S. Steel, the leading producer, increased prices in less than a week.

U.S. Steel's action was triggered by Armco Steel Corp., which Tuesday fell in line with U.S. Steel's $5-per-ton price increase for cold rolled sheets and went further by increasing prices for hot rolled and galvanized sheet and strip.

U.S. Steel did not raise the price of hot rolled, but it did follow Armco in reducing the price of long terne sheet—lead coated sheet used in making gasoline tanks—by $3 a ton. This move was triggered by competition from the aluminum industry.

Thus far, U.S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Armco and Republic Steel have increased cold rolled sheet prices, and U.S. Steel and Armco have increased galvanized prices.

The products form a major portion of the industry's output and are used chiefly by the makers of automobiles and appliances.

It was likely other major steel producers would fall in line with one or more of the price increases.

U.S. Steel announced its price change last Friday and second-ranked Bethlehem matched it after the close of the stock market on Monday.

Gardner Ackley, chairman of the president's council of economic advisers, had asked during the weekend that other firms not join U.S. Steel in the raise.

Ackley said the hike was inflationary and would hurt the steel industry's position in the world market.

After Bethlehem's announcement, president Johnson said he deplored the increase but gave no hint that he intended to try to force a rollback such as President Kennedy did in 1962.

Share Trading Shows Increase

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Stock Exchange has reported that 329,400,000 shares were traded during the first 11 months of this year, compared to 289,973,000 shares during all of 1966.

Share value to the end of November was $309,261,000 compared with $303,691,000 for 1966.

ANACORTES EYES FERRY TERMINAL

ANACORTES, Wash. (AP) — A three-man delegation was to leave Tuesday for Juneau, Alaska, to urge Alaska Governor Walter Hickel to make Anacortes the southern terminus of extended Alaska ferry service.

The group includes Earl Diller, city manager; Robert Keller, a member of the Anacortes port commission, and Paul Luvira, chairman of the Anacortes Chamber of Commerce ferry committee.

Hickel recently announced ferry service would be extended to Puget Sound on a twice-weekly basis starting Dec. 14. The southern terminal will be Seattle, Bellingham or Anacortes.

HOME GARDEN

Wonderful Winter Crop

By HILDA BEASTALL

Tuberous artichokes are one of the delicacies available to home gardeners who grow their own.

Hilda

These are quite distinct from the Globe Artichokes which are the green flower bud portions of an entirely different plant.

The edible tubers of the Jerusalem Artichoke are produced underground, and cultural procedure is similar in many respects to that of the potato.

Important differences are greater winter hardiness, for tuberous artichokes are a fine winter crop in this area. They are at their best from late November until February, and at the latter date previously selected tubers should be planted back into rich soil for the next crop.

Not too much is known of nutritional values of this food, though it is rated as slightly lower in calories per pound than white, or Irish, potatoes.

The tubers may be used in many ways; baked, boiled, fried ,cold in salads, strained into soups. Apart from their own delicate flavor (resembling to my taste that of Oyster-plant, salsify) other vegetables combine well to result in various delicious dishes.

The plants grow to a great height during summer, often reaching eight or 10 feet, and produce small yellow flowers much like sunflowers, to which group the plants belong.

In the fall, the stems are cut close to soil level, and the roots (tubers) are either dug and stored or left in the ground until needed.

Having a very thin skin, artichokes will not store well, so that they are best left in the ground.

At 32 degrees they will keep for six weeks or so, but as soon as sprouts start, it is time to plant for the next season.

The plants spread madly if tubers are left in the ground for several years, though they can easily be controlled by cutting off tops as soon as they emerge.

Second Bingo More Profitable

The boilermakers' union has reported a much better response to its second bingo Monday night.

Proceeds will go to the 200 unemployed members of the union, who represent 25 per cent of the total membership.

No figures were disclosed, but the amount was an improvement over the $15 benefit for the first bingo last week.

"More money was achieved and we were very happy with the people who came," said a union official.

Two more bingos will be held, next Monday and one week later, at the Boilermakers' Hall, Esquimalt Road.

Reform Fine But It Isn't Whole Story

By ELIZABETH FORBES

The divorce reform bill before the House of Commons this week and that makes marriage breakdown a base for divorce—will be welcomed by every thinking person in Canada.

It is not easy to define and describe all the specific factors that tend toward a stable marriage or on the other hand, that lead to failure.

Signs of marriage insecurity may be so deep seated they are difficult to see. Or they may be so obvious they are apparent to the most casual observer. Especially when they lead to separation of the married couples or to the dissolution of the marriage.

Forbes

We are told two kinds of factors lead toward marriage breakdown. The general ones that put stress on all marriages and the specific causes of the failure of two persons to fulfil their marital vows.

Strange as it may seem, those who have studied the problems point directly to an affluent and individualistic society that encourages an excessive desire for material possessions as a leading cause in the general factor category.

The personal struggle to become "more wealthy, more successful, more happy," results in undertones of dissatisfaction and frustration which in turn, leads to increased friction in all personal relationships, including those of marriage.

In a report on marriage breakdown, divorce and remarriage, assembled by the United Church of Canada, it is shown that increased moral laxity in relationships between the sexes and the blunting of ethical sensitivity, also put strains on marriage. And that undue emphasis on the physical aspects of sex unbalances the common attitude towards it.

Present day mobility is another general factor. Young couples who through their employment are required to move away from home towns and familiar surroundings are denied all the values of the wider family circle. With the mature this may not be harmful. But it can be devastating for the immature.

The changing role of women also reflects in marriage. In the not too distant past, a woman's role in marriage was to provide children and to keep a good home. The husband was head of the house.

Today, authority is usually divided and shared.

You can chalk up immaturity as high among the "specific" factors leading to marriage failure.

Neurotic personality traits can also be a serious obstacle to a satisfactory marriage relationship. Even boredom and inability to occupy one's time constructively can threaten marriage unity.

Another cause of serious friction can be marked differences in social, economic, religious or cultural backgrounds.

The United Church of Canada report lists "a lack of marital aptitude as a threat to marriage of persons who are normally mature and competent in other less intimate and demanding relationships."

And it stresses that "external interference, especially from in-laws or through business or vocational demands, appears as another frequent factor in marriage breakdown."

All these factors, and many more, point directly to the need for a marriage breakdown clause in any divorce reform.

At the same time it must be remembered that while reform of the archaic divorce law, that has brought misery to thousands of Canadians, is a definite necessity, it is not the answer to a need for renewed family stability.

This can only come through better preparation for marriage. In turn, this can only be made possible through the development of planned marriage education programs.

Arthur Mayse

Today I propose to tell you about a big little Victoria outfit that held its installation banquet last Thursday. This is the local branch of the Cosmopolitan Club, which numbers 24 male members and a ladies' auxiliary called the Cosmo-Pals.

Those who belong to the club don't precisely shun publicity, but they have never gone out of their way to seek it.

They're too busy, and they don't seem to feel that anyone outside the scope of their organization is likely to be much interested in its projects. As a matter of fact, I'm in a position to tell you what happened at that dinner only because a friend who heard about it passed me the word.

We'll come to that later. First, though, some information about these Cosmopolitans.

To begin at the beginning, their fellowship was founded in Texas in 1924, with "The club that builds friendship," for its motto. Since then, it has been quietly building friendships among those who need friends from Victoria to Mexico, and from this city to Winnipeg.

In its 18-year existence, Victoria Cosmopolitan Club has dived wholeheatedly into various projects. Some of these are designed for the young—the sponsoring of teams in Babe Ruth League, and in the Connie Mack League for older boys. It also backs the Cosmopolitan Soccer Association for junior and juvenile ratings.

The club, however, adopted its major project about five years ago. This was, and is, to give such help as it can to Victoria branch of the Multiple Sclerosis Society of Canada.

Multiple sclerosis is a crippling disease of the central nervous system for which a cure is still to be discovered.

We have nearly 200 multiple sclerosis sufferers on this island, about 150 of them in Victoria. Although some are able to hold jobs, many are in private hospitals, or confined to bed or wheel-chair in their homes.

Back now to the Cosmopolitan Club, which requires of those who would join it that they be good citizens, and that they be prepared to work.

What it worked up first for the Multiple Sclerosis Society was a small "Cosmo bus" with room for four wheelchair patients. This service was maintained at a cost of $2,500 annually for the following four years.

This was a boon indeed. But the bus had its faults—scant headroom, and difficult to load passengers on board. Last year, the Cosmopolitans went all-out to provide another, larger bus. With hydraulic lift and alterations to suit the needs of six wheelchair and two seated passengers, it would cost about $6,500.

★

That was a daunting sum for two dozen workers to raise, but they tackled it head on—and in the process, found themselves what in show biz is called an angel.

Her name is Eliza Fielding. With the hearty approval of her husband, Major Lloyd Fielding, she donated $4,500 toward the new bus.

We come now to the annual dinner, which proceeded smoothly to installation of officers. Art Hillsden became regional governor; Ken Johnston, president; Charlie Gibbs and Sid Clark, first and second vice-presidents respectively; secretary Peter Holmes; treasurer (a post he has held since the branch got its charter) Art Messerschmidt; and sergeant-at-arms, Gordon Ireland.

Then—and here comes the popper—the new president rose to announce that Mrs. Fielding wished to support the Cosmopolitan Club further in its project. Her offer: $100,000 as a start toward a badly-needed hospital unit for multiple sclerosis victims. Her hope: that it will be called "The Battin-Fielding Memorial Wing".

It remains only to note that even to the most deserving of clubs, such breaks may come but once in a lifetime!

ADVANCE POLL FOR SATURDAY STRICTLY A NOTHING AFFAIR

Victoria's advance poll established some kind of a record up to noon today . . . Nobody voted.

Deputy returning officer George Merz said a few telephone calls had been received but no votes recorded.

"I expect we may get a few in this afternoon," he said.

The advance poll opened today and remains open in the city clerk's office at City Hall through Thursday and Friday between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Elderly Woman Killed

4th Pedestrian In Two Weeks

The fourth pedestrian fatality in two weeks was recorded here Tuesday when an elderly woman was hit by a car at Fort and Fernwood.

Mrs. W. W. Patterson, 81, of Suite 3, 1333 Fort Street, died in Royal Jubilee Hospital one hour and 20 minutes after she was hit at 12:45 p.m.

Police report Mrs. Patterson was walking north across Fort when she was struck by a car westbound on Fort. They said she was over half way across when hit.

Police said the driver of the car was Kenneth Grant, 23, of 1840 Newton.

LIVED ALONE

Mrs. Patterson lived alone and her only relative lives in Edinburgh.

The three other pedestrians killed in the past two weeks were Alfred Kneen, 85, of 1345 Stanley; Miss Winnifred Tucker, 82, of 349 Linden, and six-year-old Lenore Harkin of 3128 Glasgow.

A fifth pedestrian, Mrs. Amelia Hickman, 47, of 816 Linden Avenue, died March 12, 11 days after she was struck by a car. Twenty-one persons have died in traffic mishaps in Greater Victoria this year.

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said an inquest into the death of Mrs. Patterson will open at 7:30 p.m. Monday at Chaplin's Funeral Chapel, 1155 Fort Street.

Appeal, Warning By Chief

The rising toll of traffic deaths and the crowds of Christmas shoppers have prompted Chief J. F. Gregory to issue an appeal and warning to drivers and pedestrians.

The chief said today the Christmas season is certain to cause traffic and pedestrian problems.

●

"People with their minds on Christmas and Christmas shopping are bound to create a most congested traffic pattern," he said.

"Our department will do everything in its power to stem the rising tide of traffic accidents and deaths.

"But if people won't take it upon themselves to police their own walking and driving habits, they can expect prosecution or even worse—injuries."

●

Five people have died on Victoria streets in the past two and one-half weeks.

City traffic officers are tightening enforcement of traffic regulations.

Pedestrians breaking traffic laws are being issued tickets especially during the rush hours. A patrol car equipped with a loud hailer is cruising the downtown area checking people for minor offences.

Firemen Question Children After $1,500 House Blaze

Fire department officials are investigating the cause of a blaze which they estimate caused $1,500 damage to a city home early today.

A spokesman said children may have been responsible for the fire at the home of Mrs. W. R. Osecki, 1617 Pembroke St.

A baby-sitter, 17-year-old Pat Dawes, led three children and the family dog to safety.

HIGH TIDE made it easier for this morning's strong winds to whip waves over Dallas Road. This is Ross Bay, east of Clover Point, when winds were gusting to 59. Same gusts tore away the Maple Leaf flag at City Hall, puffed for a while, then swept away the Red Ensign as well.

Area Whacked Again By Rampaging Winds

But angry weather conditions were easing today and weary hydro and telephone linemen were catching up on damages which have plagued subscribers since Friday.

Tuesday night, capital region residents were bracing themselves for more trouble as RCMP broadcast warnings for motorists to avoid the Malahat if possible.

A combination of snow and fog slowed cars to a crawl. But this morning travelled portions were clear. Snow powdered the airport for half an hour Tuesday and Vancouver got some mixed snow and rain today, but skies were relatively clear in Victoria.

Winds started to build up at 2 a.m. today until almost 9 a.m. when the strongest gusts reached 59 miles per hour. They soon dropped to 35 and 45 and are now expected to abate to 25 Thursday morning out of the southeast.

The winds brought down a few more branches. One of them chopped power lines in the north Saanich area and left homes without heat or light for an hour and a half. Another outage which occurred just before noon was unlocated at press time.

But on the whole hydro crews were catching up. Men who went out to Port Renfrew at 4 a.m. Tuesday were finishing repairs at 10 a.m. today and power in the area was almost all restored after a 24-hour outage. There were few troubles elsewhere on the urban southern areas.

IMPROVING

B.C. Telephone reported their circuits in "good shape" at noon, fully restored to Port Renfrew and the situation in the Gulf Islands rapidly improving. Night crews have been working constantly since Friday.

The stiff winds created a spectacle on the Victoria waterfront this morning where an simultaneously. Spray whipped exceptionally high tide occurred across Dallas Road in blankets.

At Oak Bay, a report that the Undersea Garden was moved by the force of the wind and tide was explained by marina operator Bob Wright.

He said there was no danger and no problem. The undersea marine showplace was built to be flexible and is well anchored.

Ferry services, which were curtailed in the storm Friday, were undeterred by the overnight blow.

CPR UNHINDERED

A CPR ferry official pointed out that the Nanaimo-Vancouver route served by Princess of Vancouver was not hindered even by the Friday storm and the ship operated at full capacity carrying many passengers who had earlier been stranded by the lapse in the government ferry service.

The storm was severe up-Island. At Nanaimo a concrete block wall tumbled on several cars. Damage was heavy but no one was injured.

Snow was heavy on the Tofino-Alberni Highway and in the Shawnigan Lake area. Power was out for 14 hours at Tofino but was restored Tuesday night. Roofing was stripped from the home of Lloyd Bertram at Nanaimo. Tofino schools were closed due to heating problems and snows curtailed work for Cowichan valley loggers.

Phone and light services were interrupted in Duncan area and at Chemainus, Cobble Hill, Lake Cowichan and Mill Bay by turn.

Power was off four hours in some areas and several residents reported windows smashed by the winds. Two boats sunk in Ladysmith harbor, one of them a cabin cruiser.

The list of damage was laid to a storm which hit Tuesday morning with greater force than the early morning blow today.

10 Acres Of Estate For School

About 10 acres of the 132-acre McRae Estate is expected to be sold to the Greater Victoria School Board for a new school.

This was disclosed Tuesday night by Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis at an all-candidates meeting in Royal Oak.

Saanich is completing purchase of the estate from the McRae family for $1.2 million plus interest, payable as $900,000 now and the rest in instalments. The municipal offer included dropping last year's expropriation, which would allow sale of parts of the estate for other than purely recreational use.

IMPORTANT STEP

He described acquisition of the estate, when completed, as "an immensely important step for Saanich."

The costs can and will be reduced by "tightening up" corners and edges of the property and selling them for residential use.

The school board was "very interested in some of this acreage in the southern part for school purposes."

He estimated the total land required for school purposes "could be about 10 acres, and again this is possible without in any way detracting from the total value of the property for park purposes and a revenue-producing golf course."

Sale of land to the school board would reduce the total cost of the estate and "make an ideal site available to the board and offer the joint use of playing fields and school buildings which we all seek."

'We Can't Wait For Five Years'

By PETE LOUDON

Victoria can't wait any longer for relief to hospital overcrowding and mammoth waiting lists, a prominent hospital authority said today.

J. Courtney Haddock, chairman of Royal Jubilee Hospital Board, said it will take years for present plans to mature.

Speaking unofficially, he said, "Our medical staff won't stand for it. They'll revolt. We can't sit and wait five years."

His comments in an interview followed a report Tuesday night that four persons have died while waiting admission to hospital as urgent cases.

The report was made during an election speech by Dr. G. Scott Wallace, an Oak Bay council candidate.

Mr. Haddock said that because he was speaking personally he was unable to explain how his hospital could move to ease the present situation, at this time.

But he considered a waiting list of 2,000 elective cases and 750 urgent cases at the two hospitals, an intolerable situation.

Mr. Haddock was bitterly critical of "civic leaders who killed the referendum" that would have launched a $13.5 million hospital program two years ago.

"Then they started in on this silly survey," he said.

Consultants have been brought from Toronto to get information from B.C. Hospital Insurance Service and local municipalities.

"They are selling this back to us for $40,000. And this is information we already know."

No community action can be launched until the survey is prepared. It is expected in January. And then it will be up to five years before a new acute hospital could be built, he said.

Welfare Patients Could Move

While it is uncertain what steps Jubilee could take on its own to provide more beds, one area of improvement is indicated. Mr. Haddock and other officials have stated that up to 50 acute hospital beds in Victoria are occupied by elderly patients well enough to be in private nursing homes.

But they are not acceptable because they are welfare patients who are not acceptable to nursing home operators because provincial allowances for their care fall below private rates.

Dr. Wallace told the all-candidates meeting that the serious lack of hospital facilities here constitues a major crisis.

"The dimension of the crisis is well demonstrated by the fact that at our two main hospitals, even cases classified as urgent, now wait several weeks for a bed."

He said non-urgent cases are now booking 10 months ahead.

"A recent survey of 20 cases awaiting urgent admission revealed that four had died awaiting admission. These few sad facts spell out quite clearly the gravity of the bed situation."

In an interview today, Dr. Wallace said he presumed these were terminal patients. Other patients, some terminal, still are waiting.

One-Year Wait Soon Possible

They should at least be admitted and made comfortable, he said. He said both acute hospitals have medical committees which review the waiting lists each day and do all possible to see that those most requiring care are given prior admission.

He thought that unless some now un-planned expansion is undertaken, waiting lists will soon require more than a year's advance booking for non-urgent cases.

Dr. William J. Bell, president of Victoria Medical Society said he didn't know the details of the four fatalities and he did not "wish to engage in any controversy" before the current survey of hospital needs is complete.

Dr. C. H. Hemming, chairman of the Victoria and District Hospital's Planning Council, said his board will withhold any comment until such times as the Toronto consultant firm completes its report.

Asked what relief Victoria could expect during the five years necessary to build more hospitals, he said, "I am hopeful we can come up with something."

Emergency Hospitals Proposed

He thought the current crisis might be "partially resolved" in one year but he said he preferred not to elaborate on this at this time.

Laymen tangling with the problem have made suggestion that emergency hospitals might be created in vacant buildings—simple dormitory-type facilities suited to recuperation wards or chronic care. Medical people generally believe such adaptions would be too costly.

Off the record, some will say that if Victoria settles for such second-rate facilities their use might become permanent and this is another argument against them.

A proposal has been made that the soon-to-be emptied isolation annex at Royal Jubilee might be saved from the wreckers for such purpose. However, no announcement in this regard has been made.

Dr. A. C. Pickles, executive director at Royal Jubilee, preferred not to comment either on Dr. Wallace's report of four patient deaths, until he could read the report for himself.

At St. Joseph's Hospital, Dr. Embert Van Tilberg, executive director, said any doctor who states his case is an emergency, may arrange immediate admittance for the patient.

Warm Welcome For Co-Op Housing Plan

Council representatives from Saanich and Victoria said today they would welcome the construction in Greater Victoria of a co-operative housing project.

So did Mayor Hugh Stephen.

The Society has one project under way in Port Alberni and two others scheduled for early starts in 1968 in Nanaimo and Duncan.

"I am enthusiastic about the idea," said Coun. Gunning. "But I want it stressed that I shall be very fussy about design. This will be the key to my ultimate decision.

NO STEREOTYPES

"I am prepared to support any project that will relieve the housing shortage — but only if the design of the individual units and the over-all area is first class. We don't want a standard stereotyped project."

"This morning's discussion was of a preliminary nature only, but I am happy to see the co-operative principle being advocated.

PLANNER HAPPY

City planner Geoff Greenhalgh also gave tentative approval to the scheme.

Mr. English said that with the preliminary discussion out of the way and the reaction favorable the search would now begin for suitable sites.

Two projects are envisioned for the area, one for young families in Saanich and another for a mixed resident population in Victoria.

Co-operative housing projects involve the formation of a society or association with individuals purchasing shares in the society up to the value of their house.

Occupancy of a home follows a down payment on shares in the society of between $800 and $1,000 with monthly payments of between $80 and $100.

Ask The Times

Q. What was the cost of the radar equipment installed in Esquimalt police cars last June and how many convictions have resulted and how much has been paid in fines? P.J.W.

A. The radar cost $1,100. In the first year of its operation 339 warnings were issued and 227 charges laid. In addition says the Esquimalt police commission, since the installation of radar, driving habits in certain areas have improved noticeably.

Traffic fines statements issued by central magistrate's court do not show which fines were imposed upon radar-caught speeders.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

By RON HOLLAND

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver hockey fans aren't exactly unhappy when they read that several of the new teams in the National Hockey League are having troubles at the box office.

Such reports feed their hopes of ultimately getting an NHL franchise, the assumption being that if the game fails to catch on in one of the expansion cities the league might take another look at Vancouver.

Another reason for hope is the Pacific Coliseum, a nearly-completed 15,000-seat, $6,000,000 arena which, Vancouver boosters insist, would be just about filled every game if there were an NHL team here.

But that doesn't mean the arena's bosses are just going to sit back and wait. Arena manager J. O. (Bus) Evans says hockey would occupy it for about one-sixth of the total number of dates needed to make the venture a success.

"Any hockey team that plays in the arena will have 40 to 45 dates a year but it is the plan of the Pacific National Exhibition directorate to have the arena in operation about 225 to 250 days a year.

"We plan to book trade shows, home shows, boat shows and many other types of consumer shows. Besides that we'll also go after conventions, rallies, political meetings and such events as the Billy Graham Crusade.

"Entertainment in Vancouver will also be helped.

"In the past major concerts, military tatoos and top name performers have had to perform in the Forum. This can all be changed now."

Evans says that many sports events besides hockey will be housed in the Pacific Coliseum, which opens Jan. 8 with the Icecapades.

"This year one National Basketball Association game between the Seattle Supersonics and Boston Celtics will be played here and next year there's a good chance that there will be more games played here. Also booked into the arena are the Harlem Globetrotters. Tennis shows, track and field meets, wrestling, boxing and other sporting events will also be able to take advantage of the arena."

Evans says the arena has 15,019 permanent seats and room for 2,000 temporary seats.

"This puts the arena up in the same class as Chicago Stadium and Madison Square Garden."

In spite of the relative youth of the building it already has its first squabble.

The trouble is between the PNE and the Vancouver Hockey Club Ltd., which operates Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League.

Before the Canucks will be allowed to play in the arena they will have to sign a lease, and this is where the trouble begins.

The PNE contends the Canucks are seeking exclusive pro hockey rights to the arena and it doesn't want them on those terms. That's because it wants to be free to take an NHL club in as a tenant if one becomes available.

To which Coley Hall, Canucks' adviser, replies:

"All the present owners want to be assured of is that if an NHL franchise holder other than the Vancouver Hockey Club Ltd. starts operating in Vancouver then the exhibition board will not allow the other party use of the Coliseum unless the Vancouver Hockey Club has been first indemnified against losses which would result from the invasion of territory by the other franchise holder."

IT'S MY VIEW . . .

By Ernie Fedoruk

At Mid-Week, a Football Post-Mortem . . .

Sorry, chaps, the bilingual column is for another day. The East already has claimed the Grey Cup and I'm not prepared to concede two defeats within the same week.

Last Saturday, and for a stretch of two-plus hours, Hamilton Tiger-Cats proved to be the better of two football teams. Really, there can be no great argument.

RON LANCASTER
. . . not good day

The score, as you already know, was 24-1, and Saskatchewan Roughriders the other team in the Canadian final.

The high-priced experts have since lauded the quarterbacking of Hamilton's Joe Zuger, the shrewdness of coach Ralph Sazio and the brilliance of Tiger-Cats' defensive linemen. The praise is justifiable.

Of all the plays that transpired in Ottawa Saturday, only one keeps flashing back. Like the video replays, except more often . . .

It happened early in the third quarter. The score at that stage was 17-1 in Hamilton's favor and the Ticats were being contained deep in their own end zone.

On a second down, 10 to go situation from the Hamilton 13, Zuger fired a pass that was intercepted by Saskatchewan's Bob Kosid. The Rider ran the ball back 24 yards, to Hamilton's 11-yard line.

On first down, Saskatchewan's George Reed tested the middle of the line, managed three yards.

On second down, Rider quarterback Ron Lancaster threw an end-zone pass—right at Hamilton's Bob Krouse. The television cameras didn't show it, but Hugh Campbell was the intended receiver. The Saskatchewan end slipped in making his cut, and Krouse was left alone to make the interception.

To all intent and purpose, that was the end of the game. The Riders simply went through the motions after that.

From that point, Lancaster's play-calling was of a commercial nature . . . the early, first-quarter kind. It was dull and without bravado. At no time, in the late minutes and preceeding Billy Ray Locklin's clinching touchdown, did Riders attempt something new or different. Perhaps, like the gambler riding a cold deck, they didn't dare.

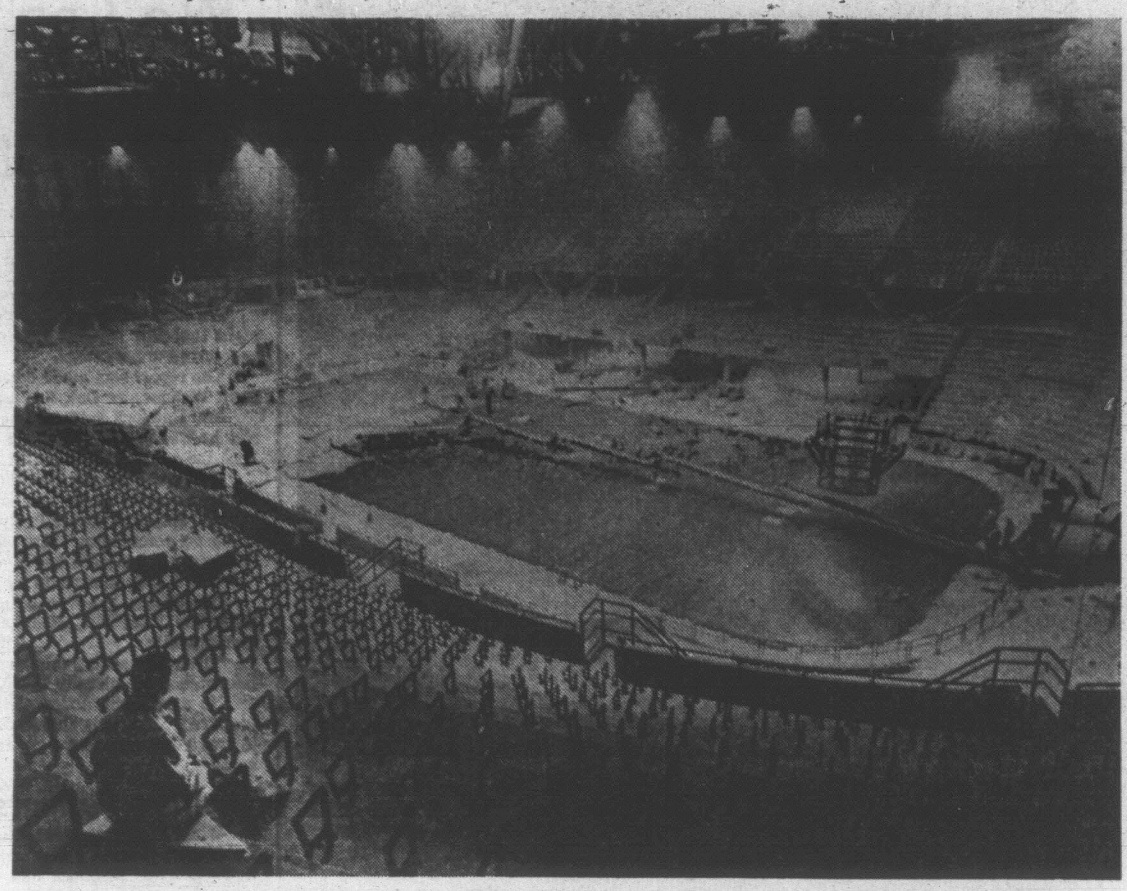
Until Krouse's pickoff, it was still a game. The Roughriders, I thought, might have become the pushers rather than the pushed with a quick touchdown after Kosid's interception.

With at least a quarter and a half to play, the spread might have been only an unconverted touchdown and a field goal.

Hamilton's defence wouldn't allow it.

And long before, in the opening minutes, Ed Buchanan droped a pass that was labelled touchdown. That, too, might have altered the complexion of the game. For some reason, however, the replays on Buchanan's drop do not come across as often as Krouse's interception.

Darn it, there it is again!



WILL IT BE FILLED IF NHL HITS VANCOUVER?

Hockey fans in Vancouver claim nearly-completed Pacific Coliseum would be filled for most games if Vancouver obtains franchise in National Hockey League. Pacific National Exhibition directors hope to keep $6,000,000 building booked about 250 days a year. (CP Photo).

Le Gros Bill, Fergie Ready To Provide Lift

By The Canadian Press

Fifteen thousand cheering fans in the Montreal Forum Thursday night will hail the return of le Gros Bill.

Partisan Montreal fans have had little to cheer about since Canadiens captain Jean Beliveau was sidelined with a knee injury at Philadelphia Nov. 4.

An inspirational leader both on and off the ice since joining the Canadiens 14 seasons ago, Montreal team officials are hopeful the tall, rangy contre's dressing will invoke some scoring punch in Canadiens' attack.

They are dubious, however, that the 36-year-old has recovered sufficently to contribute much in the scoring despite getting off to one of his best starts in several NHL seasons.

Beliveau, who had seven goals and five assists when he was injured, still is Canadiens third-best scorer, behind Yvan Cournoyer and Bobby Rousseau.

Montreal also will have John Ferguson back after a month off with a broken hand while Gump Worsley will be available for goaltending duty after a concussion Nov. 25.

Since Beliveau's injury the club has won only three games, tied three and lost seven.

BOSTON FACES THREAT

Montreal and the division-leading Boston Bruins get the night off tonight, but Toronto Maple Leafs will be trying to overtake the Bruins when they meet the North Stars in Minnesota while Detroit Red Wings battle to stay ahead of New York Rangers in a battle for third place at New York.

Pittsburgh Penguins are in Chicago against the Black Hawks and Philadelphia Flyers will be out to pad their Western Division lead by beating the Seals at Oakland. St. Louis Blues tangle with the second-place Los Angeles Kings in Los Angeles.

JEAN BELIVEAU
. . . supplies inspiration

To make room for their returning players, the Canadiens shipped goalie Ernie Wakely, centre Gary Monahan and right winger Bryan Watson to Houston Apollos of the Central Pro League.

When Beliveau steps on the ice, it will be for the 875th time in regular-season play as a Canadien since turning professional in 1953, from Quebec Aces senior team.

The 6-3, 205-pounder played two games in 1950-51 and three in 1952-53 before going 44 games the next year as an injury-hampered full-time pro. His NHL record includes 406 goals and 550 assists for 956 points.

His point production is second only to Gordie Howe of Detroit who has 1,501 in regular-season play.

Runners Nipped By Sharp Kings

By The Canadian Press

Quebec Aces appear to be able to do everything but get out of the Western Division cellar of the American Hockey League.

Only one club has scored more than Quebec's 90 goals so far this season—Springfield Kings, leaders of the Eastern Division.

The Kings hit their 92-goal total Tuesday with a 4-3 overtime victory against Phoenix Roadrunners of the Western League after the Aces had run up one of the standard lopsided scores, 5-0 over Buffalo Bisons.

In the third game Tuesday, Baltimore Clippers rallied for their sixth straight home victory, 5-3 over Providence Reds.

In 21 games this year, the Aces have won only nine and tied two—but they've had some scoring outbursts, including 8-3 and 10-7 victories against Rochester Americans, 8-4 and 6-1 wins against Providence and an 8-5 win and 7-7 tie against Baltimore.

LACROIX TALLIES 3

ANOTHER PRO HOOP ACE HIT WITH COURT ORDER

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A court banned Larry Jones of Denver Rockets from playing in Pennsylvania Tuesday for the rest of the American Basketball Association season.

Judge John G. Brosky of Allegheny County court issued a preliminary injunction on a complaint filed by the Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Barons of the Eastern Basketball League.

The Barons contended that their contract with Jones last season gave them an option on him this season.

Jones, the Rockets' top scorer and holder of the ABA single-game scoring record of 50 points, is the fourth ABA player sidelined this year by court order.

Brew Still Sharp As Brand Altered

The brand has been changed but the flavor is as sharp as ever.

The team that entered the Victoria Senior Men's Basketball League as Indpendents has come up with a sponsor. They're Coffee Macs now, and still brewing a fine, first-place pot.

Macs celebrated the name change and made it 12 victories in 14 starts Tuesday by tripping third-place Labbatts 77-60.

RUGGED ACTION

The doubleheader was a rouser. Five players were banished from the two games and free throws accounted for 71 points.

Colony Inn exploded for a 71-point second half to become the first team to reach the century mark in scoring this season.

Oaks, Totems Stay In Hoop Deadlock

First place in the Inter-High School Boys' Basektball League is still shared by Victoria High and Oak Bay after each club collected a fourth triumph in Tuesday tussles.

The Oaks drubbed Mount Douglas 74-27 on their home court while the Vic High Totems trampled the Hornets 65-17 at Mount View.

Leader for the Totems with 15 points was Barry Moen, returning after being disabled by a soccer injury.

Hornets scored only five points in the second half, attributed mostly to the strong man-to-man defence of the Totes. Other top scorers for the winners were Gordon Hoshal wih 15 poins and Bill Clark wih 12.

Prestwick Delay For Young Scots

The first schoolboy rugby team from the British Isles ever to visit Canada was scheduled to arrive in Victoria at noon, but it may be a day or two before the young athletes regain their complete composure.

The Glenalmond Trinity College team from Scotland opens its five-game visit to British Columbia with a match against University School Thursday afternoon, starting at 2:30 p.m.

The Scots also will play at Brentwood College on Saturday and will have games next week against Shawnigan Lake Boys' School and the lower Vancouver Island All-Stars. A fifth game will be played in Vancouver against St. George's School.

It was confirmed today that the 21-member Scottish team was on board a jetliner that ran off a runway and stuck in the mud at Prestwick's international airport Tuesday.

The plane carried 131 passengers and 10 crew members. It dropped one wheel while taxiing into a takeoff position, but no one was hurt. The flight was delayed seven hours.

Glenalmond was scheduled to arrive in Victoria late Tuesday night. Tour organizers in Victoria said the team "was delayed at Prestwick" and rescheduled to arrive today.

FORWARDS BEST

University School, coached by Brian Smith, will test the Scots' strength Thursday. Smith, who also plays break-forward with Castaways in the Victoria Rugby Union, feels his team's strength lies with the forwards.

Czechs Defeat Canadian Squad

O'Keefes Toss Ball To University Squad

A six-year veteran of Pacific Coast Soccer League battles who has played for no team but Victoria O'Keefes since his high school days, Ball has been granted a transfer to University of Victoria Vikings.

Held in reserve and filling in when O'Keefes needed him, Ball requested the transfer. He underwent an operation for the repair of knee ligaments last year and is anxious to give the leg "a complete test" with consistent action.

O'Keefes will be idle from league play this weekend, but will turn to aid the Greater Victoria High School Sports Council. O'Keefes have scheduled a benefit game Saturday at Heywood Park against an all-star team selected from high school ranks.

PROCEEDS AID COUNCIL

All proceeds from the match will be turned over to the Sports Council to aid promotion of high school sports.

At the same time, O'Keefes also have made a schedule change. Instead of playing Firefighters Dec. 16 at Macdonald Park, the Victoria team will play Firemen Dec. 17.

The change was made to allow the park to be available for an exhibition rugby match between Glenalmond Trinity College of Scotland and the Lower Vancouver Island high school all-stars on Dec. 16.

'DIDN'T HELP US' . . . . . SAYS WILLIAMS

Bosox Pitcher Bitter

BOSTON (AP)—Boston Red Sox Manager Dick Williams' comment that relief pitcher John Wyatt "did not help us down the stretch" drew a bitter reply Tuesday from the right-hander.

"If I hadn't had the year I did there would not have been any stretch drive for the Red Sox," Wyatt said in a letter to Larry Claflin, Boston Record-American baseball writer.

Wyatt wrote to comment on a Claflin dispatch from the baseball meeting last week in Mexico City. Claflin's story said Williams was asked how highly he rated Fred Wenz, a relief pitcher being brought up from Toronto.

He quoted Williams as replying: "We think so much of him we may trade Wyatt.

"Wyatt did not help us down the stretch. He didn't help us in a big series in Washington, and he didn't help us in a big game in Baltimore."

BEATTY, JACKSON TOP POLL

Orange County Produces Continental's Sweetest

SAN JOSE—Homer Beatty of the Orange County Ramblers has been named Coach-of-the-Year in the Western Division of the Continental Football League, and his star fullback Bob Jackson, has been voted the league's Most Valuable Player.

Beatty, in his first year as professional coach, guided the Ramblers to the first Western Division title. Ramblers meet the Eastern Division champion Orlando Panthers in the CFL's first championship game Sunday at Anaheim Stadium.

Thirteen of the 18 voting sports writers and broadcasters from the six league cities named Beatty as top choice and four more tabbed him second. Bill Walsh of the San Jose Apaches was runner up with four first place votes and four second. Victoria's Don McKeta drew the other first-place vote, while Mel McCain of Seattle and Jack Crabtree both polled second-place votes.

Beatty is a former University of Southern California halfback who, in 20 years of coaching at Bakersfield High, Bakersfield and Santa Ana Junior Colleges and at Los Angles State, compiled a 164-34-2 won-lost-tied record.

Jackson, the 6-3, 243-lb fullback was the big offensive gun for the Ramblers all season. He led the league in rushing with 860 yards (5.1 average) and eight touchdowns as the Ramblers won 10 of 12 league games. The big New Mexico State product played four years in the AFL before joining the Ramblers. In off season he's a counsellor for the mentally-retarded children at California School for the Deaf.

Jackson polled 10 first-place votes and two seconds while four sports writers picked his teammate, quarterback Jerry Otterson for top honors. Otterson also had four second-place votes. Next in line were halfback Charley Fuller of San Jose and linebacker Tim Casey of Eugene.

Others receiving votes were halfback Bobby Gaiters of Orange County, end Joe Peyton of Seattle, end Bill Peterson and halfback Jim Jackson of San Jose and halfback Adolphus McGee of Sacramento.

Crackdown Victims?

PITY POOR POSH

LONDON (CP)—The summary demotion of the Peterborough United soccer club to the English League's Fourth Division once again casts the spotlight on Britain's rather strange bonus policy.

Carried away by its own enthusiasm, the team offered players a bonus of $260 each last year if they won their Football Association Cup elimination-round match against Sunderland.

Peterborough United lost 7-1 but the offer showed up in club records. And since the limit of such bonuses is a modest $15, the league punished the offenders by demoting them from the third division to the fourth, effective at the end of this season.

★ ★ ★

Where the team went wrong was in making the bonus offer in mid-season. Had it incorporated the bonus plan in players' contracts signed before the season began, it would have all been quite legal.

Many other teams manage to get around the bonus limit that way. For example, one club is reported to have offered players $65,000 each if they win the coveted FA Cup this season.

★ ★ ★

The limit on bonuses is a throwback to the days when British soccer imposed an artificially low level of salaries on its players. Even the top stars received less than the best in Europe and South America.

One result was that leading players were leaving Britain to play for high-paying Italian or Spanish clubs.

Forced to act, the English League began improving salary scales. Now a first division player can earn $250 to $300 a week. But bonuses that are anything but token are still frowned upon. And even for winning the FA Cup itself the limit is $65.

There was some fear that the Posh, as Peterborough United is called by its fans, might be thrown out of pro soccer altogether, a fate that has befallen only one other team in soccer history.

The league decided demotion would be a tough enough penalty and it was right. Peterborough was fourth in the third division when the announcement was made. It still had a good chance of finishing in the top three which would have earned it promotion to the second division.

★ ★ ★

Players are reported demoralized by demotion, since they now have nothing to play for this season, and there are rumblings of discontent. Some have threatened to ask for a transfer to another club at the end of the season.

Sports writers have generally conceded the right of soccer authorities to enforce the rules but some have questioned the wisdom of retaining a rule that many clubs circumvent.

BO PARALYZED ON ONE SIDE

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A statement Tuesday from pro golfer Bo Wininger's personal physician said "from all indications Wininger will have a paralysis of the right side of his body" from a stroke suffered last Thursday.

The statement also was concurred in by members of the family of the former Oklahoma State University golf star.

KATHY GETS THE BAD NEWS

AMATEURS SHOULDN'T . . . . . BE JOCKEYS

Licences Are for Professionals

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Kathy Kusner's hopes of becoming a lady jockey were dashed Tuesday when the Maryland Racing Commission rejected her application for a licence.

The commissioners voted unanimously to turn down Miss Kusner because "she had indicated she would not be a professional."

"I feel very strongly that this is a profession," said J. Newton Brewer Jr., a commissioner.

"These men jockeys make their living at it. To sanction an amateur, who would then solicit mounts without pay when these men are trying to make a living, is absolutely wrong," he said.

It was the second time the 27-year-old rider was denied a jockey's licence. She was turned down at age 18 because she was a girl.

WOLMAN'S SPECTRUM

Denial Follows Report of Sale

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A report circulated today that Jerry Wolman, financially-plagued owner of the National Football League's Philadelphia Eagles, had sold the $10,000,000 sports arena he had built for ice hockey and basketball.

However, a source close to Wolman said "there was no truth to the rumor" that the Spectrum had been sold to one or more officials of the Matthew McCloskey Construction Co., which built the arena.

The Spectrum, which opened this fall, is encumbered by three mortgages totalling $8,660,000. The McCloskey firm has a third mortgage of $1,160,000.

Wolman on Tuesday sent telegrams to his creditors, indicating that he would pay part of the monies owed them by the end of next week.

He also declared that everything he has will be sold, if necessary, except for the Eagles, to meet his obligations.

Princeton Picks Canadian Captain

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Richard R. Bracken, 20-year-old junior tailback from Winnipeg, has been elected captain of the 1968 Princeton University football team.

An economics major, Bracken has gained 648 yards rushing, 785 passing, and has scored nine touchdowns and passed for two others during the past two seasons.

ALL-BLACKS ACE GETS TWO-GAME SUSPENSION

CARDIFF, Wales (Reuters) — Colin Meads, New Zealand All Black's forward sent off in the Rugby Union international game against Scotland Saturday, has been suspended for the next two matches of the tour.

The suspension, imposed by a committee of three appointed by the International Rugby Union Board, means Meads will miss the All Blacks' matches against Monmouthshire at Newport today and against East Wales at Cardiff Saturday.

The giant forward will be available for the last match of the New Zealanders' British tour, against the Barbarians at Twickenham Dec. 16.

Puck Loop Reverts To Canadian Rules

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Western Canada Senior Hockey League has reverted to Canadian rules.

The four-team league, which includes Canada's national team, originally decided to use international rules but changed its mind because of what president Bud Holohan described as adverse press criticism in Edmonton.

Holohan said the switch to Canadian regulations, which permits more bodychecking than the international code, will not apply to games involving national teams from Finland and the United States.

Disqualification Helps Jonathan

Don Leo Jonathan was awarded the decision when the referee disqualified Abdullah the Butcher in the feature bout of a professional wrestling match at Memorial Arena Tuesday.

In other bouts at Memorial Arena, Rocky Johnson and Don McLarty and Woody Farmer and Jose Quintero grappled to draws while Roy McLarty defeated Jack Bence.

Pro Czar Predicts Amateur Rebellion

NEW YORK (AP)—Jack Kramer, once the czar of pro tennis, predicted today that the world's leading amateur players will defy their national organizations and back Wimbledon to the hilt in its move for an open tournament.

"I am positive that men such as Arthur Ashe, Charlie Pasarell and Cliff Richey, who form the guts of our Davis Cup team, and Billie Jean King, the queen of women's tennis, would risk suspension and play in an open tournament at Wimbledon," Kramer added.

"That's not all. I think you'll find the same sort of uprising in Australia, France, Italy and other countries where big time tennis played.

"All the players I've spoken with have the greatest admiration for the Wimbledon plan to hold an open tournament. They are ready to give full support."

British Lawn Tennis Association authorities announced earlier this year that they would throw the 1968 Wimbledon event open to amateurs and pros—in defiance of the International Lawn Tennis Federation.

NOW RECONSIDERING

This week British tennis spokesmen began to show hesitancy about their venture because of lack of support from the big tennis-playing nations, such as the United States and Australia.

The American and Australian bodies indicated that they would be forced to suspend any amateur player who competed in an open at Wimbledon.

The British meet Dec. 14 to make a final decision.

"I know the pros are ready to support Wimbledon 100 per cent," Kramer said. "The British can expect the same support from the amateurs—that is, the top amateurs.

"These amateurs know that there is big money now awaiting the tennis game—just as there is in golf. They are anxious to sit down and talk about it.

"If the players rebel, as I honestly expect them to do, the ruling associations will be left high and dry. They will be forced to come around and follow the open trend."

VIEWS PLAY JOHN OLIVER ON SATURDAY

Game commences at 12 noon, preceding a regular Pacific Coast Soccer League match between Firefighters and New Westminster Labatts. The final was originally scheduled for Dec. 16.

Russia Ready To Play Again

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The U.S. Amateur Athletic Union is ready to negotiate with Russia for the resumption of sports competition on a limited basis.

The competition stopped in July 1966 when the Soviet Union pulled out of the annual international track and field meet in Los Angeles. The U.S. military activities in Vietnam were offered as the reason.

At the close of its annual meeting here, the AAU said the Soviet Union has agreed to pay for the financial losses which resulted from its cancellation of the 1966 meets.

A BENEFIT . . . . . . FOR STUDENTS' FUND

Teachers Step Out

Talkers of two types will be on the boards at Oak Bay High Tuesday night, this time at a different game.

And basketball is the subject as Victoria area teachers forsake their lessons and books for the sake of a student activities fund.

They meet the travelling disc-jockeys of Seattle's KJR All-Americans in an exhibtion game to raise money for the students.

A formidable local squad awaits the DJs with Oak Bay High teachers Ed Kowalyk, Terry Tobacco, Gary Taylor, Frank Gower and Glen Atkinson adding an air of familiarity to the team.

Heading the list of Victoria stars is George (Porky) Andrews from Vic High. A former all-round athlete, Andrews is best-known as a basketball coach and one-time professional player.

Other backing comes from Vic High's Ed Fougner, Don Puddy of Mount Douglas, Gerry Montgomery of Claremont, Jack Lusk of Reynolds Road, Bob Tomlinson of Hampton Elementary, Ken McCullough of Doncaster Elementary, and Bill Garner from Lansdowne (coach of the team).

A dangerous mixture of masters of the microphone and university athletes makes up the opposition. Disc jockeys Pat O'Day, Tom Murphy, Lan Roberts, Jim Martin and Bizz Barr will play beside Ernie Dunstan and Waverley Davis of Seattle University.

Former players from the University of Washington are Bob Flowers, Levi Fisher, Don Martin, Dean Halvorson and football star Steve Bramwell. Don Rae from Montana State completes the All-American team.

Half-time entertainment will be provided by a group from Seattle. All seats are reserved, and are on sale ($1.00) at Oak Bay Secondary.

Smiths Take a Shine To Tennis Silverware

DUNCAN—Mother and daughter monopolized the trophy presentations this week at the annual meeting of South Cowichan Lawn Tennis Club.

Gail Smith won the women's singles in both the club championship and handicap events and teamed with Beryl Philp to take the women's doubles title in the handicap section.

Her mother, Mrs. Addie Smith, shared the championship women's doubles crown with Joyce MacKenzie, and the handicap mixed doubles title with Ed Plato.

Lady Ref Takes Appeal to Top

LONDON (AP)—Queen Elizabeth is smack in the middle of a new battle of the sexes—should women be allowed to referee soccer matches in England?

Mrs. Pat Dunn, a 34-year-old housewife, is the woman who may put the Queen on the spot.

Pat passed all her soccer referee's examinations and then applied for official recognition from the all-male referees' club.

She got a definite no from her own county organization. She got yet another even more definite no from the English Football Association, the ruling body of soccer in England.

So now Pat has decided to take the whole business straight to the top—in other words to the Queen as woman to woman.

Pat's position as a referee, despite all her qualifications, was spelled out in clear language by FA official H. N. Bird. "Regulations will now be amended to state specifically that females may not be registered as referees," he said.

Last words from Pat, the woman referee who reckons she can control soccer as well as any man: "So I've been beaten on points by the FA.

"All I can do now is to write to the Queen—the only woman who seems to be tolerated by them. . . ."

'WISH MY COUNTRYMEN WOULD HELP US MORE'

Mostly Americans Aiding 'Mom' Whyte

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Mrs. Bertha (Mom) Whyte says she is doing for Nigerians what she once did for needy children in Ontario and what she wanted to do for children in British Columbia.

Vigorous and enthusiastic as ever, 51-year-old Mrs. Whyte is operating a combined farm, orphanage and training centre at the lonely outpost of Aiyetoro in Nigeria's Kappa province.

★ ★ ★

And the Nigerian government is right behind it.

Seventy orphan babies are being cared for; 25 youths are being trained as farmers and 45 more are being taught to make furniture in a large workshop conducted by Mrs. Whyte's son, Ronald.

"We built all this out of nothing," she said, "but God has been with us all the way. He has performed miracles to help us help others."

Mrs. Whyte has been visiting her second son, Lloyd, and his family at their home at 425 Raynor Avenue, Victoria. She plans to return to Nigeria early in the New Year after visiting friends and supporters in the United States.

During her absence, the farm, orphanage and training centre are being managed by her husband, Robert; their 19-year-old daughter, Jane; their son Ronald, and several volunteers from Canada and the United States.

"We've had the most wonderful support," Mrs. Whyte said, "but for some reason most of it comes from the United States. As a Canadian, I only wish my countrymen would help us more."

Born and raised on a farm in Saskatchewan, Mom Whyte says she is still first and foremost a farmer. But her adventures would fill several volumes.

For 11 years she operated Whytehaven, a home for needy and unwanted children, on her farm at Bowmanville, Ont. Then, in 1959, the Ontario government closed down the home.

"By then, we had nearly 150 children in our care," Mrs. Whyte said. "The government said this was at least three times too many under provincial regulations. The children were taken away and scattered among various homes and institutions."

After Whyte Haven was closed and the farm sold, Mr. and Mrs. Whyte moved out to British Columbia and settled for a while at Summerland in the Okanagan.

'MOM' WHYTE
. . . visiting son here

"We were told we could get a licence to operate a children's home in the province and we were offered 25 acres of land near Nelson for that purpose. But for some reason or other the licence was refused.

"The chief difficulty, I think, is that Canada is more concerned with laws and regulations than human beings."

After a year in Summerland, Mrs. Whyte and her husband moved to Nigeria and began developing jungle land donated to them by the Nigerian government. Despite heavy rain and blight, they managed to produce enough vegetables, cocoa and pineapple to feed hundreds of starving children.

★ ★ ★

Later, they established what is now known as the Kappa Youth Training Centre, operated in conjunction with the orphanage and the farm.

"Our scheme for training young farmers is working well," Mrs. Whyte said. "The boys come from many different villages in Kappa province and they train with us for two years.

"When they complete their training, the government gives them 10 acres of land each and we give them enough stock to start a farm.

"We also have a large bakeshop and we supply bread to hundreds of hungry families."

Two of Mrs. Whyte's assistants are Ingrid Carlson and Val Swan, two young Canadians she trained on her farm in Ontario.

"We're always looking for more workers as well as spiritual and material help. We could use a full-time doctor to help us establish a small hospital."

Mrs. Whyte believes all things are possible for those who obey God's laws and have faith.

"I take my stand on the Bible," she says. "I believe it is the holy word of God and I've no use for all this shilly-shallying over the words and what they mean."

★ ★ ★

Mrs. Whyte said she has received considerable support for her Nigerian enterprise from U.S. prayer groups which have heard of it from gospel hour broadcasts.

They include Lutherans, Episcopallans and Methodists, and now the Southern Baptists are rallying to their support.

She showed colored slides of her work in Nigeria at Victoria West United Church Sunday night, and she would like to open a Nigerian handicrafts shop in the city.

KIWANIANS HEAR CITY CANDIDATES

Hospital Survey Rapped by Baird

All stayed fairly close to the platforms revelaed Monday at the University of Victoria.

Ald. Robert Baird led off with a sharp attack on the Agnew report on hospitals.

The report, in process of being compiled, is designed to outline Greater Victoria's hospital needs for the next 20 years.

"I am critical of the survey," said Ald. Baird. "I believe we already have on record all the information we need."

WANTS BRIDGE

Ald. Baird said he is against the building of a convention centre if it would cost the taxpayers money, but added that he was in favor of "a bridge across James Bay."

Labor official Laurence Ryan told the Kiwanians he is running on a reform ticket.

"I have no illusions about the challenges, facing civic governments," he said. "I am fully aware that they are extremely complex."

He stated that if elected he will press for urban development in which the role of the regional planner is fully utilized.

"I am running on a reform platform, I want to reform the government."

Newspaperman William Thomas said he could see no conflict between his job as a newspaperman and his desire to serve on city council.

NO CONFLICT

"I don't see any conflict at all. In fact I think it would help because I've spent my life finding things out."

He said he was in favor of a convention centre and "Where it goes doesn't really matter. We need a convention centre desperately and urgently."

Ald. Ian Stewart took the stand that the most important single challenge facing Victoria in the immediate future was that of urban development.

He named the current economic study in the Wharf Street waterfront area as typical of a project that could eventually broaden the city's tax base by attracting a heavy flow of private capital.

"The growth and success of a city rests largely with its planning department," he said. "The formula they come up with must attract capital and the commitment of private funds."

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow touched lightly on the presentation to the city of a $2 million cheque from the McPherson Estate and told the Kiwanians the existing city council worked well together as a team.

"We are trying very hard to develop the city into an area of which you can be justly proud."

Ald. Edgelow noted he had served on council for 14 years and is chairman of the city's finance committee.

Clyde Savage, a former alderman seeking re-election, once again refused to make any election promises.

"I just do not believe in making promises I can't fulfill," he said. "I do promise to give earnest consideration to every problem that comes up and to make my decisions only after serious thought."

Ald. Savage did state that if elected he will apply himself seriously to attempting to find a solution to the youth problems facing Victoria.

Fred Bevis, a retired electrician, said he would press for more low-rent housing "without the social stigma."

He would also work for better schools, hospitals and homes for the aged and woud oppose any proposals advocating the dumping of sewage into the sea.

Ald. Lily Wilson outlined the development of the Family and Children's Court and said that when it finally opened in January "a long-standing dream will have come true for me."

Ald. Wilson noted that the building of the family court marked the second time that the four core municipalities—Esquimalt, Saanich, Oak Bay and Victoria—had joined together in a common cause.

There was no question period.

'TWO PROBLEMS REMAIN'

Sea Outfalls Supported By Pathologist

A pathologist at Royal Jubilee Hospital supports deep outfall marine sewage discharge as recommended by an engineering study for southern Vancouver Island.

Dr. Ken Thornton, in a Dec. 4 letter to Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis, said long outfalls would render wastes bacteriologically inactive.

The letter was made public by Reeve Curtis Tuesday night at a public all-candidates meeting in Royal Oak and immediately touched off a controversy.

Reeveship candidate Gordon Campbell said the letter is outdated.

Monday Dr. Thornton had not yet read my report on the land infiltration system used in California. When I spoke to him Tuesday evening he had just finished reading it," he said.

Mr. Campbell said he believes Dr. Thornton no longer held the views expressed in the Dec. 4 letter.

In the letter, he said two problems will remain with long outfalls –biological recycling over a long-term period and the more immediate problem of viral diseases.

'Urgent Search for Land'

He recommended that "urgent search should be made to ensure that land is preserved adjacent to the main marine outfall for effective treatment plants as and when these become available, so that pumping of maw comminuted sewage far out to sea should be as early as possible replaced by the pumping out of treated comminuted sewage and, if practical, ensuring that treatment inactivated any enteric viruses present, such the virus of hepatitis."

He cited the "progressive attitude" of Reeve Curtis in planning sea disposal but recommended that he "maintain an open mind about land disposal for segments of the collection system if this proves practical."

Mr. Campbell's suggestion for land filtration is based on a program in Santee, California, where sewage water is reclaimed by a process of pools and lakes and land filtration. It is then chlorinated and used in a swimming pool. Eleven acres serve the community of 15,000.

Coun. Edith Gunning said the Santee project is worthwile, but carried out in conditions different to Victoria — Santee is inland and in an arid area.

Mr. Campbell said he was not concerned with land area, "it is immaterial."

Reeve Curtis charged that "for Mr. Campbell to dismiss the area of land is unrealistic. It would require an area set aside as large as Victoria — it is just not possible."

Mr. Campbell said 20 "aquatic parks of 11 acres each would take care of 300,000 persons and provide "200 acres for parkland and recreation."

Reeve Curtis then cited the opinion of Associated Engineering Services which made the local sewerage survey and recommended sea disposal.

Engineer D. A. Whelen said "the conditions which apply to the receiving water and the uses to which the receiving water is put vary so greatly that there is no validity in any comparison between Victoria and California, or for that matter between Victoria and Vancouver.

"The tremendous mixing effect which exists in the offshore waters in Victoria, the extremely low termperature of this water and the fact that bathing is restricted to a very few isolated occasions are peculiar to Victoria and very different from the conditions in California and Vancouver."

Mr. Campbell countered by saying "distribution of raw sewage doesn't deal with virus diseases. This plan is a fraud."

City Businessman Tells of Transaction

A man charged with fraud in connection with the financing of a home for retired persons was said in Victoria county court Tuesday to have described himself as a Baptist minister and missionary executive.

Logan Mayhew, 3515 Beach, was giving evidence in the trial of Leslie Millin of Vancouver who has pleaded not guilty to three counts of fraud.

Millin is charged with obtaining by fraudulent means from Nick Shewchuk, $5,100 and 160 acres of land in in a transaction involving two shares of stock in BHP Investments.

He is also alleged to have obtained $5,000 for one share from Donald Fischer and $2,500 for one half-share from Jennie Zailo.

Mr. Mayhew said he had put up most of the money involved in the Chateau Victoria project on the basis that, if some units could be sold, there would be no problem with subsequent financing.

He said he put up $30,000, some of which had been used to pay back taxes on land purchased near Esquimalt Lagoon.

After the property was foreclosed, Mr. Mayhew said he put up $10,00 sand later an additional $5,000 on options to repurchase the land for $86,000 and hand it over to the company.

Donald Joseph Fischer, 95 Crease Avenue, said he met Millin through a friend in April, 1965, and had been offered a share for $5,000.

He gave Millin a post-dated cheque for $1,000 and then investigated the project. He found there was a mortgate against the company and that no money had been deposited with Montreal Trust, as stated.

Witness said Millin told him the money from the units was in the hands of the lawyers, and the matter would be straightened out soon.

Mr. Fischer said he believed Millin's explanation, and later obtained $3,000 from his father towards the cost of the share.

The hearing continued today.

Strike Notice Served Six By Butchers

Statutory 48-hour strike notice was served Monday by the butchers' union on six Victoria and Vancouver area supermarkets.

The move followed lockout notice by all the companies, which have said a strike against ore store will result in lockouts against meat department employees in all other stores.

Companies involved in Victoria are Safeway, Super-Valu and Shop-Easy. These stores, plus Dominion, IGA and High Low, are involved in Vancouver.

Union secretary George Johnston said the strike notice was made general because the employers' general lockout notice put union members at a disadvantage.

However, it "does not necessarily change the union's strategy to strike only one store," he said.

Negotiations that started Monday were to resume today.

In another dispute, agreement has been reached between bakery workers and six lower mainland companies. But the union has applied for a labor department-supervised strike vote against Super-Valu, which didn't agree with the settlement, which includes a wage increase of $24 a week over two years.

OAK BAY MEETING

More Apartments Would Broaden Base for Taxes

Apartment construction should be encouraged in Oak Bay as a means of increasing the tax potential, council candidate Dr. G. Scott Wallace told an all-candidates meeting Tuesday.

He did not advocate construction of high-rise apartments but said construction of three-storey buildings should be encouraged.

Hospitals, water pollution, housing and education should take precdence over parks and greenways, he said.

All 12 candidates for council seats attended the meeting sponsored by the Oak Bay Ratepayers' Association, Association of Women Electors and the Oak Bay Board of Trade.

Candidates spoke in order of draw.

TAXATION

He warned that while the intermunicipal committee has been worthwhile, the government's trend towards regional districts must be watched closely because joint borrowing power could commit property owners to an excessive share of borrowings for social services.

He also advocated relief from social services charges against property tax so that people on fixed incomes "would not be taxed out of their homes."

J. D. Watts, the other reeveship candidate, also championed the taxpayer.

He said that much as he would like to see certain improvements made he could not recommend borrowing at eight per cent.

He said that only money from the sale of surplus municipal lands should be used for such projects as a branch library and park development. He also opposed large scale borrowing for implementation of projects suggested in the Oak Bay community plan.

OPEN AREAS

He urged regional planning to control the transfer of farm or raw land for urban use "if we are to leave any open countryside within reach of our children."

Council candidate Jack Rhodes also opposed running up of debt to implement the new plan but he felt there were a number of proposals in the plan which could be implemented without cost.

"We can't reject the needs of today for the sake of tomorrow. There are things which must be done now."

Coun. Frances Elford said the next few years were most important for Oak Bay. She foresaw local problems with the Oak Bay plan and urged caution on the "radical proposals" therein.

She warend that the needs of youth must be met and said it is better to build youth centres than detention centres.

MUST BE PROTECTED

Ian Horne recognized the fact that municipal business, because of regional boards, is becoming more complicated and said the municipalities must be protected.

James Audain advocated school costs on an ability to pay basis. He said that although Oak Bay is a wealthy community, this was no excuse to spend money like water.

He opposed the construction of high-rise apartments in good residential areas.

Alex Hendry wants the "home and gardens" atmosphere maintained in Oak Bay.

He suggested the building bylaw be changed to permit frame construction of apartments. Then the requirement for many years to come could be satisfied by construction in areas already zoned for apartments.

COSTS KEPT DOWN

W. J. Wade referred to improvements made during his years as works committee chairman. He said costs have been kept down. He would continue to work to provide essential services as economically as possible.

Walter Dodsworth approved of high-rise apartments, pointing out that the higher the building, the more open space left around it. He also advocated sale of lands not needed for parks to finance recreational facilities.

Donald Cameron strongly opposed high-rise apartments. He said the most expensive of high-rises in Oak Bay provides about $19,000 a year in taxes.

If a similar one were built it would mean a possible tax reduction of only $1.30 a year gross for a property owner paying $330 in taxes and only 32 cents net after services to such a building were paid for.

Leonard Duncan called for more use of school buildings and grounds by the public; more outdoor recreation for all groups.

"That would keep some people out of hospital," he said.

He also approved extension of Hampshire Road to Cadboro Bay Road.

Western Show Saturday Night

A two-hour country and western show by Keith Pott's Wagon Wheel Roundup group will be staged Saturday at 8 p.m. at Metchosin Hall.

Thomas Craycroft, who sings in the show, will be master of ceremonies. Others performing are The Country Aces, Paul Nedhon Nedohin on the fiddle, the Potts family providing country harmony, comedian Les White, and Cec Spence on the bass.

The group will stage its annual December show for inmates at William Head.

MAY WISH TO BECOME OFFICIALLY BILINGUAL

Manitoba, N.S.—Particular Cases

OTTAWA (CP) — Manitoba and Nova Scotia are described as "particular cases" in the bilingual structure suggested by the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

The commission proposes in the first volume of its final report released Tuesday that Ontario and New Brunswick, because of their heavy French-speaking populations, join Quebec as officially bilingual provinces.

It adds that Manitoba and Nova Scotia may wish to take the same step "of their own volition" as a result of old and entrenched French communities.

"Manitoba and Nova Scotia appear to us to be particular cases," it says.

The French in Manitoba had a long history in the province and "at one time enjoyed extensive educational and linguistic rights."

In 1961, seven per cent or 61,000 Manitobans were French-speaking.

The community in Nova Scotia was relatively concentrated, had long-established roots in some regions, and close ties with the French-speaking community in New Brunswick.

Given these factors, the governments of both provinces might want to respond by steadily increasing concrete measures to recognize their French-speaking communities.

"They may of their own volition even wish to become 'officially bilingual provinces' with the full language regimes entailed," the report says.

SHOULD HAVE SERVICES

The report recommends that all provinces other than Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick declare that French and English may be used in their legislatures, and that all seven provide services for their French-speaking communities.

"In many sectors a translation bureau will suffice," it says. "For the educational system much more will be needed."

The question of services for the French-speaking community "hardly arises" in Newfoundland, where the minority represented less than one per cent of the population, or about 3,000, in 1961.

"The situation is more serious in Manitoba."

The commission suggests that Quebec in particular would be of help in setting up services. The provinces should try for mutual agreements to exchange arrangements to train French-speaking personnel, particularly teachers.

NATO's Future at Stake

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The semi-annual ministerial meeting of NATO in Brussels next week is perhaps as important for the future of the alliance as any ever held.

Some earth-shaking prospects face NATO, which for the last year has been drafting ways to expand its political role in Europe.

But there is a general climate of uncertainty around NATO and some special problems inside. President de Gaulle is the extreme example of the atmosphere.

The French president, on the basis of last week's utterances, may well plan to cut loose France altoghether.

Dean Acheson, former U.S. secretary of state, said Sunday that de Gaulle is consistent and that he believes France's departure can be expected, with nothing to be done about it. France would give a year's notice next year and depart in 1969, as the NATO house rules permit.

But Europe itself is preoccupied and rapport with the U.S. busy in Vietnam, has deteriorated.

Others bsides France seem increasingly to fear the American economic and technological invasion. Belgium recently barred any further foreign takeovers of its businesses. Prime Minister Wilson, in another carrot for British entry to the European Common Market—which de Gaulle blocks—spoke out against the hazard of the American presence.

On the other hand, the U.S. has gained considerable European support, France excluded, in combatting the speculative attack on the dollar which followed British devaluation.

There remain other differences about how strongly East-West accord should be pursued and how much NATO should be bent toward such accord.

Within NATO, the near-war between Turkey and Greece has been a blow.

And what is going to happen to U.S. policy after Robert McNamara, a NATO strongman for nearly seven years, retires as defence secretary?

It was McNamara who replaced the concept of massive nuclear retaliation with that of the flexible response. Prompted by complaints from the other 14 members, McNamara formed a special committee to improve consultation on nuclear policy.

There is the question whether the U.S. troops commitment to Europe will remain unweakened, and whether Britain's economic problem mean an end to the British Army on the Rhine.

Last and by no means least is the shadow of the new missile race with the Soviet Union and the U.S. decision to start a $5,000,000,000 missile defence system—officially as a shield against Chinese missiles of the 1970s. Canada has refused to join in this system.

Military-minded U.S. congressmen already are pushing for export of the missile defence to NATO. Congressmen Paul Findley of Illinois, a Republican, made such a proposal recently to NATO parliamentarians. More is expected to be heard about this idea.

FRANCE PLEDGES AID FOR ALLIES

PARIS (Reuters)—A Gaullist deputy Monday reaffirmed a French commitment to "automatically" assist any NATO member under attack.

Andre Beaugitte delivered the pledge to a meeting of the Western European Union assembly, made up of parliamentarians from Britain and the six European Common Market countries, all members of NATO.

"France is bound to afford automatic assistance to any of its WEU allies that would be the object of an armed attack in Europe according to the Brussels treaty and Paris agreement," which set up WEU, Beaugitte said.

★ ★ ★

The French government in recent years, within the context of the Atlantic Alliance, has denied a commitment to provide automatic military assistance following an attack on an Atlantic ally.

In a note warning of a buildup of the Soviet fleet in the Mediterranean, a Dutch member of the WEU described the assembly as an appendage to the Atlantic Alliance and said French withdrawal from NATO military command weakened both the alliance and the assembly.

★ ★ ★

The Dutch note said Russia has 46 ships in the Mediterranean, compared with 50 ships in the U.S. Sixth Fleet.

Submitted by socialist Frans Goedhardt, the note contended the French withdrawal from the NATO integrated military command left NATO's southern flank isolated.

In the discussion, Beaugitte also asserted there would be no possibility of Russia taking over the Mers-el-Kebir base in Algiers which France is scheduled to evacuate in January.

U.S. Eases Standards On Salmon Packers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Coast Guard gave qualified support Tuesday to a bill that would exempt auxiliary vessels used for salmon fishing in the Pacific Northwest from some marine inspection regulations.

"The salmon industry of the Pacific Northwest, from Puget Sound to Alaska, is threatened with economic extinction by the recent Coast Guard interpretation of laws of inspection of cannery tender vessels, fishing vessels and fishing tender vessels which carry fish and supplies to and from vessels and canneries," Republican Thomas M. Pelly of Washington told a House merchant marine subcommittee considering the bill.

Rear Adm. Charles P. Murphy, chief of the Coast Guard's office of merchant marine safety, said the strict inspection was ordered in part because of what he termed extremely hazardous procedures for the transfer of petroleum from the auxiliary vessels.

But, Murphy said, the Coast Guard would agree to the waiving of inspection if the exemption were limited to five years and to vessels operating in the northwest.

This, he said, would provide time for completion of an over-all study of fishing vessel safety.

'SO MANY CONTINUED TO COME'

MAILLARDVILLE: FOURTH IN SERIES

The Real Drama of Survival

By BRUCE YEMEN

The survival of Maillardville as a distinctive French-speaking community in British Columbia offers few lessons for its survival in the future.

It began, grew and still lives under the wing of the Roman Catholic Church, just as so many Western Canadian French-speaking communities survived and just as Quebec parishes survived in post-Conquest days.

Maillardville was established in 1909 by a trainload of 110 families recruited from Quebec lumbering towns to work at nearby Fraser Mills.

Reflecting the Quebec style of parish life they asked for their own church and their own school but not for municipal status.

While the church has changed from one French parish to two English-French parishes offering masses in both languages, the parish life is still healthy and close-knit, according to Rev. Alderic Frechette, parish priest at Our Lady of Lourdes Church.

This closeness has been a major help in preserving the French character of the community that still exists.

But as Romeo Paquette, secretary-general of the B.C. French-Canadian Federation, described it, the survival to date is not an indication of success in the long-range struggle against assimilation.

●

"The losses have been heavy," he says. "The real drama of survival in these parts has not been that those who came could expect to preserve the language for their children. It is that so many have continued to come—the losses are continually being replenished."

Newcomers to Maillardville—mostly from Prairie French settlements—have traditionally found their way to the financial centre of Maillardville, the Caisse Populaire.

This bank-credit union business, operating for years out of a dilapidated frame building big enough to park two small cars, has helped many new families finance homes. Its assets grew from $663,895 (825 members) in 1963 to $1,400,000 (1,500 members) in 1967.

Now a modern building is ready for the Caisse Populaire on Brunette Avenue and close behind it will go a home for the aged to serve Maillardville.

Coquitlam Reeve James Christmas shares the hope with many that some day Maillardville will boast a business centre of distinctive French character, perhaps near Laval Square, where Our Lady of Lourdes parish is centred.

But Rev. Frechette voiced a strong feeling of the community that such a centre would have to be genuine and not some sort of tourist-oriented museum.

"We want to be alive, not dead," he smiled.

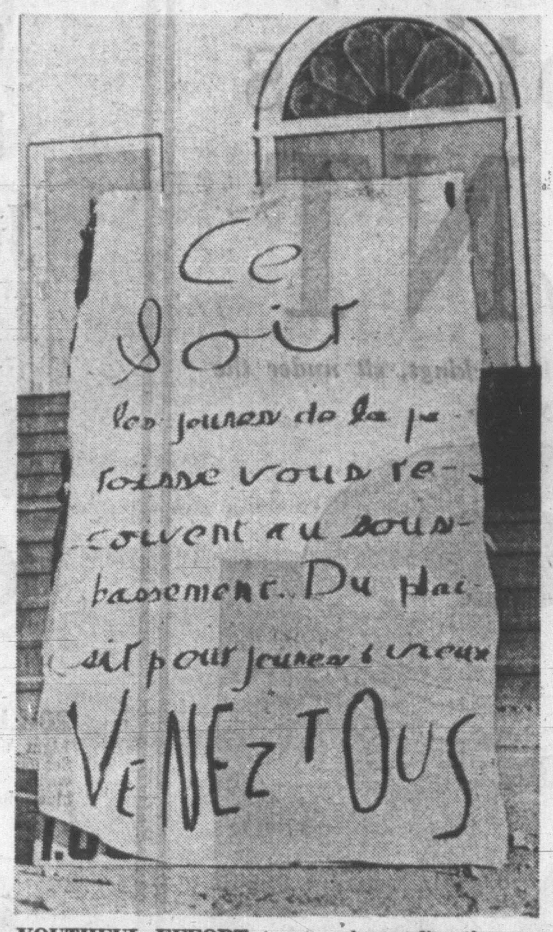
Coquitlam's 8,000 French-Canadian residents are a shrinking minority among the municipality's 45,000 population which lives in some of the fastest-spreading suburbia in the country.

But while there have been occasional complaints that Maillardville has no official representation at any level of government, this is not the issue for French-Canadians there.

The issue is education. Because schools are seen as the main protection for their language, all other problems are secondary.

It makes little sense to talk of rejuvenating the visible old community of Maillardville ("It looks like the devil now," says Reeve Christmas) until the fading language is preserved.

For years the effort was aimed at getting official recognition and tax concessions for the parochial schools connected with the church, but this policy was dropped two years ago by the French-Canadian Federation of British Columbia.



YOUTHFUL EFFORT to organize a discotheque for French-speaking young people resulted in this sign urging young and old to come to a planning meeting in the basement of Our Lady of Lourdes Church parish hall. Older Maillardville residents were encouraged by this indication of interest in French language activities for young people, who increasingly gravitate to the English milieu. (Bruce Yemen Photo.)

Romeo Paquette, secretary-general of the organization, said it became clear that B.C. would never agree to putting the parochial schools on an equal basis with public schools.

About 700 children, half of them English-speaking and half French-speaking, attend Maillardville's two bilingual parochial schools which offer parallel instruction in each language.

Parents pay $10-$12 a month to send their children to the schools and must pay public school taxes as well.

This has meant that a substantial number of French-speaking children enter the public school system. The trend has increased in recent years as the mounting cost of education widened the gap between facilities available in the publicly supported schools and the private schools.

Because of these costs a parochial high school in Maillardville began disappearing about a decade ago as successive grades were cut from the top. Now graduates of the Catholic schools enter the public high school system.

●

The elementary schools have stayed open but with limited facilities. The costs of running the schools are kept down because the majority of teachers are clergy and the few lay teachers are not highly paid.

Sister Beatrice Morin, principal of Our Lady of Fatima elementary school, said co-operation with the public school authorities was excellent.

She defended the quality of the education given to her students and public school district superintendent G. H. Nelson confirmed that French-speaking graduates of the parochial schools seem to compete on an equal basis with public school graduates.

But the outlook for the parochial schools in an increasingly costly education age is not good.

Would the parochial schools survive if instruction in French were incorporated in the public schools?

"That's for the church authorities to decide," said Mr. Paquette, who made clear that French-Canadians have completely given up their hopes for any official protection of confessional education.

They're concentrating on language, not religion.

CITY LOOK AT CASTLE REQUESTED

Victoria city council will ask the Greater Victoria School Board to permit an inspection of Craigdarroch Castle by city engineering department.

Historian James K. Nesbitt has claimed that the historic building is being permitted to fall into disrepair by the school board, present owners of the castle.

The school board has denied the charge and claims that the building is being maintained in good order.

'DELICATE'

"We are between two stools here," said Mayor Hugh Stephen. "We don't own the building but we shall own it one day. I am assured by the school board that the castle is being excellently maintained.

"But possibly just to assure all who are worried we should ask the school board's permission to carry out an inspection.

"It is a delicate area of responsibility and I would ask that any inspection only be made with the board's permission and co-operation."

INCREASED HARVEST

In the early 1940s an acre of corn produced less than 30 bushels—while today in the U.S. that same acre produces nearly 70.

SEVEN AREAS JOIN TO FIGHT POLLUTION

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Seven lower mainland municipalities have agreed in principle to a co-operative fight against air pollution, Ald. Doug Stout said Monday.

"We've had numerous talks and they have agreed with the principle of a common bylaw," he told a stewardship meeting.

Academic Pressures Blamed for Suicides

TORONTO (CP) — The weekend suicide of a 19-year-old York University student supports the belief that suicides are bound to occur on large campuses, says medical authorities at three Ontario universities.

Joel Hendricks of Belleville threw himself in front of oncoming traffic on the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway Friday night. A note was found on his body absolving motorists of blame and giving the loss of an intramural football game as the reason for his suicide.

Dr. Neil Agnew, director of York University's psychological services, said the suicide was not an isolated case and blamed student suicides on the loneliness and academic pressures of campus life.

Dr. Agnew said the university tries to solve students' emotional problems by maintaining a high residence rate, giving the students a home base. Each student has his own staff adviser to consult about problems.

Rudy Heinzl, fulltime psychologist at McMaster University in Hamilton, said student suicides are considerably higher than the rate of the general public.

Mr. Heinzl said students are at a stage in life where they are facing enormous challenges and decisions in a highly organized society which has a clear-cut criteria for success or failure.

"Our society places excessive emphasis on success, particularly academic success. We create conditions which produce winners and losers."

Dr. George Wodehouse, director of health service at the University of Toronto, disagreed that pressure to do well academically causes student suicides.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK
SCANDINAVIAN PORK ROAST

1 cup sherry
1 lb. prunes
5 to 6-lb. pork roast
Salt and pepper
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup light cream

Heat sherry to boiling point, dump in prunes and let soak one hour. Now remove pits from prunes and start your oven at 325F or slow. Cut two fairly deep gashes down the entire length of the roast and pack prunes in tightly. Press meat back together as well as you can and tie securely with string. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and put any remaining prunes on top of the meat. Place in roasting pan, pour in sherry in which prunes soaked and bake 30 to 35 minutes per pound of pork. Baste occasionally.

When roast is tender, transfer to hot platter and remove strings. Skim off all fat from pan juices, stir in flour smoothly, add cream and cook over a low heat until gravy bubbles. Season with salt and pepper. Serve six bountifully.

Two Spokesmen for Quebec Debate Province's Future

MONTREAL (CP) — Rene Levesque, advocate of a sovereign Quebec, and newspaper publisher Claude Ryan, supporter of a modified federal system of government, found themselves poles apart Monday when they met in a debate on the province's future.

Mr. Ryan, publisher of the Montreal daily Le Devoir, took sharp issue with Mr. Levesque's proposal that Quebec withdraw from Confederation, set itself up as a sovereign state and maintain only a common market-type of arrangement with the other provinces.

Mr. Ryan said he favors a Canada which would guarantee reasonable language equality. The main problem of French-Canadians was the economic problem and Mr. Levesque's proposals would not change anything. They would not even eliminate the inequalities which existed in Quebec.

Mr. Levesque described Ontario as the powerhouse of Canada and said that federal policies for the development of Canada had been aimed at Ontario rather than at the country as a whole.

Mr. Levesque, a cabinet minister in the former Quebec Liberal government who quit the party two months ago to sit as an independent, argued that a special status or consideration for Quebec in a new constitution would only "balkanize" Canada, hampering the development of all regions. It would be better to make a clean break and give the other provinces the opportunity to develop the federal system they needed and desired.

RYAN

The debate was sponsored by students of Montreal's ecole des hautes etudes commerciales—school of higher commercial studies and included Francois Gauthier, Laval University economist.

Mr. Ryan said Quebec benefits financially from Confederation.

He said a 1964 study indicated that as a result of federal equalization payments especilly, Quebec received $36,000,000 more than it paid to the federal authorities.

He said that since 1964 equalization payments have increased and due to extension of joint programs and federal contracts awarded to Quebec firms the surplus favorable to Quebec now is in the area of $100,000,000 to $200,000,000 annually.

Examination of investment figures by Canadian insurance companies, he said, shows that the proportion of funds they invest in Quebec corresponds to the amount of their obligations toward policy-holders.

He said foreign-owned insurance companies have invested more heavily in Quebec than on the basis of their obligations in the province and the investments figure in their case amounts to about $1,500,000,000.

LEVESQUE
. . . wants clean break

Mr. Ryan said the figures he cited were those at the end of 1966.

Mr. Ryan said many meetings with businessmen and financiers had convinced him the political climate was proving definitely harmful to investment. In several cases Quebec had been deprived of substantial capital investments.

Mr. Levesque said he agreed that political instability does not generate capital investments, but disagreed with claims that the flight of capital had already started. He felt that the "panic" of recent months had resulted from a concerted attack in which Montreal English-language papers had participated.

Mr. Gauthier, who for the most part let Mr. Ryan and Mr. Levesque have the floor, referred to the political instability of Quebec and its effects on the flight or attraction of capital investment.

The situation, he said, is due to the fact that "Quebec speaks of changes, but does not indicate the type of changes which it wishes to bring about." This was largely attributable "to the imcompetence and dishonesty of our politicians."

THEIR LIFELINE'S A PLASTIC TUBE

By PAT DUFOUR

Nine people on Vancouver Island hang on to life by a tube, slender, plastic, and as necessary as the air they breathe.

These are the chronic renal patients who receive regular artificial kidney treatments in the renal unit of the Royal Jubilee Hospital. Without those treatments, the only other alternatives are death or a transplant kidney operation. This operation is currently available in only three Canadian cities, Montreal, Toronto and Saskatoon.

This afternoon, a small group of Victoria women helped those patients hang onto life by donating an infusion pump to the unit. Without this small pump, the expensive artificial kidneys and the $3,000 tanks which feed them would be useless.

Bob Prouse, the registered nurse on duty when I was at the unit this week, explains the pump's importance this way, "Whenever blood leaves the human body there is always a danger of clotting. Heparin, an antidote for clotting, is added to the patient's blood through the infusion pump. Without this, the whole operation would be futile."

Today, at a reception in the nurses' residence, the Florence Nightingale Chapter IODE gave one of these lifesavers as part of a three-fold gift, made possible through the legacy of one of the group's former members, the late Miss Norma Jones. The chapter also gave a television set for use of renal patients and an electric cardiograph for the hospital's cardiograph unit.

A television set, at first, may appear to be a frivolous piece of equipment to donate to a unit so vitally concerned with staving off death. But its need is apparent, once you've spent some time there. Treatments take anywhere from eight to 12 hours and patients may need these as often as two or three times a week.

Why do treatments take so long? As Mr. Prouse translates for layman ears, "The kidneys are one of the most important organs of our bodies, being responsible for the excretion of water, regulation of blood pressure, breakdown of protein, and maintaining the balance of electrolytes in the body.

"In the case of a chronically ill patient, the kidneys are unable to do these jobs. So, the patient must have regular treatments. These take time because it means correcting the whole system, replacing disorder with order."

Not all the patients who attend the renal unit are chronic. Some are acute cases, often caused through accidents, who need temporary assistance in order to return to normalcy. But, for chronic renal patients, life is a series of treatments.

What amazes a visitor who sees the unit for the first time, is the obvious high morale and cheerfulness of patients and staff. The two seem bound together with an intangible courage and strength.

There's fun to be shared, too. They all joined in the gladness of one patient who, between treatments, flew to Regina and back in order to be able to dance at her son's wedding.

There's a determination on the part of the staff to bring as full a life as possible to their patients. One young student receives his treatments at night so that he can return home in the morning, have breakfast and join his class-mates in school.

Started in February, the unit already finds itself needing more equipment in order to provide an adequate service for Vancouver Island. Authorities say that the introduction of home dialysis units would relieve the pressure . . . and costs.

At the recent provincial medical conference held in Victoria, plans were made for a transplant kidney unit to be created at the Vancouver General Hospital. Three surgical teams are already formed there and Dr. A. W. Perry of the Victoria unit tells me that physical arrangements have already been started.

On first thoughts, it might seem premature to consider starting a kidney bank, in preparation for the time when our own province begins this vital and demanding program.

Unconcerned as most of us are with the imminence of death, the saving of life is usually a remote affair.

Yet, a kidney pledged today might save a life years from now. Dr. Perry reports that, the transplant program, barely breathed into existence in British Columbia, has not yet made plans to have similiar supplies to that of the eye banks made available. He does suggest that people who want to pledge kidneys could make provisions in their wills and notify their own doctors to this effect.

Until transplant operations become a reality in our province, however, action such as that taken by the Florence Nightingale Chapter helps keep people alive . . . and waiting.

OF PERSONAL INTEREST

Married 50 Years

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Cummins, 2427 Henry Street, Sidney, will mark their golden wedding anniversary on Thursday. They were married in London, Eng. on December 7, 1917 and settled in Port Arthur, Ont. in 1919, where Mr. Cummins was employed by the Ontario Game and Fisheries department. They came to British Columbia in 1931 and retired to Sidney after the second world war. Mr. Cummins was born at Bear River, P.Q., in 1889 and his wife, nee Sarah Port-Phipps, was born in Chelsea, London, in 1894. Mr. Cummins served with the 8th Battalion 'Little Black Devils' in the first world war. He joined the Forestry Corps in the second world war and saw service in northern Scotland.

Welcoming Party

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Newman recently honored Mr. Newman's niece, Miss Patricia Newman, at a party in their Rockheights Avenue home. Miss Newman has just arrived from England. She had previously been working in Libya. Guests at the affair included Mr. and Mrs. F. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. E. De Costa, Mr. and Mrs T. Dover-Masters, Mr. and Mrs. R. Forsberg, Mr. and Mrs. J. Gaster, Mr. and Mrs. B. Harford, Mr. and Mrs. G. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. H. McIntyre, Mr. and Mrs. D. Vail, Mr. F. Massingham, Miss Jo-Anne McIntyre, Mr. Peter Newman and Miss Janet Baveystock, a recent arrival from England. Miss Newman will leave shortly for Kitimat, where she will be employed as a public health nurse.

In the South

The warm sunshine of California attracts many Victorians during the winter months. Among those who have recently called at British Columbia House while in San Francisco are Mr. and Mrs. William Blair, Mr. Charles Skelton, Mr. A. M. Young, Mr. and Mrs. R. Turcotte, Mrs. Sylvie Tesmeister, Mrs. J. R. Stone, Mr. R. L. Scoble, Mr and Mrs. F. Norton, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Gray.

Travel Overseas

Victorians continue to call at British Columbia House while in London, Eng. Recent signatures in the visitors' book include those of the Misses Laurie Cullingford, Sandra and Kathie Hammond.

Entertain Tonight

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Straith will hold their annual pre-Christmas party in the Empress Hotel's Georgian Lounge this evening. This will be the first social affair to take place there since the Georgian Lounge was remodelled. The hosts' son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Stuart, will be here from Vancouver and Mr. and Mrs. Reg Laver will travel from Port Alberni to attend the party. Several Courtenay friends will also be present. They include Dr. and Mrs. H. A. Mooney, Mr. and Mrs. C. Laver, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sutton and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bool.

BIG WELCOME

A couple checking in at the Empress Hotel, Tuesday afternoon, must have thought that the hotel's "red carpet" treatment was tops. They arrived at their room (one of those completely remodelled under "Operation Teacup") to be greeted by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes, who were on a tour of inspection after the official opening of the new vice-regal suite.

Plan to Live at Prince George After Honeymoon in California

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lynn Thomas McKenzie left on a honeymoon trip to San Francisco following their wedding in St. Dunstan's Anglican Church. On their return, they will make their home in Prince George, B.C.

The bride, the former Dona Louise Boardman, wore a gown of peau d'elegance styled on classic lines with a lace overblouse. Fashioned with belled sleeves, it featured a cathedral train sweeping back from the waistline. A tiered veil of silk illusion misted from a single peau d'elegance rosette headpiece. She carried a bouquet of Cerina roses.

White chrysanthemums and rust-toned asters decorated the church when Archdeacon A. E. Hendy officiated at the candlelight service uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Boardman, 1880 Ferndale Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack McKenzie of Prince George. Mr. Boardman gave his daughter in marriage.

Miss Diana Peterson, the bride's cousin, sang "Because" during the signing of the register. She was accompanied by H. V. Green, organist.

Miss Maureen Maison was maid of honor, Miss Lynn Engel, the bride's cousin, Seattle, was bridesmaid, and Mrs. Desmond Dallaway, the groom's sister, bridesmatron. They wore matching gowns of apricot haze peau d'elegance styled on empire lines with fabric rose and tulle headpieces. They carried single pale green spider chrysanthemums.

John McKenzie acted as best man for his brother. Clint McDonald, the groom's brother-in-law, Henry Hollachoff, Clarence and Bill Boardman, brothers of the bride, ushered the guests.

At the reception following in the Union Centre a three-tier wedding cake, made by the bride's mother and topped with a miniature bride and groom, centred the head table. White and yellow chrysanthemums decorated the room. Archie McKenzie, Tsawwassen, proposed the toast to the bride.

Guests travelled from the provincial interior, the Peace River area, mainland and up-Island points to attend the service.

Lifts Faces Out Of Lines and Wrinkles

Most mothers, of any age, now can know the thrill of a 2nd Debut by letting an amazing discovery lift their faces out of the aging maze of lines and wrinkles at home the new easy way. It's the Wiesbaden Discovery called CEF 600 and 1200 double strength blended into the new skin lotion called 2nd Debut. Moisture is carried under the wrinkled skin layers to push up and out. Once again skin is smooth, soft and so much younger looking most mothers call it a 2nd Debut. Most drug and department stores feature 2nd Debut. Results are almost immediate.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Book About Experts Is Fisherman's Dream

By Penny Saver

Christmas with a sportsman can be a difficult proposition if he insists on buying all his equipment during the season instead of leaving it to Santa to satisfy his needs. But, perhaps, this is a good habit, for I know that my fisherman husband would be very disappointed if I made an ignorant blunder, when buying him a long-awaited fishing rod for a present.

I have found him one little gift on his favorite sport, however, that cannot be the wrong thing. It is a book that contains a series of stories about trips to the fishing areas of Vancouver Island with an expert fisherman and includes an invaluable Vancouver Island fishing calendar. This little book costs only $2.95 and is sure to give any outdoorsman a lot of pleasure.

Books make an excellent gift for the quiet child. For the younger set there is Michael Bond's stories of Padington Bear. Five of these books in a box sell for $3.95. For the eight to 12 age group there is the complete set of children's books by C. S. Lewis for $5.95. The seven books come in an attractive box covered with pictures of the leading characters. Also for this age group is a set of six stories by E. Nesbit. Including the three books about the children who found the Sammiad, this set sells for $5.40.

For the teens there are pocket books for 95 cents each with stories of adventure and mysteries. A sample of their titles includes "Guns at Quebec" by Allan Dwight, "Curtain Call" by Adele DeLeeuw, and "Mystery of the Aztec Idol" by Harriett H. Carr.

A good gift for friends out of the province is "Vancouver Island." This is a book of color photographs of the island going up as far as Campbell River. The photographs are by Ted Czolowski. This fine book sells for only $4.95.

Yesterday I talked about records of Christmas carols. If like me, you're inspired to sing your own, I have found just the book for you. It is the Oxford Book of Carols, and though it is a recent release, it is already a standard carol book. This volume costs $3.50.

If you would like to know where I shopped for these books, please call me at 382-3131.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

Enjoy Carols and Dances

Silver Christmas trees with twinkling lights decorated the stage of Holyrood House, Saturday, when the Chordaleers, a boy's choir, sang a selection of Christmas carols at the St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society's annual Christmas tea. The choir was directed by Mrs. L. Griffiths.

The Adelaide Duncan dancers also provided entertainment with a number of Scottish dances.

Mrs. Hugh Stephen opened the affair. She was presented with a bouquet of red roses by little Lisa Robertson. Mrs. J. MacKenzie was general convener.

Bowls of white chrysanthemums decorated the room where the stalls were arranged. Convening the candy, white elephant and apron stalls were Mrs. E. Collins, Mrs. A. Hill, Mrs. J. Anderson and Mrs. H. Burton.

Red candles, set in sprigs of holly and Christmas ornaments, centred the tea tables. Presiding at the tea tables were Mrs. S. Simpson, Mrs. D. Scott, Mrs. D. Stewart and Mrs. George Gunniss. Floral arrangements were by Mrs. Gerry Inglis and Mrs. J. McCaulay.

Conveners for the tea tables were Mrs. Jean Wislan assisted by committee members, Mrs. J. Sutherland, Mrs. J. Robertson and Mrs. J. Hadden.

Helping out in the kitchen were Mrs. N. Fox, Miss Evelyn Samuel, Mrs. J. Cowan, Mrs. M. Campbell, Mrs. J. Murdoch, Mrs. I. Bourke, and Miss E. Doidge.

Acting as serviteurs were Miss Valerie Kemp, Miss Cindy Voneskey, Miss M. McPherson, Miss C. Baird and Mrs. Flett.

Raffles of a Christmas turkey, a doll, and numerous other items were held during the afternoon.

Mrs. S. D. Fevang (at right) will convene afternoon tea when Order of the Royal Purple holds its annual bazaar and tea in the Elks Hall, Cormorant Street, this coming Saturday from 2 to 4:30 p.m. Also on the committee is Mrs. M. Mackie, at left. The event will be officially opened by Alderman Lily Wilson and proceeds are earmarked for the group's scholarship fund and centennial project, a unit for a local hospital. Stalls will feature novelties, home cooking, candy and a delicatessen. A Lady of Many Pockets will add to the attractions.

Sews for Charity

A New You by Emily Wilkens

DEAR EMILY WILKENS, TAPE NO MORE

What do you do if, when you tape your hair onto your face to set it, your skin "breaks out?" Is there a tape that won't cause this? Thank you.

D. R.

If your face is prone to blemishes, you'll be infinitely better off with an "away-from-the-face" hair style. Virtually all tapes contain glue and can be irritating to sensitive skins. You might, however, try a ribbon-like first aid tape which was originally made for sensitive skin.

Many girls by-pass tape and set their side curls by dampening with setting lotion or gel and clipping or combing them over a roll of cotton, thus keeping the hair off the face during the set.

For emergencies, there's always the curling iron.

FALLING HAIR

My hair is awfully thin and seems to be falling out. Could you tell me how I can make it grow and stop the hair loss?

Mrs. C.

Most hair problems have a three-point check list: 1) physical (which requires professional treatment by a doctor); 2) bacterial (which requires professional treatment by a dermatologist); and 3) external (which requires dedicated personal care!).

Should both your doctor and dermatologist assure you that your problem is due to external conditions, do try warm applications of corn or olive oil once or twice a week.

Heat oil (comfortable to the touch) and rub into your scalp, then wrap your head in four or five changes of hot towels, followed by a mild castile shampoo (two good soapings). Rinse thoroughly.

After every shampoo (as well as every evening), barely moisten fingertips with mineral oil and massage your scalp, rotating gently.

Beware of tugging, vigorous brushing or any harsh treatment. For the time being, eliminate rollers, hair fasteners, sprays and setting lotions.

Give your hair a fresh start by getting a very short blunt cut.

Youthful Beauty

From the early twenties, bedtime massage with a vitalizing night cream is ideal for softening traces of surface skin dryness and tiny lines. Apply Olay vitalizing night cream to cheeks, forehead, and throat and coax it into the skin with light, upward moulding strokes, then remove with a tissue. Such care will encourage complexion loveliness.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

You Can't Deny Weight Gain as You Grow Older

No one can deny that the tendency is to gain weight as one grows older. In fact the weight charts giving average weights show that most people do. There are many factors which enter into this.

Lowman

What many women fail to realize is the difference in figure is not due entirely to more weight but also to the placement of pounds. There is without doubt a redistribution of fat at middle age. Even scientists do not know why this occurs.

Many people blame it on menopause when the output of the female hormone, estrogen, lessens. However, when this loss is replaced by administering estrogen, it is not slimming. This may even increase weight because it encourages fluid retention. Also, men are subject to the middle-age spread just as women are.

The most usual change is distribution which shows in the thickening of the waistline and fatty deposits on the abdomen. Also, many women find that their thighs suddenly bulge or that their upper arms become heavy.

While we do not know exactly what causes this redistribution of weight, we do know special exercise is the only way to combat it. Many times I have watched a pupil gain in pounds because of increased muscular tone while she lost in inches, and just where she wanted to!

Here is an exercise for slimming the upper arms: Most exercises for the arms are also beautifying to the bustline. Stand tall, arms at sides. Clench your fists hard. Keep them this way throughout the exercise. Raise arms sideward, shoulder height, palms up. Now sweep the arms forward-upward until they are in front of you, palms facing you and fists still clenched. Bend your elbows and touch your fists to the shoulders. Return arms to sideward shoulder-height position. Relax. Repeat eight times, relaxing in between times.

If a small bust is making you unhappy, send for my booklet, "Your Bust." Enclose 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request. Address to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Soldier Son Loves Married Woman

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Our 19-year-old son, who is in the service, has written to tell us he has "fallen in love" with a 27-year-old woman. She has three children, is separated from her husband, but is not divorced.

He is coming home on leave next month and says he wants to bring his "girl friend" home for us to meet, but first he wants to be sure we will welcome her and give her a chance.

Abby, this is awfully hard for us to take. Do you really believe that a decent, 27-year-old woman, still married, could get mixed up this way with a 19-year-old boy?

Should we forbid him to bring her home? We want to do the right thing, but we're so upset we can't think straight.

MOM AND DAD.

DEAR M. AND D.: Urge your son to talk with his chaplain, and suggest that he take his "girl friend" along to listen. Tell him that you think a married woman has no business going home with a boy to meet his parents, and you will feel better about "welcoming her, and giving her a chance" if and when she is free. But don't forbid him to bring her home, or he might not come either.

DEAR ABBY: When I was coming home from my vacation I met a wonderful young man on the bus. It was love at first sight for both of us. We have seen each other several times now, and he wants to marry me.

Please don't think I'm dumb, but here's my problem. He is a farm boy from the Prairies and he intends to go right on farming. I love this boy a lot, Abby, but I have hay fever and I don't know whether I could live on a farm.

MARY ANN.

DEAR MARY ANN: Love is nothing to sneeze at. Ask your doctor what's new in hay fever remedies. If you find you can't beat the weed, ask your farm boy if you can sit out the hay fever season in Vancouver.

DEAR ABBY: My 14-year-old daughter came home and told me that everyone in her class at school was asked to fill out a questionnaire. There were questions such as these:

Which parent to you love more—your mother or your father?

Do your parents sleep together?

Do either of your parents smoke or drink?

Do you go to church? If so, which one, and how often?

I feel this is an out-and-out invasion of privacy, and would like to know how you feel about this sort of thing.

IRATE MOTHER.

DEAR IRATE: I agree with you. Why don't you go to school and inquire about the purpose of such questions, who originated the "project," and how the replies are being used?

DEAR ABBY: For Gisela, who wanted to know the origin of that "silly superstition" that to sit 13 at a table is bad luck:

At The Last Supper, Jesus and his 12 Apostles sat, making their number 13. Afterwards Jesus was betrayed by Judas. If you will notice in the painting of The Last Supper, the salt shaker had been overturned, which undoubtedly accounts for another "silly superstition"—that it's bad luck to spill the salt.

Saanich Councillor Opens Annual Bazaar of Church

Councillor Edith Gunning opened the annual Christmas bazaar of St. David's-by-the-Sea Church, held in the parish hall on Saturday. She was introduced by Parish Guild president, Mrs. K. M. Lewis.

In charge of receipts, Mrs. F. Mutrie announces that proceeds amount to more than $400.

A huge Christmas tree set the theme, which was furthered by the miniature replicas that decorated individual tea tables. Serviteurs were Mrs. J. M. B. Nicoll, Mrs. T. Anderson, Mrs. P. C. Seddicum, Mrs. W. Inkman, Mrs. W. Dobbin, Miss K. Cullum and Miss C. Broadhurst.

The church's branch of the Anglican Women of Canada had a well-patronized candy stall that was run by Mrs. F. Tanner and Wendy Ewen. Church calendars and other publications were sold by Mrs. J. Kidson.

The gift stall was bright with calendars and panels, painted by Mrs. Isabel Hobbs; needlework and other handicrafts. These were sold by Mrs. A. L. Hays, Mrs. E. Keddie and Mrs. N. W. Life.

Mrs. C. M. Fevang, Mrs. R. O. Udall and Mrs. R. Sinkinson were in charge of a superfluity stall. Home cooked delicacies were offered by Miss Nancy Lea, Mrs. Helen Dawson and Mrs. T. Day.

Mrs. D. C. Wilkinson was in charge of a popular delicatessen stall. She was assisted by Mrs. R. J. McRae, Mrs. P. W. Wilkinson and Cathy Wilkinson. Mrs. I. D. MacDonald sold mystery parcels and contests were arranged by Mrs. C. B. Peterson, Mrs. E. Mackinrot and Miss Joan Jamieson.

Mrs. M. Glover and Miss Pamela Glover arranged a children's attraction.

Birth Control Clinics Urged

VANCOUVER (CP) — A system of birth control clinics sponsored by public health departments is the only hope of heading off a major crisis in unwanted children, a Vancouver united services committee report said Tuesday night.

The report said illegitimate births in Vancouver have increased by 46 per cent over the past five years and unless the moral attitudes of the community and government regarding contraception change, "it would appear the problem will continue unchanged."

The clinic plan included "provision of contraceptive information, advice and material to all sections of the population."

The report said the number of children born out of wedlock increased to 121 per 1,000 live births last year from 70 per 1,000 in 1961.

It said the 1966 total in the province was 3,800.

The committee said the increase in illegitimate births is not due to a rise in the rate of illegitimate births but to a rapid increase in the number of women of child-bearing age.

The report said the problem is increased by a tendency among unwed mothers to regard use of contraceptives as the height of immorality.

"The use of contraceptives seems to convert premarital sex from a crime of passion to a premeditated crime and hence is unacceptable to many," it said.

One social worker said he doubted recommendations of the report would be implemented because "the whole problem of illegitimacy cuts into all kinds of religious, racial and economic circles and the idea of putting contraceptives ahead of old-fashioned morality will be rejected by many."

LODGE MEN HEAR CAROLS

Forty residents from the Salvation Army's Matson Lodge have been invited to the Christmas Carol Service staged by Pacific Maritime Command in the old gym at Esquimalt, Dec. 17.

The hour-long service, starting at 7 p.m., will include carols by the choir of the Armed Forces School of Music under the direction of Flt. Sgt. Robert Stebbings. The public is invited.

U.S. ARMY has released Joe A. Smith, the soldier it "lost" for 18 months. Smith was given a 30-day leave in 1965 after basic training and went home to Brownsville, Calif., to await orders. They never came.

Victoria March Surpassed All Others

The multitude who trekked in Victoria's Miles for Millions march 12 days ago surpassed the efforts of every other community in Canada.

"Your experience has topped the program of marches for our Centennial year. Congratulations to your committee, their sponsors and the marchers," says a letter from M. F. Strong, director-general in the office of external aid.

"Grateful thoughts to Greater Victoria and its thoughtful residents."

But not before he makes it clear there will be more marches.

"It is certainly the intention of this office to see that marches are continued across Canada in 1968."

The director-general says the enthusiasm Canadian youth has shown will make him and his associates work harder to achieve UN objectives in aiding developing nations.

About 7,000 of 10,000 volunteers completed a 26-mile circuit through Greater Victoria Nov. 25. Sponsors of the marchers will contribute an estimated $100,000 to Project 100, a youth scheme to raise money for portable classrooms to be sent to developing nations in the Commonwealth.

Rev. Walter McLean, deputy director of the Centennial International Development Program and one of those who helped organize the march, has also written words of praise for Greater Victoria's youth.

The five days and 15 speaking engagements at schools here were among the "most personally rewarding" of the year.

"I received the best hearing of anywhere in Canada," he said.

NEW DRUG HAS NO MAJOR SIDE EFFECTS

TB Treatment Breakthrough

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new oral anti-tuberculosis drug —hailed as apparently representing a new breakthrough in treating the disease—now is available for prescription by doctors and hospitals throughout the United States.

Spokesmen for Lederle Laboratories of Pearl River, N.Y., which developed the drug after a 10-year search, said Tuesday it was marketed Monday following approval by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

The drug's trade name is Myambutol and is chemically known as ethambutol.

The Lederle spokesmen said that in clinical trials involving more than 2,900 tuberculosis patients in the United States and other countries since 1961, Myambutol proved significantly effective in tuberculosis cases that had become resistant to standard drugs such as isoniazid, streptomycin and para-amino salicylic acid or PAS. Myambutol is designed, though, for use in combination with some of the older drugs, especially isoniazid.

The World Health Organization estimates there are 15,000,000-20,000,000 cases of infectious tuberculosis in the world, with 2,000,000-3,000,000 victims dying annually.

Dr. Robert J. Anderson of New York, medical director of the National Tuberculosis Association, said in a telephone interview:

BREAKS TB BARRIER

"Ethambutol appears to represent a new breakthrough in the chemotherapy (chemical treatment) of tuberculosis, particularly in the treatment of patients who have not responded to prior treatment and whose TB germs may be resistant to the major anti-TB drugs."

Anderson said the committee on therapy of the American Thoracic Society—medical section of the tuberculosis society—has invited all clinical investigators involved in the drug's trials to meet with the society in January "to delineate the drug's potential."

Shirley Ferrebee, a medical satistician and chief of the tuberculosis research division of the U.S. public health service, told a reporter: "We believe that the new drug is going to make a really significant difference in the treatment of patients."

She said the present standard drug treatment "causes a lot of gastro-intestinal stress and a lot of patients don't take it . . . They toss it out the window or down the drain."

Lederle and independent researchers said the new drug has no major undesirable side effects.

The drug is derived from a compound once tested as a rubber additive by the Stamford, Conn., laboratories of the American Cyanamid Co., which operates Lederle Laboratories. It proved useless as a rubber additive but was routinely turned over to Lederle for a check to see if it could be used in medicine.

Subsequent tests showed it to be effective against tuberculosis in mice and following further refinements the compound was developed into Myambutol.

Big Lethbridge Fire

LETHBRIDGE (CP)—A fire described as the worst in the city's history Monday night destroyed a restaurant, three businesses and portions of a hotel housed in a hotel-convention centre. Damage estimates ranged up to $700,000 after the fire was brought under control about seven hours after it broke out in the basement below the restaurant. No serious injuries were reported.

CHARGED IN 3 DEATHS

'Authority on Insulin'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A former co-worker says William Archerd was "an authority on insulin" when he worked as an attendant at Camarillo State Hospital.

Evelyn Briggs testified Tuesday that she and other hospital workers "thought he was more thoroughly trained than we were."

The prosecution alleged the killings were motivated by insurance or other monetary gain.

The deaths of two men and another of Archerd's wives may come up at the non-jury trial. Superior Court Judge Adolph Alexander denied a defence motion to bar evidence in the deaths of Juanita Plum Archerd, 46, her former husband, Frank Stewart, 54, and William Edward Jones Jr., 34.

"100% Colombian coffee should always be vacuum packed to keep it 100% fresh," says coffeegrower Juan Valdez.*

Juan wants his coffee to come to you as fresh as the day it was ground from the beans. Because only then can you appreciate the full flavour of his 100% Colombian Coffee.

Juan and coffeegrowers like him spend their lives growing coffee beans that deliver a richer, fuller taste.

Five thousand feet up in the Colombian Andes, the volcanic soil has had 300,000 million years to become rich in minerals. And the tall Guamas trees there spread a tent of shade so the beans can ripen slowly.

These are the reasons why 100% Colombian Coffee tastes so good. And why Boban vacuum packs it to keep it that way.

Saskatchewan Men Hardy

TORONTO (CP)—Men in Saskatchewan, unlike other Canadian men, outlive their wives, says a Toronto woman doctor who began her practice there in 1925.

Nine per cent of Saskatchewan's approximately 1,000,000 residents are older than 70 and there are 31,000 men to 29,000 women in that age group, Dr. Lillian Chase told a meeting of physicians to homes for the aged.

"Do they come from stronger parents? Do they lead more healthy lives? I never heard of a man in Saskatchewan who did not farm of play games or shoot or hunt. Sedentary life is thought to be shortening. Or is it because they got superior medical care with no worry about doctor bills? Who knows?"

The province introduced hospitalization for everyone in 1946 and compulsory tax-supported medical care in 1962.

"If you expect me to say what a retrograde step universal medicare is you are going to be disappointed," said Dr. Chase.

W5 SWITCHED BECAUSE THAT'S THE WAY IT IS

TORONTO (CP) — The CTV television network is changing the broadcast time of its Sunday night public affairs program W5 so it does not conflict with the CBC's public affairs program The Way It Is. CTV President Gordon Keeble told a news conference Tuesday that W5 will be scheduled from 9 to 10 p.m. on Sundays, probably starting in January. Both programs now are scheduled 10-11 p.m. Sundays.

Fishes Sleep in the Deep

ROME (AP) — Soviet and U.S. scientists now agree that fish do sleep, and so soundly they won't awaken either for lights or noise.

Like people, they do their best sleeping at night. They like a comfortable rock pillow.

In the past, scientists have never been quite sure. The new view was gathered by the UN Food and Agriculture Organization from reports at a conference on fish behavior in relation to fishing techniques.

The first testimony came from O. N. Kiseley of the Polar Research Institute of Marine Fisheries and Oceanography in Murmansk, U.S.S.R.

Drifting about in a one-man diving chamber 600 to 2,000 feet deep in the icy Barents Sea, he said he saw cod and haddock asleep, singly and in groups, with noses pointed toward the current.

The reacted neither to the diving chamber nor to the blinking of its powerful lights.

"Try as we might, we could not wake them up."

CHALLENGER WORKING DOOR-TO-DOOR

Close Morton-Green Fight Predicted

By DON DINGWALL

Some observers see a difference of only 100 votes between the two.

Third candidate Mrs. Margaret Whittaker is given an outsider's chance as a late-comer to the hustings.

Dor. Morton probably has a margin of support in the Chemainus area to counterbalance the polling strength claimed in the south end by Green supoorters.

The only door-to-door canvassing being done is by Claude Green in Chemainus.

He praises the public spiritedness of Cehmainus ratepayers in always turning out to vote—they can generally be counted on for a 70 per cent turnout no matter the issue.

Mr. Green says south end voters are lackadaisical in their approach to public affairs.

He says he was first of all perturbed by the late entry of Mrs. Whittaker. Now he feels she is creating more interest, and reckons the bigger the vote the better his chance.

●

Reeve Morton thinks Mrs. Whittaker's entry into the campaign and her accusations of extravagance by the hospital board (of which Mr. Green is chairman) increase his chances of election.

The feeling is that Mrs. Whittaker is running a spoiling campaign and Mr. Green is likely to be hurt most.

Her councillor husband, George Whittaker, considered running as reeve and accused Mr. Green of not keeping a promise to consult him before declaring his nomination.

Don Morton points to the fact that in three past campaigns his margin of victory has been 2 to 1 on each occasion.

●

He claims controversy over the siting and building of an ice arena at Fullers Lake, the new municipal hall and successive defeats of sewer by-laws is a dead issue now that the arena and hall are accomplished facts and the sewer installation is to be done as a local improvement.

He said it is a "piece of nonsense" to speak of the municipality being divided into north and south. It should be taken for granted that any candidate for reeve or council will represent the whole of the municipality.

As a parting shot, Reeve Morton said: "I don't think either of my opponents has any real conception of the size of the job."

Mr. Green ran his own business for 35 years and has been hospital board chairman for eight years.

Mrs. Whittaker is considered an also-ran by most onlookers but says she has a chance if people vote for someone and a policy and not to keep someone out.

Apart from her accusations against Mr. Green and the hospital board of having cocktail parties and cruises at public expense the contest has been free of recrimination.

The two councillors seeking re-election, Mrs. Margaret Robertson and John Cannon, are both pro-Morton.

Great Weather for Crabs! The Enemy Stayed Home

By ED GOULD

FULFORD HARBOR — The annual Giant Crab Hunt on Salt Spring Island was a complete washout this year.

The hunt was to be held on Saturday night between 10 and midnight when the tidal flats at Fulford Harbor lay exposed for nearly a mile.

Instead of the usual 50 crab-grabbers, only three intrepids turned out for what is considered one of the social and cultural events of the year.

UNREASONABLE

It was certainly unseasonal — perhaps unreasonable would be a better word: petty, irrational, unpredictable and generally bad-mannered. One minute it was almost balmy, the next, squally and sleety.

The Salt Spring crabbers of former years have gathered on the mucky shores of Fulford in weird dress, carrying their equipment especially designed for the job: a rake and bucket. The dress is more elaborate and varied. The crusty crustaceans advance before a hoary horde of Islanders covered in oilskins, bare skins, waterproof underwear, hip boots, wellingtons and sweat.

WILD SHOUTS

Each seeker carries a powerful flashlight and the night is punctuated by wild shouts of "Here they are!" "Look what I found!" "Help . . . I'm sinking!"

Through muck, slime, sandbars and odd parts that have fallen off myriad boats over the years, the splattered crew slithers.

Later, under a welcoming blaze of shoreline car lights and overhead star lights, some of the deep creepers are boiled in pots of steaming water heated over well-tended beach bonfires.

While some of the crabs are getting boiled, it has been noted in past years that some Islanders are getting the same way. (By a different, internal, heating process.)

As mentioned, only three turned out this year. They went home dampened in spirit and clothing with empty buckets. But they were, incidentally, crabby nevertheless.

Negligence Charge Laid Against Man

DUNCAN—A criminal negligence charge has been laid against Alexander Crabbe, 27, of Chemainus, as a result of a Remembrance Day fatal accident, RCMP said today.

Crabbe was the driver of a car involved in a collision at the intersection of the Trans-Canada Highway and Herd Road which took the lives of Mrs. Bernice Thom of Beatrice Street, Vancouver, and her mother, Mrs. Kathleen McChristie of Sudbury, Ont., police said.

He is to appear in Duncan magistrate's court Jan. 10.

Arena Contract Boosts Building At N. Cowichan

NORTH COWICHAN — Letting of the contract for construction of the ice arena at Fullers Lake gave North Cowichan building permit values a big boost in November.

The $379,350 contract was awarded by council to Cowichan Construction Ltd.

Total building permits issued in November this year were $480,972 compared to $152,950 in November, 1966.

But the eleven-month total of $3,074,379 still lags slightly behind the 1966 figure of $3,266,463.

SHIP IDLED BY FIRING

PORT ALBERNI (CP)—Talks were expected to continue today between crew members and the captain of the Liberian freighter Oriental Exporter over the firing of a Chinese crewman.

In Vancouver, the British Columbia Supreme Court issued an injunction ordering the crew members to stop picketing the vessel.

Eddy Tse, a spokesman for the ship, said Tuesday that Chui Ming, who had three days' leave coming to him, was told by the bosun to stay off a little longer if he wanted and, because he did, the captain fired him.

MAN'S BODY FOUND, BOAT STILL MISSING

CAMPBELL RIVER—Body of a man missing since Friday has been found in Discovery Passage.

He was reported missing Friday from aboard his 30-foot fishboat. The vessel is still missing.

GAGLARDI

'Put Tomahawks Away' Phil Pleads With Band

VANCOUVER (CP) — Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi has called on the Kitwanga Indian Band in the Skeena River Valley east of Prince Rupert to trade the tomahawk for the peace pipe in a battle over highways compensation payments.

The highways minister urged peaceful settlement on the band's dissatisfaction over delays in getting adequate compensation for two highways built across reserve lands.

"Just tell them to put their tomahawks away and get the peace pipe out—I'm a peaceful man," said Mr. Gaglardi. "Anything that's my responsibility I look after."

Mr. Gaglardi said, however, he had not personally seen any correspondence between his department and the band.

"They could be analyzing it before presenting it to me with a report," he said. "I'll sure take a look at it."

The minister was made an honorary chief of the band in 1959 when they acclaimed him as the man who brought trade and commerce to otherwise neglected areas—hence his tribal name, "Chief Water-on-Dry-Ground."

In Kitwanga, Joe Daniels, district vice-president of the Nativ Brotherhood of British Columbia, said the band was getting irritated with the delays in solving their problems.

He said for one road built in 1960 the band received only $6,500 compensation for a three-mile right of way. A more realistic figure for the timber destroyed would be $100,000, he said. For another road, built in 1962, no compensation had been received.

Mr. Daniels said another problem was that the ferry across the Skeena River near Kitwanga was knocked out by a flood four years ago and never replaced.

He said this meant an extra 60 miles on the journey to Prince Rupert. The band wants a bridge instead, because a ferry was useless for seven months a year when the river freezes up.

Mr. Daniels said the band is preparing a brief and a petition for Mr. Gaglardi, Upper Skeena MLA Dudley Little and MP Frank Howard of the New Democratic Party.

Allergy Cure 'Coming' Says Doctor

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — A Japanese doctor working at a Denver hospital for children with asthma says he believes he is on the trail of an eventual cure for hay fever and other allergies.

Dr. Kimishige Ishizaka and his wife, Teruko, also a doctor, have spent five years in their quest at their laboratories at the Children's Asthma Research Institute and Hospital.

The day they succeed in unravelling their medical detective puzzle may be a long way off, but Dr. Ishizaka said he is confident it will come.

Most of the immune antibodies in a human being are a protein called gamma globulin. By 1965 four classes of these proteins had been designated. The Japanese couple succeeded in isolating a fifth protein, which they call gamma-E.

"I am quite sure that gamma-E is the cause of human allergies," Ishizaka, 41, said in an interview.

"Not many cells are involved in this protein. If we can stop the formation of gamma-E, theoretically we can stop allergies. That is what we have been working on for five years and we'll keep working on it in collaboration with scientists elsewhere."

As Ishizaka explained it, when a person with an allergy is attacked by such things as pollen or house dust, the gamma-E protein in his body rushes to the defence, releasing a histamine.

So much of the gamma-E histamine is released that the sufferer's tissues swell, his eyes water and smart and his breathing often becomes difficult.

Ishizaka conceded that antihistamine drugs are available for the hay fever victim. What he is seeking is a serum of some other substance that could be injected into the victim, and head off the gamma-E rescue effort.

CAMPBELL WANTS TO INVOLVE PEOPLE IN COMMON PROBLEMS

Curtis 'Welcomes Test of Policies' From Challenger

By ROGER STONEBANKS

A reeveship contest — the first in three years—is the highlight of this Saturday's Saanich election.

Both men offer considerable municipal experience.

Mr. Curtis, who lives at 3906 Hobbs, was first elected councillor in 1961 and re-elected in 1963. He won the October, 1964, reeveship byelection and was re-elected by acclamation in 1965.

As well as being reeve, he is chairman of the municipal finance committee, personnel committee, Saanich police commission, Capital Regional District and the new regional hospital district, is honorary treasurer of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, a director of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, and is a member of a number of inter-municipal committees and groups.

During his reeveship, council has acted on the capital projects budget (which included McKenzie Avenue reconstruction and McRae Estate purchase), the four-point indoor recreation program, low-rental housing, major street lighting, drainage and road works, Gorge shoreline beautification and seen completion of the move to the new municipal hall. The sewer utility plan should go to a public vote next spring.

He also points to the absence of factionalism on council, recalling past instances, and adds "the reeve either sets the pace for or against it."

Mr. Campbell, who lives at 1515 Oakcrest, is a tax auditor with the department of national revenue, a position he has held for the last 13 years.

He started work for Saanich municipality in 1938 and in 1942 went to Kamloops as city accountant. Later he was clerk and treasurer of that city and after resigning worked for six months as treasurer of Delta municipality.

He has been active in civil service unionism and currently is president of the 5,000-member Victoria area council of the Public Service Alliance of Canada, the second biggest trade union in Canada.

He has also been active in ratepayer groups. He was president of the old Saanich Information Committee and is a member of the newer Saanich Action Committee.

Mr. Campbell has said that if elected, he will get a leave of absence from his federal job.

I asked both men to state, as briefly as they could, their platforms and policies.

★

Reeve Curtis said "any reeve, over the last three years, could have perpetuated what Saanich was or he could have tried to bring about change. We are suffering today for many of the things left undone in the 1930s, 40s and 50s, and having to correct them at much higher cost. Many of these are inherited problems."

He considers improved garbage disposal on a regional basis and closing of the Hartland Road dump essential and wants garbage collection improved, by public or private contractor.

He "firmly subscribes to the view" that a candidate for mayor or reeve should have council experience first "so he can put in the apprenticeship that is so necessary for the complexity of municipal government today."

On sewage and pollution problems, he has voted in favor of the regional sewerage plan and has stated:

Curtis

"Authorities far more qualified than I report, that deep and lengthy outfalls into active tidal waters will overcome our saltwater coastline pollution as far as sewage is concerned.

★

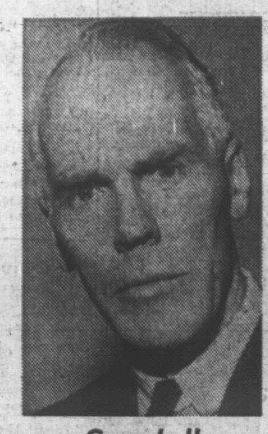
"Certainly there has been no new and impressive information brought to light as to more effective alternatives in spite of recent public discussion."

He concluded by saying "I welcome the testing of my policies at the polls."

Mr. Campbell, on the sewage issue, said his policy is "clean beaches and clean ditches." Most of his comments at last week's all-candidates' meeting were on this subject but he summarized them in answer to a questionnaire this way:

"All known methods of disposing of sewage and other wastes should be investigated by a team of scientists, medical and health people, and again, within the limit of our economic resources, the one most suitable to our local area or a combination of the various alternatives should be adopted."

In response to a question at last week's meeting, if he could say the regional sewerage plan is not the best one, he replied:



Campbell

"Yes, I have seen enough locally and in other places that the simple dumping of sewage into the sea is not good enough."

★

He supports action already taken to secure greenbelt areas and wants to see this extended by buying small lots in urban areas. He backs "truly effective rodent control," upgrading of food handling in public places, improved garbage collection and disposal and a municipal fire insurance fund.

"The key point in my presentation is control of government by the people," he said, promising to "personally involve myself in this endeavor."

Great changes can occur when people involve themselves in common problems. Government and people must become "one, in fact and not in theory. Government can be the people and must be the people to a much greater extent than it is today."

BOXING DAY

Second Look Requested On Holiday

OTTAWA (CP) — The 115,000-member Public Service Alliance of Canada has asked the government to reconsider its decision not to grant federal employees a holiday on Boxing Day Tuesday, Dec. 26.

In a letter to Prime Minister Pearson, released Tuesday, Alliance President Claude Edwards says granting the holiday would provide "a most suitable finale to our Centennial Year."

Treasury Board President Benson told the Commons Monday there will be no holiday for the public service on Dec. 26. He noted most federal employees now have 10 paid holidays and this was as good or better than in private industry.

Mr. Edwards' letter notes that all chartered banks will observe Boxing Day and in at least nine provinces and the Yukon civil servants will be granted the holiday. Municipal employees in most major Canadian cities would also get the holiday, he wrote.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. William Gilmour of Monreal, Quebec; two sons, Martial Housez, of San Francisco, and Jack Housez, of Victoria, B.C.; 3 grandchildren; 4 great-grandchildren.
Private services will be held in the Sands Mortuary Limited "Memorial Chapel of Chimes" on Friday, December 8th, 1967, at 1:00 p.m. Canon George Biddle officiating. Cremation. Flowers gratefully declined.

TORPEY—In Victoria, on Tuesday, Dec. 5, 1967, Rev. Francis Esmond Torpey, of 755 Meaford Ave. He was born in London, Eng., and lived in many places in Saskatchewan and Alberta. He was predeceased by his wife Rhoda and a daughter Gladys. He leaves two daughters, Mrs. E. A. Anderson, of Langford and Mrs. W. C. Newby, of Abbotsford, Ason George, of Winnipeg, and 12 grandchildren. He was formerly a member of the R.N.W.M. Police and the Alberta Provincial Police. He joined the ministry in 1928 and was a legion member for 20 years. He was padre for the Royal Canadian Legion, Prince Edward Branch, No. 91.
The Rev. H. Dunster will conduct the funeral service on Sat., Dec. 9th, at 1:30 p.m. in St. Matthews Church at Langford. Interment in Hatley Memorial Gardens.

TURNER—At the residence on Dec. 5, 1967, Mr. Eric Turner, aged 71 years, of 1296 Downham Place, born in Halifax, Yorkshire, England, resident here since 1921. He is survived by his wife Florence; 4 sons, John of Victoria, Rick and Edward of Kelowna and Kenneth of Edmonton; 10 grandchildren; also one brother Harry, of Victoria. He served with the D. of T. Telecommunication branch for 37 years.
Funeral services will be held in McCall Bros. FLORAL CHAPEL, Johnson and Vancouver Streets on Friday, Dec. 8, at 10:30 a.m. Rev. A. E. King officiating. Followed by cremation. (Flowers gratefully declined. Friends, if desired, may donate to the charity of their choice.)

WARDLE—Suddenly on Dec. 2, 1967, Edgar Albert Wardle, of 2165 Fair St., formerly of Kaslo, B.C., and Brandon, Man., aged 77 years. Survived by his loving wife, Margaret, at the residence, and a niece, Mrs. A. G. (Marie) Lawrence, Victoria. Mr. Wardle served with the R.C.A.F. in the Second World War, was a member of Pro Patria Branch Royal Canadian Legion, and St. John's Ambulance retired members.
Funeral service Thursday, at 1:30 p.m. in St. Mary's Church, 1701 Elgin St. Rev. Canon H. J. Jones officiating. Interment. Royal Oak Burial Park. Hayward's Funeral Chapel, 734 Broughton St., in charge of arrangements.

8 CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our many friends and relatives for their kind expressions of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings in the loss of our husband and father. Special thanks to the Sisters and nurses of St. Joseph's Hospital, Drs. Portelance, Purdon and Banks. — Kathleen Wheldon and family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

DE COSTA — In loving memory of my dear sister, Rosalie Blanche, who passed away Dec. 6, 1966.
Softly the leaves of memory fall,
Gently we gather and treasure them all,
Unseen and unheard she is always near,
Still loved, still missed and very dear.
—Lovingly remembered by all her family.

JOWETT — In loving memory of our dear Mum, Dec. 7, 1956 and our dear brother John, Dec. 9, 1930.
Silent thoughts, memories dear,
—Sadly missed by Kathleen, Lloyd and Joan, Betty, Gary and Jennie.

THOMPSON — In sweetest memory of our baby, Grant Dunkin, who passed away Dec. 6, 1966, age 3.
"It is so very plain to see,
My boy belonged to God and me."
—Dearly beloved by his family and many friends.

NEW DATSUN
FOR 1968

The "more-for-your-money car."

If somebody ever tells you he drives an economy import with 96 h.p. engine that goes 100 m.p.h. has a safer, impact absorbing body, the safest suspension money can buy, a wrap-around air-flow system that keeps windows clear, that it looks great, handles like a dream, and that he bought it from us for only $2025, believe him. It's the DATSUN 1600, the "more for your money car" at

TOYOTA COROLLA

"THE CLEANEST ECONOMY CAR EVER TO COME FROM THE OTHER SIDE OF ANY OCEAN!!"

Who wants an economy car that won't get out of its own way and is left behind on hills? The TOYOTA COROLLA has more power, a higher top speed and better acceleration than any other car in the 1100 cc class. And it still gets better than 40 miles on a gallon of regular gas.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

Stephen

For instance, a man slipping on a banana peel is not funny to the man but the incident evokes laughter from the audience. Such were the bizarre events screened during the 60-minute color special.

The best of them all were the collection of football goofs. But, it was unfortunate the color was not always true to bring out the best of the action. The other clips were in black and white.

Paar personally screened many thousands of feet of film and devoted almost a year to the program. He also produced the show and wrote the script. It was an effort well spent for the collection of film clips were well chosen and bright gems of humor.

The Bobby Hull special was produced by an independent company and looked it. It had little class and really offered nothing new to the viewer except the information that hockey is only a way of life with Hull until he gets enough money to become independent.

The television scene has also been enhanced by the addition of Channel 9 on cablevison. Many of the programs may not fall into the interest column of viewers who prefer the Beverly Hillbillies but there is enough variety of programs to make the channel a must on the check list.

Two programs which definitely offered information of the type found in scientific journals were "Shaping Metal Magnetically," a report on new tooling technique that can bend metals like plastic and, "Spectrum," which examined the mysteries of the earth's origin.

During the late afternoon hours, the programs from the educational station offer good fare for kiddies. And don't forget the Public Laboratory which is a highlight of Sunday afternoons. The program, dealing with news and public affairs, has in its first three weeks already captured the interest of millions in the U.S. and has become a topic of conversation generally.

'WE REALLY WANT . . . STATUS OF MAJORITY'

MONTREAL (CP) — Pierre Bourgault, leader of the separatist Rassemblement pour l'Independence Nationale, said Tuesday night the authors of the royal commission report on bilingualism and biculturalism do not understand what Quebec really wants.

"This attempt to spread cultural equality changes nothing," he said in an interview.

"They don't talk about political economic equality. What Ottawa doesn't understand is that here in Quebec we're not looking for the status of equality, but for the status of a majority."

Mr. Bourgault, leader of the province's largest separatist party, said the report "plays" the French-language minorities outside Quebec against French-Canadians in Quebec.

Cocoa Strip Guides Mercy Plane

CHRISTCHURCH, New Zealand (UPI)—A British expeditionary doctor who broke his back in an Antarctic sledge accident and then refused painkilling injections so he could tell a companion how to treat him, was rescued by a U.S. navy transport plane today after the longest mercy flight in Antarctic history.

The doctor, John Brotherhood, 28, from Chepstow, Wales, was flown from the 4,000 miles from Halley Bay on the coast of the Weddel Sea to hospital in New Zealand.

The airlift was made after Sir Vivien Fuchs, leader of the British expedition to the Antarctic, radioed for help to the U.S. base at McMurdo Sound.

When the plane, a Hercules, had been dispatched from McMurdo, the 36 men of the British "winter party" of the expedition spread all their cocoa supply on an improvised landing strip as a marker.

Three City Men Get Jail Terms

CALGARY (CP)—Three young Victoria men were given prison terms Tuesday when they pleaded guilty to a charge of robbing a Calgary man, then using his car, taking him to Golden, B.C.

Garry J. Cragg, 23, and Melvin J. Cardy, 18, were each sentenced to seven years in prison. Wesley L. Braham, 19, was sentenced to five years.

Court was told the three took the car from Floyd W. Yeats of Calgary, Nov. 19, while he waited for his family outside a downtown Calgary church.

Threatening him with a knife, they forced him from the driver seat, then headed west. Near Banff, they stopped to pick up a hitch hiker.

At Golden, the men decided to stop for coffee, and Mr. Yeats and the hitch hiker jumped from the car and notified RCMP.

The three were arrested shortly afterwards.

In addition to the car, Mr. Yeats was robbed of some cash, identification cards and a wrist watch.

BILL BURNED BY ANGRY INDIAN MP

NEW DELHI (AP) — An opposition member of Parliament set fire to a copy of the government's controversial languages bill today.

The bill would make Hindi an official language and continue English as the official language in non-Hindi speaking areas. It has touched off a wave of bloody rioting across the country.

House Speaker Sanjivva Reddy immediately condemned Kachwai, after which A. B. Vajpayee, leader of the Jan Sangh, apologized on behalf of the party. Kachwai then apologized.

Leaders Want To Read Report Before Talking

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Reaction to the first volume of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism was sketchy Tuesday as most leaders wanted to read the 260-page report before commenting.

But separatist MP Gilles Gregoire said the report doesn't matter because Quebec will be independent by the time the federal government gets around to dealing with the commission's recommendations.

"It's too late," said the Lapointe, Que., MP. "This is a show of good faith, that's all, but in practice. . . . ."

In Victoria, Attorney-General Robert Bonner welcomed appearance of the first volume, but said he wants to study the report before commenting further.

Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta said before the report was tabled in the Commons he would not comment until he has had a chance to study the report.

Jacques Boucher, president of the Edmonton branch of the French-Canadian Association, said the report "sounds interesting," and Jean-Maurice Olivier, editor of Le Franco-Albertain, a French-language weekly, said: "It seems to be good."

NOT AN ALBERTA ISSUE

Although bilingualism and biculturalism has not been a burning issue in Alberta, "there is lots of room for improvement, and for more use of the French language," said Mr. Boucher.

A spokesman for Premier John Robarts of Ontario said the premier will not comment on the report until he and government officials can study it thoroughly.

Ontario Education Minister William Davis said Ontario's education policies already appear in line with recommendations of the report.

The report recommends education on French and English be made available where practical.

French can be used in Ontario elementary schools where the size of the French-speaking populations warrants it.

Robert Nixon, leader of the Ontario Liberal party, and Donald C. MacDonald, leader of the Provincial New Democratic Party, welcomed recommendations for establishment of bilingual districts and official bilingual legislature and courts.

Mr. Nixon said he had no objection to making French an official language in the legislature, as French was often used despite there being no official provision for it.

Mr. MacDonald said recent developments had shown most Canadians the problem of biculturalism is serious.

HAS PRIORITY PROBLEMS

Barry Lowes, chairman of the Metropolitan Toronto school board, said the idea of guaranteed French and English education rights is totally valid.

But William Ross, chairman of the Toronto board of education, said the cost of providing separate instruction in Toronto would be prohibitive. The board, he said, has problems "with much greater priority."

Conrad Lavigne of Timmins, honorary president of the French-Canadian Education Association of Ontario, said he hoped the report was not too late.

"The movement to independence in Quebec has taken on such steam in the last year it may be difficult now, in spite of good intent, to reach accord."

Implementation of the recommendations on education "would be a tremendous improvement" for French-speaking minorities, said Mr. Lavigne.

Quebec Opposition Leader Jean Lesage said he agrees generally what he had heard reported on television about the report. He said he would comment further after he had a chance to read the report.

In St. John's, Newfoundland, F. W. Rowe, acting premier while Premier Smallwood is in a Toronto hospital recovering from an eye operation, said the report's recommendations seem workable and practicable.

The recommendations for greater use of a second language at certain levels of government "would not be an imposition. I think it could be done."

Queen's printers bookstores across the country reported mixed reaction to the first volume of the report.

About 20 copies of the $3 report were sold during a special two-hour opening in Halifax. A spokesman for a Vancouver store said copies were "going quite good and we expect a brisk sale tomorrow."

About 30 editions were sold in Toronto in 3 hours.

Secret Service Got JFK Warning Imprisoned Ex-Agent Quoted

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Three lawyers said Tuesday that a former U.S. secret service agent, now a prisoner at the federal medical centre here, told them the agency knew before President John F. Kennedy was assassinated that an attempt to kill him was being planned.

A lawyer representing Abraham W. Bolden, 32, asserted his client told him he was sent to prison after being refused permission to tell the Warren commission about the alleged information.

The charges were made at a press conference staged by Mark Lane, lawyer and author; Richard V. Burnes, assistant to District Attorney Jim Garrison of New Orleans, La., and John Hosmer, former judge and prosecutor from Marshfield, Mo.

Lane said the secret service received information that an attempt on Kennedy's life would be made on a visit by the president to Chicago, a visit later cancelled out of fear for Kennedy's safety.

NAME WITHHELD

One of several names given the federal agency then, Lane said, was the name of a man now being sought by Garrison in his investigation of the Kennedy assassination. He refused to identify the man and said the name has not been made public.

The lawyers said their information came during two days of talks with Bolden, sentenced in Chicago two years ago to six years in prison for conspiring to sell official information in a counterfeiting case.

Bolden, first Negro named to the secret service's White House detail, was not in Dallas when the president was shot Nov. 22, 1963.

But the lawyers said he told them that he and other agents were told of a plot to kill Kennedy in Chicago and even shadowed one suspect.

After the assassination, when Bolden asked to testify before the Warren commission, said Hosmer, he was arrested and convicted in the counterfeiting case on perjured testimony.

Officials of the medical centre said Bolden was transferred here Nov. 9 last year from the federal prison at Terre Haute, Ind., to help with maintenance of the hospital and is not a patient here.

Lane, author of Rush to Judgment, a book criticizing the Warren commission's conclusion that Lee Harvey Oswald was alone in the Kennedy killing, called Bolden's alleged statements "one of the most significant events since the shots were fired in Dealey Plaza in Dallas."

Measles Can Prove Dangerous

By Dr. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

As I must keep saying, measles can be a dangerous disease. It kills 400 children a year; it leaves many weak and tired for six months or more, and it causes in many, a mild brain fever. And sometimes this encephalitis, or inflammation of the brain, is severe enough to leave the child somewhat feeble-minded.

I thought of this the other day when I read that in 1848 the great composer, Peter Tschaikowsky suffered a violent attack of measles which left him in such a state of irritability that he had to rest for some nine months. His mother wrote then of a character transformation; he had become so overly irritable, capricious and insincere that he must have had a mild case of encephalitis. He slowly recovered, but, as his brother Modeste said, "The scar remained." There could be no doubt about that.

Alvarez

And this is why a great effort is being made in the U.S. today to wipe out measles, once and for all. We now have a vaccine that protects from measles, and every mother of small children should take them to be vaccinated. She owes it to her children. In many areas a campaign is being put on in which doctors and nurses volunteer to do the vaccinating.

★ ★ ★

Many a mother, and especially one who lives on a farm or in a small community, writes, saying that she has a child who was born deaf, and she wonders if she can do anything to help him. I thought of these women as I just read a fine article by Jack Smith in the Los Angeles Times, on a 3 million dollar growth plan for the great John Tracy Clinic of Los Angeles. That devoted woman, Mrs. Spencer Tracy, has been directing the foundation for the last 25 years.

The primary purpose of the clinic is to teach the deaf child's parents how best to help him or her. One of the services is to give instruction to parents by mail. Only the parents can teach the child to talk, because they are the ones who live with him each day. Mrs. Tracy and her group have already helped 27,000 families in 102 countries. She is one of America's most useful citizens.

Peace Corps Dwindles

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Because of the "cynical" attitude of many young Americans, applications to join the Peace Corps have declined 30 per cent this year, says the Corps' national recruiting director. Ray Holland attributed the drop off to troubles such as the Vietnam war and U.S. rioting which he says have "made young Americans cynical about their ability to change anything in the world."

Papers Defy Greek Regime

ATHENS (Reuters) — Greek newspaper editors Monday night successfully defied censorship regulations which threatened to close four of the eight remaining newspapers in Athens.

After day-long talks with members of the military government, they won the right to publish fully in today's editions details of interviews given in Paris by former Premier Constantine Karamanlis.

Karamanlis, a self-imposed exile in the French capital, said in interviews with Le Monde and the London Times that the Cyprus crisis would be solved only when the present regime in Greece stepped down.

Two Athens right wing afternoon newspapers were banned from publishing Monday after refusing to print a government attack on Karamanlis unaccompanied by reports of the interviews.

Newspapers Seized

BAGHDAD (Reuters) — The Iraqi government merged the country's 16 privately-owned newspapers Monday into five government-controlled publications to be edited by senior officials from the culture and guidance ministry. One, the Baghdad Observer, publishes in English.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Frank Vuono, age 8, of Niagara Falls, Ont., for his question:

Will my pet snail hibernate through the winter?

Your pet may be a water snail, at home with the fish in an aquarium. The water must be kept as warm as a room for the comfort of the fishes. This is why most fish tanks are kept indoors. This is warm enough to suit the snail and the water provides him with the moisture he needs to keep busy. So if your pet happens to be a water snail, he will not hibernate through the winter. This is lucky, because he leads a very useful life. He feeds on algae, those pinpoint plants that becloud the water of a fish tank with foggy green.

Without meaning to, the water snail helps to balance the fish and plant life in an aquarium. If the fish tank is indoors, your pet water snail will keep up his tank cleaning chores all through the year. But in the out-of-doors, if the water dries up and the air around him gets very hot or very cold, he will retire into his shell, seal the door shut and sleep until his outside world becomes warm and moist again.

Chances are, your pet slow-poke is an ordinary land snail, perhaps captured in the garden. This fellow needs moisture to keep going. Dry air causes his soft skin to shrivel and crack. Your pet cannot abide the direct rays of brilliant sunshine because they tend to dry out moisture from his skin. But he carries with him his own little house to protect him when his world gets too dry, too hot or too cold.

Sealed in Shell

No doubt you keep him in a box. Since he does not like to roam very far, a re-modeled shoe box will suit him fine. Replace one wall and perhaps the roof with wire, fine enough to stop him from escaping through the holes. Cover the floor with dirt strewn with rocks. Add a few small pots of growing plants and sprinkle a few dewy drops on the shady leaves to keep his air comfortably moist.

You may keep his box inside or outdoors. If you keep it indoors, it should be near a window, away from direct light and far from hot radiators. Chances are, your indoor pet will be comfortable enough to stay around and busy all winter. If you keep his box outdoors, he will hibernate when the cold weather comes. He seeks a shady hiding place, crawls into his shell and fills the opening with a papery curtain. Safely sealed inside with a snail-sized roomful of moist air, he sinks into the deep sleep of hibernation.

A desert snail has problems when the summer sun dries the air and steals the dewy moisture from the mosses. He too finds a small hiding place and seals himself inside his shell.

'MUNICIPALITY IN GOOD SHAPE' SAYS REEVE

Five Try for Comeback in Esquimalt

ARGYLE

HORNE

Three of them want to be reeve.

Five of the nine have council experience. Among these are the three candidates for the reeveship.

Mr. Argyle served on the council for eight years, 1952 to 1958 and 1964 to 1965. He operates a service station and car dealership.

He says restoration of harmony within the municipal hall is a necessary requirement for commercial-industrial development.

STANDS ON RECORD

Reeve Bryant was elected in his first bid for council two years ago. A lawyer, he stands on the record of his administration over the past two years.

He points to the new Gorge Bridge, the rising amount of new building permits, the increase in light industry, and the written fire back-up agreement with the federal government as evidence of the success of his term.

"The municipality of Esquimalt is and continues to be in good shape, and this has only come about as a result of the efforts of determined and sincere teamwork," the reeve told a public meeting last week.

FOUR YEARS

The third reeveship aspirant is Arthur Mebs, who has had four years on council. Coun. Mebs chaired three committees last year, and was president of the Greater Victoria Centennial Society.

Coun. Mebs calls for better communication both within the council and municipal hall, and externally. He suggests lack of communication between the council and such bodies as the Chamber of Commerce is detrimental to community development.

The six men running for the three open council seats can be roughly divided into those who support the present administration and those who oppose it.

The future of Esquimalt's unique police-fire force is the main issue.

WANTS SPLIT

Candidate Ernest Brown, an electrician, calls for a split of the force. He says reduced insurance rates would more than offset the cost.

Larry Cross, a salesman and former newscaster, making his first bid for public office, is running on a platform of public information.

Mr. Cross says too many decisions are made behind closed doors, and he says the Macdonell Report on the police force should be available at the least to councillors and much of it to the public.

ZONING THE KEY

Incumbent Roy Elphick, an office manager for a lumber firm, was first elected to council in 1965. He was largely responsible for the establishment of the planning and zoning committee, and is chairman of that committee.

He sees proper zoning regulations as a key to attracting necessary light industry.

School teacher Gerald Horne, running for his third term on council topped the poll in the last election.

He chaired the police-fire committee, and was a member of several inter-municipal committees in past years.

FIRST TRY

Medical doctor John Rogers is making his first bid for a council seat. He says he is not satisfied with the present administration.

Dr. Rogers calls for a split in the police-fire force, swift attention to regional sewage problems, and consideration of health proposals such as fluoridation.

The sixth candidate, Art Young, is proprietor of a meat market and is also making his first bid for office.

Mr. Young says he favors present council policies and is running to ensure the continuation of present planning.

Gift by Carpenter

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —Before he died at the age of 85 in January, Leroy H. Vane was known as the "cycling carpenter" who rode his bicycle to odd jobs near Golden Gate Park. Monday the Bank of America disclosed that Vane, whose wife died in 1964, left $425,000 in stocks and bonds to his native San Francisco to build a social centre for the elderly in Golden Gate Park.

A man has 792 muscles in his body and a caterpillar has 4,000.

Folk Arts Body To Be Formed

A meeting for the purpose of forming a Folk Arts Society in Victoria will be held at the Centennial Society office, 14 Centennial Square, Thursday at 8 p.m.

Anyone interested in forming such an organization is invited to attend.

Supported by Dr. W. G. Black, president of the B.C. Folk Arts Council, the idea originated from the interest shown in the successful Folk Arts Fiesta held at McPherson Playhouse in October.

Since then, Jerry Gosley, centennial co-ordinator, attended a Canadian Folk Arts Council in Toronto to obtain first-hand knowledge of their programs and activities.

CHINESE SUBS GET N-TIPPED MISSILES

WASHINGTON (UPI)—China has installed launchers for nuclear-tipped missiles on two of its largest submarines, informed sources said today.

The sources said the U.S. Navy has concrete evidence that three launching tubes capable of hurling missiles 380 miles have been built into each of the subs. The submarines are now nearing completion at Dairen in southern Manchuria.

The range of the missiles is approximate that of a nuclear warhead the Chinese claimed to have successfully tested Oct. 27, 1966.

LEADERS DISCOURAGED

Police Block Viet Protest

NEW YORK (AP) — Masses of shouting anti-war demonstrators were frustrated by police today in their second attempt to disrupt operations at the U.S. military induction centre in lower Manhattan. There were about 200 arrests.

In Philadelphia, police arrested 70 demonstrators trying to block the entrance of the induction centre there. The 70 seeking to block the doorway were part of a crowd of about 700, police said. Lawrence Elle, head of the Philadelphia Anti-draft Union which organized the rally, said it was designed to "show strong anti-war and anti-draft sentiment."

In New York, discouraged demonstration leaders were divided on whether to try again Thursday, as planned. Today's protest was marked by scattered fights between marchers and pedestrians before the demonstration broke up in mid-morning.

As the group gathered in Battery Park before dawn, reporters spotted about 300 green-buttoned plainclothes policemen. As the march began, several took off their buttons and mingled with the demonstrators.

It's $7 Million Worth of Trouble Claims Strachan

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan today blasted the 'Bi and Bi' commission's report urging French language rights as "$7 million worth of trouble" for Canada.

Premier Bennett refused to comment on the commission's first reprt this morning and Attorney-General Robert Bonner declined comment until he has a chance to read the full report.

But Mr. Strachan declared himself opposed to the principal recommendation of the commission that bilingualism be an official policy wherever either English or French minorities compose at least 10 per cent of the population.

"I think it's $7 million worth of trouble for Canada," Mr. Strachan said of the commission.

'TWO NATIONS'

"It will give semi-official endorsation to the idea that Canada should be composed of two equal nations.

"And this will carry the fragmentation of our federal society into the provincial and local level."

Mr. Strachan said he was opposed to French being used as the language of instruction in any B.C. school because it would boomerang as a discriminatory process in the long run.

"A pupil who graduates from such a school would naturally find himself short in English and it would be difficult for these students to fit into an English-speaking society."

He said French-speaking school graduates would not be able to compete for jobs in an English-speaking environment "and we will then hear the cry of discrimination on the provincial level," he said.

AGAINST DIVISION

Asked if he was opposed to bilingualism per se, Mr. Strachan replied:

"I'm against the acceptance of any permanent fragmentation of the Canadian society and I don't think we should take any steps that would tend to crystal-

NEW YORK BABY DIES IN HEART TRANSPLANT

NEW YORK (Reuters) — A baby who received a transplanted heart from a dead infant today has died, the doctor who performed the operation announced.

The baby survived for several hours, but then his heart stopped, Dr. Adrian Kantrowitz told a press conference.

"We consider this procedure was a failure," he said.

Dr. Kantrowitz said the child, born in Maimonides Medical Centre in Brooklyn, had a lesion which blocked the entrance to the heart's left ventricle.

The defect was not repairable by any open-heart technique.

MAILLARDVILLE THROWS BIG PITCH ON DEC. 12

COQUITLAM (CP) — Coquitlam School Board will be asked at its Dec. 12 meeting to use French as a language of instruction in primary grades.

The proposal will be made by the French-Canadian Federation of B.C., secretary-general Romeo Paquette said Monday.

The federation is taking the initiative because of a recent comment by Premier Bennett, said Mr. Paqutte.

"Mr. Bennett said French language instruction in the public school system could be considered where there was a concentration of French-speaking people in the community and if the district school board made such a request," he said.

Mr. Paquette estimated that there were 8,000 French-speaking people within the school district, most living in the suburb of Maillardville.

GOOD START: MP

PM Promises Quick Action

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP)—The first report of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism has won general acceptance here despite some fears that events may supersede implementation of its recommendations.

However, Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons in tabling the report Tuesday the government already has established machinery to give it "serious and urgent appraisal."

He said the government "fully endorses" the principle of English and French linguistic and cultural equality expressed in the report.

Mr. Pearson promised federal action as quickly as possible on matters within its jurisdiction.

Only three of the 14 recommendations fall within the exclusive jurisdiction of Ottawa, two more are constitutional and require prior discussion with the provinces, and three others would require joint federal-provincial action.

Six are primarily provincial, Mr. Pearson noted.

He said he will suggest that matters in the report be discussed at the federal-provincial Bill of Rights Conference planned for early 1968.

PC CHIEF APPROVES

In the Commons, Opposition Leader Stanfield said that regardless of jurisdiction, recommendations in the report "clearly relate to problems which are of concern to the country as a whole."

The former Nova Scotia premier said that a few years ago the recommendations might have been considered rather startling. But the fact that people had been pressing for the first commission report indicated the extent to which public opinion had changed.

Roger Regimbal (PC—Argenteuil - Deux Montagnes) said there is "danger that events may outstrip the report" but nevertheless it was a good starting point.

Some Conservatives grumbled that the commission had taken four years to produce proposals that provincial premiers had basically agreed to in four days last week at the Confederation for Tomorrow conference in Toronto.

Quebec Road Link To Latins?

(Special to The Times)

MONTEVIDEO—The possibility that Quebec may establish links with South American countries has been raised here today by Fernand J. Lafontaine, minister of the Quebec roads department, who is currently attending as observer the tenth Pan American Roads convention.

He made this statement in a speech he had been invited to deliver before the delegates to the convention. He also took this opportunity to present a basic documentation on works carried out by Quebec engineers in the field of road signalling.

Mr. Lafontaine's statement about the establishing of links between the province of Quebec on the one hand and South American countries, the United States and their continental organizations on the other hand was most warmly welcomed.

Partial Formula For the Others

OTTAWA (CP)—A plea to English Canada to give its French-speaking minority the same language rights Quebec has extended to its English-speaking minority for 100 years was made Tuesday by the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

Holding up what it called the "Quebec model," it said Ontario and New Brunswick should move to declare themselves officially bilingual provinces, recognizing both the Englis hand French languages in their legislatures, public service, schools and courts.

Other provinces should follow suit when the French-speaking element of their populations reaches 10 per cent.

The report, about 100,000 words long, is printed in both English and French.

"The impossibilty of living a full life in French outside Quebec, and even in certain parts of Quebec, is certainly one cause of the present crisis in Canada," the royal commission warned in a 260-page report, first of 10 to come out of its four-year, $7,000,000 study.

Three years ago the commission said in a preliminary report that the gulf between English and French Canada was deeper than most people realized.

"The crisis is very much still with us," commission co-chairman Davidson Dunton told a press conference after release of the report.

Andre Laurendeau, the other co-chairman, said more and more Canadians are coming to recognize the seriousness of the situation.

PM Endorses Linguistic Equality

Prime Minister Pearson, tabling the report in the Commons, said the federal government fully endorses its principle of linguistic and cultural equality in all parts of Canada. It would be suggested as an item for discussion at the federal-provincial constitutional conference here in January.

One of the report's major proposals is for the establishment of "bilingual districts" anywhere that the official-language minority makes up 10 per cent or more of the population. These would have schools and government services in the minority language.

It identifies 54 such districts from the 1961 census, 43 of them in Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick. There also were four in Nova Scotia, four in Manitoba and one each in Prince Edward Island, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The 10-member royal commission also made these recommendations:

- Acceptance by all provinces of both languages in legislature debates and the provision of appropriate services in French for French-speaking minorities.
- Recognition of the right of Canadian parents to have their children educated in English or French, implementation depending on concentration of the minority population.
- Declaration that English and French are the official languages of Parliament and of federal courts and administrative offices.
- Amendment of provincial legislation to remove obstacles to the use of both French and English by local governments.
- Enactment of a federal official languages act to ensure respect for the status of English and French.
- Similar legislation by officially bilingual provinces.
- Establishment of a completely bilingual capital area involving both Ottawa and Hull, Quebec.
- An new section of the British North America Act guaranteeing minority education rights.

The royal commission stressed that "living in French must

It would not be necessary to develop a taste for snails instead of salmon.

In total, the recommendations of the bilingualism and biculturalism commission would not fan a Gallic breeze blowing from the Kootenays to Vancouver Island.

The commission came out with its recommendations Tuesday for officially declaring English and French as the official languages, and other moves.

The recommendations pose no threat to B.C. way-of-life, jobs, or rights of any citizens, but they might make the quality of life a little richer, and a little more secure in terms of unity.

This point is hammered home again and again in the commissioners' report—an involved, penetrating volume of some 260 pages.

But there is a fear in some official quarters that the recommendations will produce

'REALISTIC APPLICABLE'

MONTREAL (CP) — Claude Ryan, publisher of Le Devoir, says the royal commission report on bilingualism and biculturalism appears to be "realistic, supple and applicable."

"For the first time in a century of their common history, Canadians of both languages are offered by the Laurendeau-Dunton commission a program of equality based on precise definitions," he wrote in a front page editorial in today's edition of Le Devoir.

"The status of equality proposed . . . has existed in Quebec for a long time. The report is therefore aimed at the federal government, at the governments of other provinces and at English-speaking Canadians in general. . . ."

Maxwell Cohen, dean of the law faculty at McGill University, said in an interview the report will require a "fundamental change in the English-speaking population as a whole."

Michel Brunet, director of the history department at the University of Montreal, said the report was 40 years too late.

"If this program had been drawn up and implemented around 1920, I'm convinced it would have accomplished something."

Richard Lord, vice-president of the English-language section of the Quebec Liberal Federation, said French-Canadians should be able to feel at home all over Canada, but this cannot be legislated.

"It's a matter of education. Attitudes in Canada have to change. This process has already started and perhaps the report will help."

Day Nurseries: Heavenly Havens

By KATHRINE THOMAS

Many women of Hong Kong spend their lives laboring piteously to gain meagre rations to keep their families alive.

Without such help as the Unitarian Service Committee's free day nurseries in which they can place their youngest children, they would be unable to cope.

Tan Kah Kin, one of the boys in the nursery, is four years old. His father died of a heart attack in 1964; his mother is almost completely deaf and there are six other children.

The eldest works as a wrapper in a bakery earning about $25 per month, not enough to feed such a large family. The mother is only able to join together plastic branches for Christmas decorations. It takes her two days to assemble one box for which she is paid 25 cents.

When Dr. Hitschmanova, director of the USC, visited this family, she found the smallest child tied with a rope to the railing of the only bed while his mother worked on her greenery, which may adorn Christmas tables in Victoria—half a world away.

The mother told Dr. Hitsch-manova through an interpreter how grateful she was that the day nursery had accepted one of her little ones without pay; he was getting such good care and such excellent food three times a day.

Could the USC possilby take the next smallest one as well?

"If was impossible," says Dr. Hitschmanova.

"How difficult it is to explain that there is not single vacancy, that the waiting list is growing each day, with more than 100 names listed as the most desperate cases in the neighborhood.

"She understood, but told me that her children were constantly hungry and showed us a dish of leftovers—cold vegetables and a little boiled rice—which neighbors had dropped in the night before. She would heat them up at noon—as the first food of the day."

Dr. Hitschmanova also visited the 88-year-old grandmother of another boy in the nursery. She found her sitting in the lower half of the doubledecker bunk playing with the little boy and his three sisters.

Altogether 20 persons, 12 adults and eight children, live in a tiny, dark, airless flat without the slightest privacy. The father died of cancer; the mother works as a cleaning woman

HALT ARMS SALE

'Cut Out This Bloody Trade'

OTTAWA (CP)—NDP member Grace MacInnis called on the government Tuesday night to halt Canadian arms shipments to United States and leave students free to protest the war in Vietnam.

"I think the government should act now to cut out this bloody trade—and I use the word 'bloody' advisely—which is blasting the very life out of the people of Vietnam," the member for Vancouver-Kingsway told the Commons.

She read a Canadian Press report quoting Transport Minister Hellyer as telling a student group in Toronto Nov. 3 to "be careful not to become too great moralists" over the Vietnam war.

The report quoted Mr. Hellyer as saying to one student questioner that part of his university educations was being paid for by the sale of Canadian goods, including arms, to the U.S.

Mr. Hellyer later replied that the report had taken a single sentence out of a long and reasoned reply and that "there was no real relationship whatever between what appeared in the newspaper and the gist of my reply."

He said he had cautioned the questioner as part of his answer that "it was very difficult to know where to draw the line with respect to these complex matters when all the world is slightly inconsistent and all parties are slightly inconsistent, and people have great difficulty in sorting out in their minds the position of the demarcation line between what is right and what is wrong, and when, between black and white, there are many shades."

Mrs. MacInnis said in her earlier statement that arms sales to the U.S. should be halted to leave students with clean hands and clean minds.

"If sales of arms to the U.S. are indeed helping to pay for their education we should act in such a way as to leave the students free to protest about this thing which concerns each one of us . . ."

DIVORCE BILL IN SECOND READING

By HENRY HEALD

OTTAWA (CP)—The first major revision in Canada's divorce laws to come before Parliament in nearly a century was described by Justice Minister Trudeau in the Commons Tuesday as "the product of a social pressure that has been building up over the years."

The bill, the product of two years of study by a joint Senate-Commons committee, embodies the principle of marriage breakdown, but spells it out with specific grounds that can be assessed in regular court procedure.

Mr. Trudeau, introducing second reading stage, said the government must study the effects of the bill on marriage. An important aspect would be the continuing consultation with the provinces.

The bill broadens the grounds for divorce from the sole ground of adultery to include bigamy, physical or mental cruelty, sodomy, bestiality, rape and homosexuality.

Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax) congratulated the minister for "not falling into the trap" of accepting unconditional marraige breakdown as grounds for divorce.

He said the last attempt to reform Canadian divorce law was a Senate bill more than a quarter-century ago which had been allowed to die in the Commons.

He said in some instances churches had been prepared to go farther with divorce reform than the bill proposes.

The provincial supreme courts or superior courts were chosen to deal with divorce as they were the ones dealing with basic human rights. Provincial rules of evidence would apply and differing rules of divorce and child support were taken into consideration.

Mr. Trudeau said there was no attempt to change the Quebec Civic Code position on legal separation and people in that province could still apply to the civil courts for a separation if they prefer.

Both Mr. Trudeau and the prime minister said there would not be a free vote on the bill itself.

"This is a government bill and should be treated as such," Mr. Pearson said in reply to a question earlier in the day.

Alcide Simard (Creditiste—Lac St. Jean) argued that marriage is a divine institution and only the death of a spouse could break it.

Mr. Trudeau interjected that the Canadian Catholic Conference had come out in favor of the current bill to overhaul divorce law, and added that members of the conference are "pretty good Christians."

Debate on the divorce bill will be set aside for a few days as the Commons turns today to the debate on Finance Minister Sharp's budget presented last Thursday.

NAIL REMOVED FROM HEART IN S. AFRICA

JOHANNESBURG UPI) — South African doctors removed a nail nearly three inches long from a man's heart Monday in a 90-minute operation which doctors said probably saved his life.

Medical sources said the nail was possibly the largest object ever successfully removed from a human heart.

The man was identified as D. S. Brough, 39, of Johannesburg. He was struck in the chest by the nail while working with a pneumatic drill. He collapsed and was taken to a clinic, but appeared normal at first examination.

Doctors said today that only after an X-ray was the nail spotted. Both ends of the nail were protruding. Doctors said as long as the nail did not move, Brough would be in no danger, but even a slight shift could bring on a fatal hemorrhage.

Carmichael Gets French Visa

PARIS (Reuters) — French authorities today decided to allow Black Power leader Stokely Carmichael into France after holding him overnight at Orly Airport, official sources said.

The sources said Carmichael was granted a three-month visa which could be extended later if he asked.

Carmichael was stopped at immigration when he flew in from Stockholm Tuesday night and an interior ministry spokesman said authorities decided his presence in France was undesirable.

Airport sources said police earlier refused to put Carmichael on a flight to Algiers when he told them he did not have enough money to pay the fare.

RETURN SON TO PRIEST ASKS WORRIED FATHER

VERSAILLES, France (Reuters)—The father of a frail seven-year-old boy missing since noon Monday has called on the kidnapper to hand his son to a priest as police tried to reconstruct the crime.

"I agree to give the kidnapper the ransom they want," defence ministry official Jacques Maillard said. "I will do anything they want of me. All I ask is that they give me back may son."

Haggard after a sleepless night, he said he fears the fog and cold might damage the health of his son.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Win an overseas vacation for two. Win $1,000, $250, $100, $20, $5, or $1 in cash.

Mr. & Mrs. Stefanyk just won an overseas vacation for two, plus $1,000 spending money playing "Take Off With Shell." They are just two of the thousands of winners in Shell's biggest contest ever. Over 6,000 Canadian motorists per day can win cash prizes from $1 to $1,000. Overseas holidays for two. You could be one of them.

It's so easy. Every time you drive in to a Shell station you get a sealed envelope. Look inside. You'll find half a "Take Off With Shell" bill. Collect the halves.

When you collect both right and left halves of any bill, hand them to your dealer. After correctly answering a skill-testing question, you'll win the face value of that bill.

You could be one of the 6,000 winners per day—vacations or cash—or both. There's still time. So drive in today to any participating Shell station in your area and "Take Off With Shell."

Victoria Daily Times

Arthur Mayse

Today I propose to tell you about a big little Victoria outfit that held its installation banquet last Thursday. This is the local branch of the Cosmopolitan Club, which numbers 24 male members and a ladies' auxiliary called the Cosmo-Pals.

Those who belong to the club don't precisely shun publicity, but they have never gone out of their way to seek it.

They're too busy, and they don't seem to feel that anyone outside the scope of their organization is likely to be much interested in its projects. As a matter of fact, I'm in a position to tell you what happened at that dinner only because a friend who heard about it passed me the word.

We'll come to that later. First, though, some information about these Cosmopolitans.

To begin at the beginning, their fellowship was founded in Texas in 1924, with "The club that builds friendship," for its motto. Since then, it has been quietly building friendships among those who need friends from Victoria to Mexico, and from this city to Winnipeg.

In its 18-year existence, Victoria Cosmopolitan Club has dived wholeheatedly into various projects. Some of these are designed for the young—the sponsoring of teams in Babe Ruth League, and in the Connie Mack League for older boys. It also backs the Cosmopolitan Soccer Association for junior and juvenile ratings.

The club, however, adopted its major project about five years ago. This was, and is, to give such help as it can to Victoria branch of the Multiple Sclerosis Society of Canada.

★

Multiple sclerosis is a crippling disease of the central nervous system for which a cure is still to be discovered.

We have nearly 200 multiple sclerosis sufferes on this island, about 150 of them in Victoria. Although some are able to hold jobs, many are in private hospitals, or confined to bed or wheel-chair in their homes.

Back now to the Cosmopolitan Club, which requires of those who would join it that they be good citizens, and that they be prepared to work.

What it worked up first for the Multiple Sclerosis Society was a small "Cosmo bus" with room for four wheel-chair patients. This service was maintained at a cost of $2,500 annually for the following four years.

This was a boon indeed. But the bus has its faults—scant headroom, and difficult to load passengers on board. Last year, the Cosmoploitans went all-out to provide another, larger bus. With hydraulic lift and alterations to suit the needs of six wheel-chair and two seated passengers, it would cost about $6,500.

★

That was a daunting sum for two dozen workers to raise, but they tackled it head on—and in the process, found themselves what in sbow biz is called an angel.

Her name is Eliza Fielding. With the hearty approval of her husband, Major Lloyd Fielding, she donated $4,500 toward the new bus.

We come now to the annual dinner, which proceeded smoothly to installation of officers. Art Hillsden became regional governor; Ken Johnston, president; Charlie Gibbs and Sid Clark, first and second vice-presidents respectively; secretary Peter Holmes; treasurer (a post he has held since the branch got its charter) Art Messerschmidt; and sergeant-at-arms, Gordon Ireland.

Then—and here comes the popper—the new president rose to announce that Mrs. Fielding wished to support the Cosmopolitan Club further in its project. Her offer: $100,000 as a start toward a badly-needed hospital unit for multiple sclerosis victims. Her hope: that it will be called "The Battin-Fielding Memorial Wing".

It remains only to note that even to the most deserving of clubs, such breaks may come but once in a lifetime!

ADVANCE POLL FOR SATURDAY STRICTLY A NOTHING AFFAIR

Victoria's advance poll established some kind of a record up to noon today . . . Nobody voted.

Deputy returning officer George Merz said a few telephone calls had been received but no votes recorded.

"I expect we may get a few in this afternoon," he said.

The advance poll opened today and remains open in the city clerk's office at City Hall through Thursday and Friday between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Revolt of Doctors Feared In Hospital Space Crisis

Elderly Woman Killed

4th Pedestrian In Two Weeks

The fourth pedestrian fatality in two weeks was recorded here Tuesday when an elderly woman was hit by a car at Fort and Fernwood.

Mrs. W. W. Patterson, 81, of Suite 3, 1333 Fort Street, died in Royal Jubilee Hospital one hour and 20 minutes after she was hit at 12:45 p.m.

Police report Mrs. Patterson was walking north across Fort when she was struck by a car westbound on Fort. They said she was over half way across when hit.

Police said the driver of the car was Kenneth Grant, 23, of 1840 Newton.

LIVED ALONE

Mrs. Patterson lived alone and her only relative lives in Edinburgh.

The three other pedestrians killed in the past two weeks were Alfred Kneen, 85, of 1345 Stanley; Miss Winnifred Tucker, 82, of 340 Linden, and six-year-old Lenore Harkin of 3128 Glasgow.

A fifth pedestrian, Mrs. Amelia Hickman, 47, of 816 Linden Avenue, died March 12, 11 days after she was struck by a car. Twenty-one persons have died in traffic mishaps in Greater Victoria this year.

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said an inquest into the death of Mrs. Patterson will open at 7:30 p.m. Monday at Chaplin's Funeral Chapel, 1155 Fort Street.

Appeal, Warning By Chief

The rising toll of traffic deaths and the crowds of Christmas shoppers have prompted Chief J. F. Gregory to issue an appeal and warning to drivers and pedestrians.

The chief said today the Christmas season is certain to cause traffic and pedestrian problems.

●

"People with their minds on Christmas and Christmas shopping are bound to create a most conjested traffic pattern," he said.

"Our department will do everything in its power to stem the rising tide of traffic accidents and deaths.

"But if people won't take it upon themselves to police their own walking and driving habits, they can expect prosecution or even worse—injuries."

●

Five people have died on Victoria streets in the past two and one-half weeks.

City traffic officers are tightening enforcement of traffic regulations.

Pedestrians breaking traffic laws are being issued tickets especially during the rush hours. A patrol car equipped with a loud hailer is cruising the downtown area checking people for minor offences.

Another series of police road blocks to check drivers and the condition of their cars is tentatively set for Friday.

HIGH TIDE made it easier for this morning's strong winds to whip waves over Dallas Road. This is Ross Bay, east of Clover Point, when winds were gusting to 59. Same gusts tore away the Maple Leaf flag at City Hall, puffed for a while, then swept away the Red Ensign as well.

Area Whacked Again By Rampaging Winds

But angry weather conditions were easing today and weary hydro and telephone linemen were catching up on damages which have plagued subscribers since Friday.

Tuesday night, capital region residents were bracing themselves for more trouble as RCMP broadcast warnings for motorists to avoid the Malahat if possible.

A combination of snow and fog slowed cars to a crawl. But this morning travelled portions were clear. Snow powdered the airport for half an hour Tuesday and Vancouver got some mixed snow and rain today, but skies were relatively clear in Victoria.

Winds started to build up at 2 a.m. today until almost 9 a.m. when the strongest gusts reached 59 miles per hour. They soon dropped to 35 and 45 and are now expected to abate to 25 Thursday morning out of the southeast.

The winds brought down a few more branches. One of them chopped power lines in the north Saanich area and left homes without heat or light for an hour and a half. Another outage which occurred just before noon was unlocated at press time.

But on the whole hydro crews were catching up. Men who went out to Port Renfrew at 4 a.m. Tuesday were finishing repairs at 10 a.m. today and power in the area was almost all restored after a 24-hour outage. There were few troubles elsewhere on the urban southern areas.

IMPROVING

B.C. Telephone reported their circuits in "good shape" at noon, fully restored to Port Renfrew and the situation in the Gulf Islands rapidly improving. Night crews have been working constantly since Friday.

The stiff winds created a spectacle on the Victoria waterfront this morning where an simultaneously. Spray whipped exceptionally high tide occurred across Dallas Road in blankets.

At Oak Bay, a report that the Undersea Garden was moved by the force of the wind and tide was explained by marina operator Bob Wright.

He said there was no danger and no problem. The undersea marine showplace was built to be flexible and is well anchored.

Ferry services, which were curtailed in the storm Friday, were undeterred by the overnight blow.

CPR UNHINDERED

A CPR ferry official pointed out that the Nanaimo-Vancouver route served by Princess of Vancouver was not hindered even by the Friday storm and the ship operated at full capacity carrying many passengers who had earlier been stranded by the lapse in the government ferry service.

The storm was severe up-Island. At Nanaimo a concrete block wall tumbled on several cars. Damage was heavy but no one was injured.

Snow was heavy on the Tofino-Alberni Highway and in the Shawnigan Lake area. Power was out for 14 hours at Tofino but was restored Tuesday night. Rooting was stripped from the home of Lloyd Betram at Nanaimo. Tofino schools were closed due to heating problems and snows curtailed work for Cowichan valley loggers.

Phone and light services were interrupted in Duncan area and at Chemainus, Cobble Hill, Lake Cowichan and Mill Bay by turn.

Power was off four hours in some areas and several residents reported windows smashed by the winds. Two boats sunk in Ladysmith harbor, one of them a cabin cruiser.

The list of damage was laid to a storm which hit Tuesday morning with greater force than the early morning blow today.

10 Acres Of Estate For School

About 10 acres of the 132-acre McRae Estate is expected to be sold to the Greater Victoria School Board for a new school.

Saanich is completing purchase of the estate from the McRae family for $1.2 million plus interest, payable as $900,000 now and the rest in instalments. The municipal offer included dropping last year's expropriation, which would allow sale of parts of the estate for other than purely recreational use.

IMPORTANT STEP

He described acquisition of the estate, when completed, as "an immensely important step for Saanich."

The costs can and will be reduced by "tightening up" corners and edges of the property and selling them for residential use.

The school board was "very interested in some of this acreage in the southern part for school pusposes."

He estimated the total land required for school purposes "could be about 10 acres, and again this is possible without in any way detracting from the total value of the property for park purposes and a revenue-producing golf course."

Sale of land to the school board would reduce the total cost of the estate and "make an ideal site available to the board and offer the joint use of playing fields and school buildings which we all seek."

'We Can't Wait For Five Years'

By PETE LOUDON

Victoria can't wait any longer for relief to hospital overcrowding and mammoth waiting lists, a prominent hospital authority said today.

J. Courtney Haddock, chairman of Royal Jubilee Hospital Board, said it will take years for present plans to mature.

Speaking unofficially, he said, "Our medical staff won't stand for it. They'll revolt. We can't sit and wait five years."

His comments in an interview followed a report Tuesday night that four persons have died while waiting admission to hospital as urgent cases.

The report was made during an election speech by Dr. G. Scott Wallace, an Oak Bay council candidate.

Mr. Haddock said that because he was speaking personally he was unable to explain how his hospital could move to ease the present situation, at this time.

But he considered a waiting list of 2,000 elective cases and 750 urgent cases at the two hospitals, an intolerable situation.

Mr. Haddock was bitterly critical of "civic leaders who killed the referendum" that would have launched a $13.5 million hospital program two years ago.

"Then they started in on this silly survey," he said.

Consultants have been brought from Toronto to get information from B.C. Hospital Insurance Service and local municipalities.

"They are selling this back to us for $40,000. And this is information we already know."

No community action can be launched until the survey is prepared. It is expected in January. And then it will be up to five years before a new acute hospital could be built, he said.

Welfare Patients Could Move

While it is uncertain what steps Jubilee could take on its own to provide more beds, one area of improvement is indicated. Mr. Haddock and other officials have stated that up to 50 acute hospital beds in Victoria are occupied by elderly patients well enough to be in private nursing homes.

But they are not acceptable because they are welfare patients who are not acceptable to nursing home operators because provincial allowances for their care fall below private rates.

Dr. Wallace told the all-candidates meeting that the serious lack of hospital facilities here constitues a major crisis.

"The dimension of the crisis is well demonstrated by the fact that at our two main hospitals, even cases classified as urgent, now wait several weeks for a bed."

He said non-urgent cases are now booking 10 months ahead.

"A recent survey of 20 cases awaiting urgent admission revealed that four had died awaiting admission. These few sad facts spell out quite clearly the gravity of the bed situation."

One-Year Wait Soon Possible

They should at least be admitted and made comfortable, he said. He said both acute hospitals have medical committees which review the waiting lists each day and do all possible to see that those most requiring care are given prior admission.

He thought that unless some now un-planned expansion is undertaken, waiting lists will soon require more than a year's advance booking for non-urgent cases.

Dr. William J. Bell, president of Victoria Medical Society said he didn't know the details of the four fatalities and he did not "wish to engage in any controversy" before the current survey of hospital needs is complete.

Dr. C. H. Hemming, chairman of the Victoria and District Hospital's Planning Council, said his board will withhold any comment until such times as the Toronto consultant firm completes its report.

Asked what relief Victoria could expect during the five years necessary to build more hospitals, he said, "I am hopeful we can come up with something."

Emergency Hospitals Proposed

He thought the current crisis might be "partially resolved" in one year but he said he preferred not to elaborate on this at this time.

Laymen tangling with the problem have made suggestion that emergency hospitals might be created in vacant buildings—simple dormitory-type facilities suited to recuperation wards or chronic care. Medical people generally believe such adaptions would be too costly.

Off the record, some will say that if Victoria settles for such second-rate facilities their use might become permanent and this is another argument against them.

A proposal has been made that the soon-to-be emptied isolation annex at Royal Jubilee might be saved from the wreckers for such purpose. However, no announcement in this regard has been made.

Dr. A. C. Pickles, executive director at Royal Jubilee, preferred not to comment either on Dr. Wallace's report of four patient deaths, until he could read the report for himself.

At St. Joseph's Hospital, Dr. Embert Van Tilberg, executive director, said any doctor who states his case is an emergency, may arrange immediate admittance for the patient.

Warm Welcome For Co-Op Housing Plan

Council representatives from Saanich and Victoria said today they would welcome the construction in Greater Victoria of a co-operative housing project.

So did Mayor Hugh Stephen.

The Society has one project under way in Port Alberni and two others scheduled for early starts in 1968 in Nanaimo and Duncan.

"I am enthusiastic about the idea," said Coun. Gunning. "But I want it stressed that I shall be very fussy about design. This will be the key to my ultimate decision.

NO STEREOTYPES

"I am prepared to support any project that will relieve the housing shortage — but only if the design of the individual units and the over-all area is first class. We don't want a standard stereotyped project."

"This morning's discussion was of a preliminary nature only, but I am happy to see the co-operative principle being advocated.

PLANNER HAPPY

City planner Geoff Greenhalgh also gave tentative approval to the scheme.

Mr. English said that with the preliminary discussion out of the way and the reaction favorable the search would now begin for suitable sites.

Two projects are envisioned for the area, one for young families in Saanich and another for a mixed resident population in Victoria.

Co-operative housing projects involve the formation of a society or association with individuals purchasing shares in the society up to the value of their house.

Occupancy of a home follows a down payment on shares in the society of between $800 and $1,000 with monthly payments of between $80 and $100.

Ask The Times

Q. What was the cost of the radar equipment installed in Esquimalt police cars last June and how many convictions have resulted and how much has been paid in fines? P.J.W.

A. The radar cost $1,100. In the first year of its operation 339 warnings were issued and 227 charges laid. In addition says the Esquimalt police commission, since the installation of radar, driving habits in certain areas have improved noticeably.

Firemen Question Children After $1,500 House Blaze

Fire department officials are investigating the cause of a blaze which they estimate caused $1,500 damage to a city home early today.

A spokesman said children may have been responsible for the fire at the home of Mrs. W. R. Osecki, 1617 Pembroke St.

WEARING A $2 MILLION SMILE Mayor Hugh Stephen, right, accepts a major payment from the T. S. McPherson estate from Doug Abbott, manager of Canada Trust. The late Mr. McPherson is shown in the background photograph. The $2 million payment has already built the McPherson Theatre and the new Royal Athletic Park. Durnig the next few months a final payment from the estate will be made to the city totalling some $750,000. Of the $2 million received Tuesday by Mayor Stephen, $1.5 million will go to pay off construction costs at the theatre and Royal Athletic Park, the balance will be invested in short-term notes.

'Put Tomahawks Away' Phil Pleads With Band

VANCOUVER (CP) — Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi has called on the Kitwanga Indian Band in the Skeena River Valley east of Prince Rupert to trade the tomahawk for the peace pipe in a battle over highways compensation payments.

The highways minister urged peaceful settlement on the band's dissatisfaction over delays in getting adequate compensation for two highways built across reserve lands.

"Just tell them to put their tomahawks away and get the peace pipe out—I'm a peaceful man," said Mr. Gaglardi. "Anything that's my responsibility I look after."

Mr. Gaglardi said, however, he had not personally seen any correspondence between his department and the band.

"They could be analyzing it before presenting it to me with a report," he said. "I'll sure take a look at it."

The minister was made an honorary chief of the band in 1959 when they acclaimed him as the man who brought trade and commerce to otherwise neglected areas—hence his tribal name, "Chief Water-on-Dry-Ground."

In Kitwanga, Joe Daniels, district vice-president of the Nativ Brotherhood of British Columbia, said the band was getting irritated with the delays in solving their problems.

He said for one road built in 1960 the band received only $6,500 compensation for a three-mile right of way. A more realistic figure for the timber destroyed would be $100,000, he said. For another road, built in 1962, no compensation had been received.

Mr. Daniels said another problem was that the ferry across the Skeena River near Kitwanga was knocked out by a flood four years ago and never replaced.

He said this meant an extra 60 miles on the journey to Prince Rupert. The band wants a bridge instead, because a ferry was useless for seven months a year when the river freezes up.

Mr. Daniels said the band is preparing a brief and a petition for Mr. Gaglardi, Upper Skeena MLA Dudley Little and MP Frank Howard of the New Democratic Party.

Allergy Cure 'Coming' Says Doctor

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — A Japanese doctor working at a Denver hospital for children with asthma says he believes he is on the trail of an eventual cure for hay fever and other allergies.

Dr. Kimishige Ishizaka and his wife, Teruko, also a doctor, have spent five years in their quest at their laboratories at the Children's Asthma Research Institute and Hospital.

The day they succeed in unravelling their medical detective puzzle may be a long way off, but Dr. Ishizaka said he is confident it will come.

Most of the immune antibodies in a human being are a protein called gamma globulin. By 1965 four classes of these proteins had been designated. The Japanese couple succeeded in isolating a fifth protein, which they call gamma-E.

"I am quite sure that gamma-E is the 'cause of human allergies," Ishizaka, 41, said in an interview.

"Not many cells are involved in this protein. If we can stop the formation of gamma-E, theoretically we can stop allergies. That is what we have been working on for five years and we'll keep working on it in collaboration with scientists elsewhere."

As Ishizaka explained it, when a person with an allergy is attacked by such things as pollen or house dust, the gamma-E protein in his body rushes to the defence, releasing a histamine.

So much of the gamma-E histamine is released that the sufferer's tissues swell, his eyes water and smart and his breathing often becomes difficult.

Ishizaka conceded that antihistamine drugs are available for the hay fever victim. What he is seeking is a serum of some other substance that could be injected into the victim, and head off the gamma-E rescue effort.

Tiger Named 'Fighter of Month'

NEW YORK (AP) — Light-heavyweight Dick Tiger was named Fighter of the Month today by Ring magazine for stopping Roger Rouse in the 12th round of their title fight last month.

American Breeders Buy U.K. Horses

Romanian Red Leader Raps Kremlin

BUCHAREST (AP) — Communist party chief Nicolae Ceausescu accused the Soviet Union today of putting economic pressure on Romania and violating agreements between the two countries. In a speech to the national Communist party conference, he indicated the Kremlin is doing this to force Romania off its independent course and back into the Soviet sphere of influence in Eastern Europe.

Huge Drug Seizure Made at Suez

MAILLARDVILLE THROWS BIG PITCH ON DEC. 12

COQUITLAM (CP) — Coquitlam School Board will be asked at its Dec. 12 meeting to use French as a language of instruction in primary grades.

The proposal will be made by the French-Canadian Federation of B.C., secretary-general Romeo Paquette said Monday.

The federation is taking the initiative because of a recent comment by Premier Bennett, said Mr. Paqutte.

"Mr. Bennett said French language instruction in the public school system could be considered where there was a concentration of French-speaking people in the community and if the district school board made such a request," he said.

Three Bilingual Provinces Urged

OTTAWA (CP)—A plea to English Canada to give its French-speaking minority the same language rights Quebec has extended to its English-speaking minority for 100 years was made Tuesday by the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

Holding up what it called the "Quebec model," it said Ontario and New Brunswick should move to declare themselves officially bilingual provinces, recognizing both the English and French languages in their legislatures, public service, schools and courts.

Other provinces should follow suit when the French-speaking element of their populations reaches 10 per cent.

The report, about 100,000 words long, is printed in both English and French.

"The impossibilty of living a full life in French outside Quebec, and even in certain parts of Quebec, is certainly one cause of the present crisis in Canada," the royal commission warned in a 260-page report, first of 10 to come out of its four-year, $7,000,000 study.

Three years ago the commission said in a preliminary report that the gulf between English and French Canada was deeper than most people realized.

"The crisis is very much still with us," commission co-chairman Davidson Dunton told a press conference after release of the report.

Andre Laurendeau, the other co-chairman, said more and more Canadians are coming to recognize the seriousness of the situation.

★ ★ ★

Prime Minister Pearson, tabling the report in the Commons, said the federal government fully endorses its principle of linguistic and cultural equality in all parts of Canada. It would be suggested as an item for discussion at the federal-provincial constitutional conference here in January.

One of the report's major proposals is for the establishment of "bilingual districts" anywhere that the official-language minority makes up 10 per cent or more of the population. These would have schools and government services in the minority language.

It identifies 54 such districts from the 1961 census, 43 of them in Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick. There also were four in Nova Scotia, four in Manitoba and one each in Prince Edward Island, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The 10-member royal commission also made these recommendations:

- Acceptance by all provinces of both languages in legislature debates and the provision of appropriate services in French for French-speaking minorities.
- Recognition of the right of Canadian parents to have their children educated in English or French, implementation depending on concentration of the minority population.
- Declaration that English and French are the official languages of Parliament and of federal courts and administrative offices.
- Amendment of provincial legislation to remove obstacles to the use of both French and English by local governments.
- Enactment of a federal official languages act to ensure respect for the status of English and French.
- Similar legislation by officially bilingual provinces.
- Establishment of a completely bilingual capital area involving both Ottawa and Hull, Quebec.
- An new section of the British North America Act guaranteeing minority education rights.

The royal commission stressed that "living in French must

It's $7 Million Worth of Trouble Claims Strachan

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan today blasted the 'Bi and Bi' commission's report urging French language rights as "$7 million worth of trouble" for Canada.

Premier Bennett refused to comment on the commission's first report this morning and Attorney-General Robert Bonner declined comment until he has a chance to read the full report.

But Mr. Strachan declared himself opposed to the principal recommendation of the commission that bilingualism be an official policy wherever either English or French minorities compose at least 10 per cent of the population.

"I think it's $7 million worth of trouble for Canada," Mr. Strachan said of the commission.

'TWO NATIONS'

"It will give semi-official endorsation to the idea that Canada should be composed of two equal nations.

"And this will carry the fragmentation of our federal society into the provincial and local level."

Mr. Strachan said he was opposed to French being used as the language of instruction in any B.C. school because it would boomerang as a discriminatory process in the long run.

"A pupil who graduates from such a school would naturally find himself short in English and it would be difficult for these students to fit into an English-speaking society."

He said French-speaking school graduates would not be able to compete for jobs in an English-speaking environment "and we will then hear the cry of discrimination on the provincial level," he said.

AGAINST DIVISION

Asked if he was opposed to bilingualism per se, Mr. Strachan replied:

"I'm against the acceptance of any permanent fragmentation of the Canadian society and I don't think we should take any steps that would tend to crystal-

PM Promises Quick Action

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP)—The first report of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism has won general acceptance here despite some fears that events may supersede implementation of its recommendations.

However, Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons in tabling the report Tuesday the government already has established machinery to give it "serious and urgent appraisal."

He said the government "fully endorses" the principle of English and French linguistic and cultural equality expressed in the report.

Mr. Pearson promised federal action as quickly as possible on matters within its jurisdiction.

Only three of the 14 recommendations fall within the exclusive jurisdiction of Ottawa, two more are constitutional and require prior discussion with the provinces, and three others would require joint federal-provincial action.

Six are primarily provincial, Mr. Pearson noted.

He said he will suggest that matters in the report be discussed at the federal-provincial Bill of Rights Conference planned for early 1968.

PC CHIEF APPROVES

In the Commons, Opposition Leader Stanfield said that regardless of jurisdiction, recommendations in the report "clearly relate to problems which are of concern to the country as a whole."

The former Nova Scotia premier said that a few years ago the recommendations might have been considered rather startling. But the fact that people had been pressing for the first commission report indicated the extent to which public opinion had changed.

Roger Regimbal (PC—Argenteuil - Deux Montagnes) said there is "danger that events may outstrip the report" but nevertheless it was a good starting point.

Some Conservatives grumbled that the commission had taken four years to produce proposals that provincial premiers had basically agreed to in four days last week at the Confederation for Tomorrow conference in Toronto.

NDP Leader Douglas welcomed the report as "an important contribution to a fundamental problem" and said he was impressed by the unanimous opinion of the commissioners.

Events had vindicated the commission's 1965 warning in a preliminary report that a crisis existed in Canada.

Mr. Douglas said the 1968 constitutional conference should look as well at a redistribution of powers over such matters as housing, manpower, pollution and farm products marketing.

Quebec Road Link To Latins?

(Special to The Times)

MONTEVIDEO—The possibility that Quebec may establish links with South American countries has been raised here today by Fernand J. Lafontaine, minister of the Quebec roads department, who is currently attending as observer the tenth Pan American Roads convention.

He made this statement in a speech he had been invited to deliver before the delegates to the convention. He also took this opportunity to present a basic documentation on works carried out by Quebec engineers in the field of road signalling.

Mr. Lafontaine's statement about the establishing of links between the province of Quebec on the one hand and South American countries, the United States and their continental organizations on the other hand was most warmly welcomed.

Creditiste Leader Caouette said that even Canada's French-language prime ministers didn't show as much understanding of French-Canadians as Prime Minister Pearson.

Mr. Caouette also praised provincial efforts to establish bilingual educational systems.

A. B. Patterson, acting Social Credit leader, said any attempt to pressure the provinces into accepting the report "could have very serious and unfortunate results."

Outside the Commons, Forestry Minister Sauve said the report will do a lot to demonstrate that there is a desire to improve relations.

Gilles Gregoire (Ind.—Lapointe) said that it was "a gesture of good faith" that meant nothing. Quebec probably would be independent before the recommendations were dealt with by Ottawa, he said.

LEADERS DISCOURAGED

Police Block Viet Protest

NEW YORK (AP) — Masses of shouting anti-war demonstrators were frustrated by police today in their second attempt to disrupt operations at the U.S. military induction centre in lower Manhattan. There were about 200 arrests.

In Philadelphia, police arrested 70 demonstrators trying to block the entrance of the induction centre there. The 70 seeking to block the doorway were part of a crowd of about 700, police said. Lawrence Elle, head of the Philadelphia Anti-draft Union which organized the rally, said it was designed to "show strong anti-war and anti-draft sentiment."

In New York, discouraged demonstration leaders were divided on whether to try again Thursday, as planned. Today's protest was marked by scattered fights between marchers and pedestrians before the demonstration broke up in mid-morning.

As the group gathered in Battery Park before dawn, reporters spotted about 300 green-buttoned plainclothes policemen. As the march began, several took off their buttons and mingled with the demonstrators.

Youth, 20, Sets Self In Flames

Witnesses said they saw D'Elia climb a five-foot fence, run to an adjacent lawn, pour gasoline over himself from a two-gallon metal container and strike a match.

Students Strike

HONG KONG (AP) — Some 20,000 Chinese students from 33 Hong Kong schools began a protest strike today charging the colony's British government with "great crimes against our compatriot Chinese students."

B.C. Way-of-Life Not Threatened

Special to The Times

OTTAWA — No no no — or non non non for the benefit of Maillardville.

There would be no bid to make French mandatory for every man, woman and child in B.C.

Street signs would not be changed to read Rue Granville.

It would not be necessary to develop a taste for snails instead of salmon.

In total, the recommendations of the bilingualism and biculturalism commission would not fan a Gallic breeze blowing from the Kootenays to Vancouver Island.

The commission came out with its recommendations Tuesday for officially declaring English and French as the official languages, and other moves.

The recommendations pose no threat to B.C. way-of-life, jobs, or rights of any citizens, but they might make the quality of life a little richer, and a little more secure in terms of unity.

This point is hammered home again and again in the commissioners' report—an involved, penetrating volume of some 260 pages.

But there is a fear in some official quarters that the recommendations will produce

NEW YORK BABY DIES IN HEART TRANSPLANT

NEW YORK (Reuters) — A baby who received a transplanted heart from a dead infant today has died, the doctor who performed the operation announced.

The baby survived for several hours, but then his heart stopped, Dr. Adrian Kantrowitz told a press conference.

"We consider this procedure was a failure," he said.

Dr. Kantrowitz said the child, born in Maimonides Medical Centre in Brooklyn, had a lesion which blocked the entrance to the heart's left ventricle.

The defect was not repairable by any open-heart technique.

'REALISTIC, APPLICABLE'

MONTREAL (CP) — Claude Ryan, publisher of Le Devoir, says the royal commission report on bilingualism and biculturalism appears to be "realistic, supple and applicable."

"For the first time in a century of their common history, Canadians of both languages are offered by the Laurendeau-Dunton commission a program of equality based on precise definitions," he wrote in a front page editorial in today's edition of Le Devoir.

"The status of equality proposed . . . has existed in Quebec for a long time. The report is therefore aimed at the federal government, at the governments of other provinces and at English-speaking Canadians in general. . . ."

Maxwell Cohen, dean of the law faculty at McGill University, said in an interview the report will require a "fundamental change in the English-speaking population as a whole."

Michel Brunet, director of the history department at the University of Montreal, said the report was 40 years too late.

"If this program had been drawn up and implemented around 1920, I'm convinced it would have accomplished something."

Richard Lord, vice-president of the English-language section of the Quebec Liberal Federation, said French-Canadians should be able to feel at home all over Canada, but this cannot be legislated.

"It's a matter of education. Attitudes in Canada have to change. This process has already started and perhaps the report will help."

Day Nurseries: Heavenly Havens

By KATHRINE THOMAS

Many women of Hong Kong spend their lives laboring piteously to gain meagre rations to keep their families alive.

Without such help as the Unitarian Service Committee's free day nurseries in which they can place their youngest children, they would be unable to cope.

Tan Kah Kin, one of the boys in the nursery, is four years old. His father died of a heart attack in 1964; his mother is almost completely deaf and there are six other children.

The eldest works as a wrapper in a bakery earning about $25 per month, not enough to feed such a large family. The mother is only able to join together plastic branches for Christmas decorations. It takes her two days to assemble one box for which she is paid 25 cents.

When Dr. Hitschmanova, director of the USC, visited this family, she found the smallest child tied with a rope to the railing of the only bed while his mother worked on her greenery, which may adorn Christmas tables in Victoria—half a world away.

GRATEFUL

The mother told Dr. Hitschmanova through an interpreter how grateful she was that the day nursery had accepted one of her little ones without pay; he was getting such good care and such excellent food three times a day.

Could the USC possilby take the next smallest one as well?

"It was impossible," says Dr. Hitschmanova.

"How difficult it is to explain that there is not a single vacancy, that the waiting list is growing each day, with more than 100 names listed as the most desperate cases in the neighborhood.

"She understood, but told me that her children were constantly hungry and showed us a dish of leftovers—cold vegetables and a little boiled rice—which neighbors had dropped in the night before. She would heat them up at noon—as the first food of the day."

Dr. Hitschmanova also visited the 88-year-old grandmother of another boy in the nursery. She found her sitting in the lower half of the doubledecker bunk playing with the little boy and his three sisters.

Altogether 20 persons, 12 adults and eight children, live in a tiny, dark, airless flat without the slightest privacy. The father died of cancer; the mother works as a cleaning woman.

CHINESE SUBS GET N-TIPPED MISSILES

WASHINGTON (UPI)—China has installed launchers for nuclear-tipped missiles on two of its largest submarines, informed sources said today.

The sources said the U.S. Navy has concrete evidence that three launching tubes capable of hurling missiles 380 miles have been built into each of the subs. The submarines are now nearing completion at Dairen in southern Manchuria.

be made possible in every part of Canada where there are enough French-speaking people."

On the question of having Ontario and New Brunswick declare themselves bilingual provinces, the report noted that Ontario has 425,000 of the 853,000 French-speaking Canadians who live outside of Quebec and New Brunswick has 210,530 who make up 35 per cent of its population.

These two provinces and Quebec account for 95 per cent of French-speaking Canadians.

To become officially bilingual a provice should legalize the use of both English and French in legislature debates, print all laws, regulations and legislative records in both languages, provide equal public school systems for both communities and adopt both languages in the courts.

Ontario recently announced an intention to provide French high schools.

The report criticized the "English cast of life" in Ottawa, saying nowhere else in Canada is there such a concentration of French-Canadians with so few language rights.

The French language was scarcely recognized in provincial and municipal offices.

City of Ottawa Unco-operative

This was a major obstacle to the recruitment of able French-Canadians by the federal civil service. The answer was the development of a "truly bilingual" capital area embracing Ottawa and Hull, across the Ottawa River.

A research report attached to the main document said Ottawa's board of control was the only public body in Canada that refused to co-operate with the royal commission.

The report suggests that if French-language rights are not guaranteed in English Canada, Quebec might question its constitutionally bilingual character.

Under the BNA Act, the constitution, minority language rights are guaranteed only in that province.

The royal commission is expected to produce reports on education and the status of French in the work field in about six months. Others, to be out by the end of 1968, will deal with the capital in detail, Parliament, the federal cabinet, the Supreme Court of Canada, ethnic groups, the arts, mass media and other topics.

Two of the 10 commissioners wrote individual statements as riders to Tuesday's report.

Rev. Clement Cormier, 57, former president of the University of Moncton, said the commission was too rigid in its definition of "official bilingualism."

J. B. Rudnyckyj, 57, of Winnipeg, suggested some form of constitutional recognition be granted to "regional languages" other than English or French. He mentioned German, Italian and Ukrainian.

Apartheid Controversy At Hospital

CAPE TOWN (AP) — Groote Schuur Hospital, where doctors last Sunday announced the first successful transplant of a human heart, is in the midst of a controversy over one of its staff.

The South African government placed Dr. Raymond Hoffenberg under "ban," meaning his activities are restricted. The government takes such action under security laws and rarely gives an explanation.

It has given none in the case of Dr. Hoffenberg, a research scientist who works at Groote Schuur Hospital and is a professor at Cape Town University.

Refusal to explain the ban, or to try Dr. Hoffenberg in court where he could defend himself, "is steadily producing a situation in South Africa comparable to that in Germany before the last war," a group of protesting doctors said.

While the government does not explain its actions in these cases, many of those put under restrictions are opponents of the policy of apartheid, or racial segregation. More than 675 persons of various races have been banned or restricted.

Recently Prime Minister John Vorster told the "liberal press" that if it thinks that by writing about people who are deported or restricted it will prevent the government from taking action against these people, it is "making a great mistake."

She's Outstanding

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Louise Henson, 39, once named an "outstanding woman of the year," was charged Tuesday with embezzling $81,279 from Sears, Roebuck & Co., where she worked as a clerk.

"No one tells me anything!"

Hard Liquor Up 35 Cents; Beer 5 Cents

The B.C. government boosted liquor prices as of today by more than double the estimated impact of last week's federal tax increase.

A cabinet order added:

Thirty-five cents to each standard bottle of all kinds of "hard" liquor and 20 cents to each "mickey" size; Five cents to each standard bottle of all wines, domestic and imported, except for champagne which went up 15 cents;

40c A GALLON

Oversixe bottles of wine were boosted 10 cents for 40 ounces, 20 cents for half-gallons and 40 cents for gallons;

Domestic beer and ale went up five cents for a dozen pints but imported beer and ale was raised 10 cents; draught beer went up $1 a barrel.

Liqueurs were raised 35 cents for a standard bottle.

Federal officials last week estimated that the 10 per cent increase in the federal tax would add only 15 cents to a bottle of liquor.

'TOO BUSY'

Liquor board czar Col. Donald McGugan, who wired the new prices to LCB stores Tuesday night, refused to confirm the increases to a reporter this morning and would not discuss the basis for the raises.

Efforts to obtain an explanation for the size of the increases brought a response from Attorney-General Robert Bonner's office that he was "too busy" to answer phone calls.

The cabinet order was signed by Premier Bennett who last month appealed to all private businessmen to hold the line on their prices in order to help fight inflation.

Mr. Bennett also said that devaluation of the British pound would bring about a 15 per cent price cut at LCB stores for liquor imported from the United Kingdom.

POCKET DIFFERENCE

But today's price boosts did not exempt any imported liquor and it appears the government will pocket the devaluation difference in five lines of rum, six lines of gin, five lines of beer and ale and three lines of sherry and port that are imported from the U.K.

The price increase on U.K. beer and ale, in fact, was double that put on domestic brands.

There was no distinction made in the price increases for 50 lines of Scotch either, although the Scotch Whisky Association announced it was offsetting only approximately 11 per cent of the more than 14 per cent devaluation.

. . . B.C.

CO-OPERATION

However, they will make little direct impact on B.C.

As commission co-chairman A. Davidson Dunton pointed out, support of them would be more of a gesture of goodwill and desire to co-operate with Canada's French-speaking people—who form about one-third of the total population.

The theme was that of Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson at the Confederation of Tomorrow conference in Toronto last week, who emphasized that his province does not want to impose its language on other Canadians.

But it does want its language rights ensured across Canada.

Under the British North America Act, minority language rights are guaranteed only in Quebec—and there the English have it in writing.

The first recommendation in the report is that "English and French be formally declared the official languages of the Parliament of Canada, of the federal courts, of the federal government, and of the federal administration."

IN WRITING

The federal government endorses the principle of linguistic and cultural equality, as Prime Minister Pearson repeated Tuesday night, and both languages prevail on Parliament Hill.

But the French desire is to have it in writing, in the constitution.

The commission stated that the 1867 constitution recognized French and English in the federal field—"however it has become evident to us that this recognition was incomplete in many respects, and often disputed where the French language was concerned."

But this doesn't mean, by any standard, that the average Victoria postman has to parlez-vous.

The report states:

"The administration in Ottawa must be able to communicate adequately with the public in both languages.

"All government publications, as well as forms and notices, must be simultaneously available in either language.

"Federal government offices and crown corporations across the country must be able to deal with people in either French of English.

"For example, in the immigration and customs offices at all ports of entry, in important transportation terminals, on Canadian National's trains, and on Air Canada's airplanes —2everywhere, even in the completely unilingual sections of the country, where there is contact with the travelling public—services should be available in both languages as a matter of course."

MAIN OFFICES

This does not mean every little government office in B.C. must be staffed with bilingual personnel—but in the main centres the aim is to have someone who could handle French.

"These changes can be made without forcing a single citizen, Francophone or Anglophone, to learn the other official language, for the most part these changes will cost little," the report added.

But there would be costs that would not come up in a unilingual system. At Toronto, Premier John Robarts said Canada's bilingualism made it distinctive, and he felt sure Canadians would be prepared to pay the cost of keeping the country together.

The report also called on all provinces to accept official bilingualism in their jurisdictions, but in B.C. — with about 50,000 citizens with a French mother tongue — there isn't likely much chance of this coming up in the ligislalure in Victoria.

BILINGUAL DISTRICTS

Again the report stated that such practice will vary according to the number of people speaking French in an area and the practicalities.

The report also suggested "bilingual districts" based on a Finnish bilingual system.

This means in areas in a non-bilingual province where there are about 10 per cent of the people speaking the minority tongue, that a bilingual district be set up. This, primarily, would offer education in the public system, and some French in public services.

The report recommends that Ottawa and the province concerned define the exact limits of each bilingual district.

It lists 54 census divisions as meeting the criterion — but none in Newfoundland or B.C.

"In the provinces with no bilingual districts — a bureau of translation and some educational services might suffice in these provinces," the report states. And it is in the education field that the commission's recommendations would be most felt in B.C. — although still only slightly.

The commissioners suggested: "We recommend that the right of Canadian parents to have their children educated in the official language of their choice be recognized in the education systems."

Heart Man May Go Home In Three Weeks—Doctor

(Times News Services)

CAPE TOWN — Louis Washkansky will be home in three weeks if his progress with a transplanted heart continues at its present rate, the surgeon who made the history-making heart graft said today.

Professor Chris Barnard, who led a team of surgeons that gave the South African businessman a young woman's heart Sunday, told a press conference Washkansky would be better off at home.

"Hospitals are where germs are and the chances of infection would consequently be greater," he said.

Washkansky continued to gain strength as doctors said he entered a crucial seven-day period in which his body would accept or reject the transplanted heart.

Barnard was in a cheerful mood at the press conference and showed a high degree of optimism that Washkansky would live.

He said an electro-cardiagraph reading on the new heart was satisfactory and the patient was feeling well.

There was no sign so far that his body tissues would reject the heart transferred from 25-year-old Denise Darvall in an historic five-hour operation at Groote Schuur Hospital after the young woman was fatally injured in an auto accident.

But a team of doctors and nurses was in constant attendance around his infection-free oxygen tent for the first tell-tale signs of rejection—which would mean death for the 55-year-old wholesale grocer.

He continued to improve today, started telling jokes and told a nurse, "I am a new Frankenstein."

His general condition is satisfactory and all signs show improvement, a hospital bulletin said.

Despite Washkansky's cheerfulness and signs of progress, heart specialists warned that he was entering a crucial period.

If previous transplants were any guide, said Dr. Marius Barnard, then Washkansky's has reached the stage where his body might try to reject the transplanted heart.

This period starts three to 10 days after a transplant operation said Barnard, younger brother of the leader of the team of 30 specialists who operated Sunday.

His condition is monitored minute by minute and efforts by the body to reject the heart would likely appear first on an electro-cardiagraph device.

Washkansky Tuesday took solid food for the first time, after two days of fluids dripped into his veins.

'Personal Reasons'

HAVANA (Reuters) — Richard Howard Pearce, a United States Army major with access to secret U.S. information who defected to Cuba in May, said Tuesday he left his country "for strictly personal reasons, not for political reasons."

Pearce, who has decorations for service in Vietnam, arrived at Havana's Cuidad Libertad Airport May 21 in a Cessna 150 plane, with his five-year-old son Richard, who was legally in the custody of his divorced wife. The child's custody was said to be the reason for his defection.

Pearce talked Tuesday for the first time since his arrival with two western reporters in a well-furnished house, given to him and his son by the Cuban government in the posh Havana suburb of Miramar.

Pearce, courteous and relaxed, said: "My reasons for leaving my country were and continue to be strictly personal."

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

The deep low pressure centre off the Charlottes will move slowly northeastward towards the Alaska panhandle. Strong winds associated with it will continue to pound the B.C. coast. Wind speeds as high as 73 mph were reported on the north coast this morning and 45 in the south. The rain has now spread to most areas of the coast and snow was expected throughout the interior this afternoon.

Behind the storm strong southwesterly winds will continue to give cloudy skies and showers to the coast and a few snow flurries to the interior. However, partial clearing is expected on the lower mainland and in the interior late Thursday.

Suddenly I Lost My Memory!

A noted publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique for acquiring a powerful memory which can pay you real dividends in both business and social advancement and works like magic to give you added poise, necessary self-confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by remembering accurately everything they see, hear, or read. Whether in business, at social functions or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can dominate each situation by your ability to remember.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in remembering anything you choose to remember, the publishers have printed full details of their self-training method in a new booklet, "Adventures in Memory," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. No obligation. Send your name and address to: Memory Studies, 835 Diversey Parkway, Dept. 142-210, Chicago, Ill. 60614. A postcard will do.

'WE REALLY WANT . . . STATUS OF MAJORITY'

MONTREAL (CP) — Pierre Bourgault, leader of the separatist Rassemblement pour l'Independence Nationale, said Tuesday night the authors of the royal commission report on bilingualism and biculturalism do not understand what Quebec really wants.

"This attempt to spread cultural equality changes nothing," he said in an interview.

"They don't talk about political economic equality. What Ottawa doesn't understand is that here in Quebec we're not looking for the status of equality, but for the status of a majority."

Mr. Bourgault, leader of the province's largest separatist party, said the report "plays" the French-language minorities outside Quebec against French-Canadians in Quebec.

BILL BURNED BY ANGRY INDIAN MP

NEW DELHI (AP) — An opposition member of Parliament set fire to a copy of the government's controversial languages bill today.

The bill would make Hindi an official language and continue English as the official language in non-Hindi speaking areas. It has touched off a wave of bloody rioting across the country.

Three City Men Get Jail Terms

CALGARY (CP)—Three young Victoria men were given prison terms Tuesday when they pleaded guilty to a charge of robbing a Calgary man, then using his car, taking him to Golden, B.C.

Garry J. Cragg, 23, and Melvin J. Cardy, 18, were each sentenced to seven years in prison. Wesley L. Braham, 19, was sentenced to five years.

Court was told the three took the car from Floyd W. Yeats of Calgary, Nov. 19, while he waited for his family outside a downtown Calgary church.

Threatening him with a knife, they forced him from the driver seat, then headed west. Near Banff, they stopped to pick up a hitch hiker.

At Golden, the men decided to stop for coffee, and Mr. Yeats and the hitch hiker jumped from the car and notified RCMP.

The three were arrested shortly afterwards.

In addition to the car, Mr. Yeats was robbed of some cash, identification cards and a wrist watch.

Leaders Want To Read Report Before Talking

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Reaction to the first volume of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism was sketchy Tuesday as most leaders wanted to read the 260-page report before commenting.

But separatist MP Gilles Gregoire said the report doesn't matter because Quebec will be independent by the time the federal government gets around to dealing with the commission's recommendations.

"It's too late," said the Lapointe, Que., MP. "This is a show of good faith, that's all, but in practice. . . . "

In Victoria, Attorney-General Robert Bonner welcomed appearance of the first volume, but said he wants to study the report before commenting further.

Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta said before the report was tabled in the Commons he would not comment until he has had a chance to study the report.

Jacques Boucher, president of the Edmonton branch of the French-Canadian Association, said the report "sounds interesting," and Jean-Maurice Olivier, editor of Le Franco-Albertain, a French-language weekly, said: "It seems to be good."

NOT AN ALBERTA ISSUE

Although bilingualism and biculturalism has not been a burning issue in Alberta, "there is lots of room for improvement, and for more use of the French language," said Mr. Boucher.

A spokesman for Premier John Robarts of Ontario said the premier will not comment on the report until he and government officials can study it thoroughly.

Ontario Education Minister William Davis said Ontario's education policies already appear in line with recommendations of the report.

The report recommends education on French and English be made available where practical.

French can be used in Ontario elementary schools where the size of the French-speaking populations warrants it.

Robert Nixon, leader of the Ontario Liberal party, and Donald C. MacDonald, leader of the Provincial New Democratic Party, welcomed recommendations for establishment of bilingual districts and official bilingual legislature and courts.

Mr. Nixon said he had no objection to making French an official language in the legislature, as French was often used despite there being no official provision for it.

Mr. MacDonald said recent developments had shown most Canadians the problem of biculturalism is serious.

HAS PRIORITY PROBLEMS

Barry Lowes, chairman of the Metropolitan Toronto school board, said the idea of guaranteed French and English education rights is totally valid.

But William Ross, chairman of the Toronto board of education, said the cost of providing separate instruction in Toronto would be prohibitive. The board, he said, has problems "with much greater priority."

Conrad Lavigne of Timmins, honorary president of the French-Canadian Education Association of Ontario, said he hoped the report was not too late.

"The movement to independence in Quebec has taken on such steam in the last year it may be difficult now, in spite of good intent, to reach accord."

Implementation of the recommendations on education "would be a tremendous improvement" for French-speaking minorities, said Mr. Lavigne.

Quebec Opposition Leader Jean Lesage said he agrees generally what he had heard reported on television about the report. He said he would comment further after he had a chance to read the report.

In St. John's, Newfoundland, F. W. Rowe, acting premier while Premier Smallwood is in a Toronto hospital recovering from an eye operation, said the report's recommendations seem workable and practicable.

The recommendations for greater use of a second language at certain levels of government "would not be an imposition. I think it could be done."

Queen's printers bookstores across the country reported mixed reaction to the first volume of the report.

About 20 copies of the $3 report were sold during a special two-hour opening in Halifax. A spokesman for a Vancouver store said copies were "going quite good and we expect a brisk sale tomorrow."

About 30 editions were sold in Toronto in 3 hours.

Secret Service Got JFK Warning Imprisoned Ex-Agent Quoted

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Three lawyers said Tuesday that a former U.S. secret service agent, now a prisoner at the federal medical centre here, told them the agency knew before President John F. Kennedy was assassinated that an attempt to kill him was being planned.

A lawyer representing Abraham W. Bolden, 32, asserted his client told him he was sent to prison after being refused permission to tell the Warren commission about the alleged information.

The charges were made at a press conference staged by Mark Lane, lawyer and author; Richard V. Burnes, assistant to District Attorney Jim Garrison of New Orleans, La., and John Hosmer, former judge and prosecutor from Marshfield, Mo.

Lane said the secret service received information that an attemp on Kennedy's life would be made on a visit by the president to Chicago, a visit later cancelled out of fear for Kennedy's safety.

NAME WITHHELD

One of several names given the federal agency then, Lane said, was the name of a man now being sought by Garrison in his investigation of the Kennedy assassination. He refused to identify the man and said the name has not been made public.

The lawyers said their information came during two days of talks with Bolden, sentenced in Chicago two years ago to six years in prison for conspiring to sell official information in a counterfeiting case.

Bolden, first Negro named to the secret service's White House detail, was not in Dallas when the president was shot Nov. 22, 1963.

But the lawyers said he told them that he and other agents were told of a plot to kill Kennedy in Chicago and even shadowed one suspect.

After the assassination, when Bolden asked to testify before the Warren commission, said Hosmer, he was arrested and convicted in the counterfeiting case on perjured testimony.

Officials of the medical centre said Bolden was transferred here Nov. 9 last year from the federal prison at Terre Haute, Ind., to help with maintenance of the hospital and is not a patient here.

Lane, author of Rush to Judgment, a book criticizing the Warren commission's conclusion that Lee Harvey Oswald was alone in the Kennedy killing, called Bolden's alleged statements "one of the most significant events since the shots were fired in Dealey Plaza in Dallas."
